"Six years ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs and soon developed all the alarming symptoms of Consumption. I had a cough, night sweats, bleeding of the lungs, pains in chest and sides, and was so prostrated as to be confined to my bed most of the time. After trying various prescriptions, without benefit, my physician finally determined to give me Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took it, and the effect was magical. I seemed to rally from the first dose of this medicine, and, after using only three bottles, am as well and sound as ever."—Rodney Johnson, Springfield, Ill.

STONES OF MEMORIAL.

LESSON III, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 21.

Text of the Lesson, Josh. iv, 10-24—Commit Verses 20-22—Golden Text, Josh. iv, 22—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Condensed from Lesson Helper Quarterly, by permission of H. S. Hoffman, Philadelphia, publisher.]

In the first chapter of this book we saw Joshua encouraged; in the second, the two spies received and protected by Rahab, and bringing to Joshua further encouragement; in the third, the preparations for the crossing of the Jordan and the actual passing over; and now in the fourth we have a most full account of the passing over, with the details concerning the twelve stones. In some of our hymns we sing about Jordan as if it were a symbol of death, and as if Canaan represented heaven; but a very little thought would show us that the fact that in Canaan there were many enemies to be subdued and much fighting to be done, proves that it was not a symbol of heaven, nor the Jordan a symbol of death.

10. "The priests which bore the ark stood in the midst of Jordan until everything was finished that the Lord commanded Joshua." Anything unfinished is impossible with God, and all that he has purposed shall in due time be fully accomplished. Jesus said before he was crucified: "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do," and one of his last words on the cross was: "It is finished." (John xvii, 4; xix, 30.) All that the Father has given Him shall come to Him; all Israel shall be saved; all the earth shall be filled with His glory; the works of the devil shall all be destroyed; the Kingdom shall come and the will of God be done on earth as in heaven.

"The people hasted and passed over." The commands of God ought to be obeyed cheerfully and very promptly; it is not for us to say to-morrow, or time enough, but today is the word both for sinner and saint.

11. "All the people were clean passed over." Three times do we find the last three words of this expression (vs. 1, 11, and ch. iii, 17), and the word "clean" is precisely the same as the word "finished" in verse 10, so that the thought of a complete work is kept constantly before us. What rest it should give our souls when we remember that though now so imperfect He will perfect that which concerneth all His people and present us faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy, and not one thing shall fail of all He has undertaken to do; all shall be accomplished.

12, 13. "Forty thousand prepared for war passed over before the Lord unto battle." These were of the two and a half tribes who received their inheritance in the days of Moses on the east of Jordan; but they had agreed not to enjoy their inheritance till they had helped their brethren to cast out the enemies on the west side (Num. xxxii, 20-23), and only when the land was possessed and the enemy subdued did they return to enjoy their possessions. (Josh. xxii, 1-9.) As believers we are expected to be one with all our brethren in Christ, armed with the whole armor of God, resisting and conquering our common adversaries, the world, the flesh and the devil.

14. "The Lord magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel." He was the Lord's representative, and as the people moved forward at his command and saw the mighty power of the Lord through him, they had to confess that the God of Moses was with Joshua, and so they feared or reverenced him as they did Moses, and the Lord magnified Joshua by working through him. God has magnified His son Jesus, and will magnify Him before all nations, for "all kings shall fall down before Him, all nations shall serve Him." If we determine that Christ shall be magnified in us and yield ourselves to Him accordingly, He will magnify us here by working in us His mighty works, and at His coming by making us just like Himself.

15, 16. "Command the priests that they come up out of Jordan," and this at the command of the Lord to Joshua. How strange it seems that they were not left to their own judgment as to when and how to do some things, but no, everything must be at the command of the Lord. One of the strangest things to me in all the Bible is that the Lord Jesus himself was commanded by the Father what to say, and the Father who dwelt in Him did His works. (John xii, 49; xiv, 10.)

17, 18. "The waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and flowed over all his banks, as before." Not until the feet of the priests were up on the dry land did the waters return to their place. Most thoroughly and perfectly does God do all things, and at the right time and in the best way; it is just glorious to trust and obey Him.

19. "The people came up out of Jordan on the tenth day of the first month." This was the day on which the passover Lamb was chosen (Ex. xii, 3), and as they kept the passover on the fourteenth day (v. 10), they must have selected the lambs on the very day on which they came up out of Jordan, their first day in the promised land. This is the third passover of which we have any account. Note the truths for the believer: Redemption from bondage by the Lamb (Ex. xii); the only joy in the wilderness is in the Lamb (Num. ix), and the rest of the promised land is in the Lamb; all things in Christ, nothing apart from Him; Jesus, our wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption.

20. "Those twelve stones." These stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel forever (v. 7.) A nation chosen to make God a name, chosen to be His people forever (I Chr. xvii, 21, 22), that through them His name may be magnified. They were in themselves weak and sinful and the fewest of all people, but God redeemed them, led them, fed them, clothed them, fought for them, forgave them when they sinned against Him, and gave them this land that they might honor [illegible] magnify His name, keeping in [illegible] His dealings with them. In m[illegible] the lessons from the twelve stones, to [illegible] we have already referred, the faithful keeping them would lift us to think of "the Shepherd, the stone of Israel" (Gen. xlix, 24); and the twelve precious stones ever borne upon the shoulders and breast of the High Priest would constantly speak to them of their nearness to God, and His love for, and care of them.

21-23. "Let your children know." These wonders of the love and power of the Lord their God at the Jordan and the Red sea, as well as all the wonders of the Wilderness, the manna, the flesh, the sweetened waters, the water from the rock, the giving of the law, the rod that budded, the serpent that healed, as well as all His wondrous judgments, were to be constant themes of conversation with their children. They were to talk of all His wondrous works and declare His doings. If in Christian homes today the children never hear father or mother speak of the wondrous love and doings of Him who died on Calvary for us; if we have nothing to say about our joy because He has redeemed us, having forgiven us all our sins, nor of the many ways in which He has delivered us in answer to prayer; if we do not manifest that He is to us a living bright reality, our most intimate and confidential friend, how can we expect our children to inquire after Him?

FEMALE STREET CAR CONDUCTORS.

The oddest thing to be been is the female street car conductors. The street car managers of Chili have added another occupation to the list of those in which women may engage. The experiment was first tried during the war with Peru, when all the able-bodied men were sent to the army, and proved so successful that their employment has become permanent to the advantage, it is said, of both the companies, the women, and the public. The first impression of a woman with a bell-punch taking up fares is not favorable, but the stranger soon becomes accustomed to this as to all other novelties, and concludes it is not such a bad idea after all.

The female conductors are seldom disturbed in the discharge of their duties, and when they are, the rule is to call upon the policemen, who stand at every corner, to eject the obstreperous passenger. The street cars are double deckers, with seats upon the roof as well as within, and the conductor occupies a perch on the rear platform, taking the fare as the passenger enters. Street car riding is a popular amusement with the young men about town. Fellows who make a business of flirting with the conductors are called "musquitoes" in local parlance because they swarm so thickly around the cars and are so great a nuisance.

The conductors, or conductresses, are usually young, and sometimes quite pretty, being usually of the mixed race—of Spanish and Indian blood. They wear a neat uniform of blue flannel, with a jaunty Panama hat and a many pocketed white pinafore, reaching from the breast to the ankles, and trimmed with dainty frills. In these pockets they carry small change and tickets, while hanging over their shoulders is a little shopping bag, in which is a lunch, a pocket handkerchief and surplus money and tickets. Each passenger when paying his fare receives a yellow paper ticket, numbered, which he is expected to destroy. The girls are charged with so many tickets, and when they report at headquarters are expected to return money for all that are missing, any deficit being deducted from their wages, which are $26 per month.

How a Boston Woman Surprised a Visitor and was Surprised in Turn.

Mrs. Y. is a brilliant Boston woman of abundant executive ability, shrewd wit and delightful hospitality. The exigencies of her husband's business led to the keeping of an establishment in the West, where Mrs. Y. passes some months of the year and where she entertains a great many people. One day there was brought to Mrs. Y. the card of an English gentleman, accompanied by a letter of introduction from friends of the Y's abroad. The hostess went down stairs and greeted the guest cordially.

"We are so accustomed to travelers here," she said, "that we know just what to do with them. We expect everybody to arrive travel-stained and exhausted and we let everybody take a bath the first thing. I spoke to the servant before I came down and everything is all ready."

"But," stammered the stranger, "I candot think of putting you to so much trouble.—I——"

"Oh, I know just how you feel," interrupted Mrs Y. "A bath is the only thing that restores me to my normal condition when I've been travelling, and you have come right through from Boston."

The guest demurred, but Mrs. Y. was too executive and too truly hospitable to allow his scruples to prevent the carrying out of her kindly intent.

The Englishman was shown up stairs to the bath room, where it is to be presumed he combined with the progress of his toilet reflections upon the originality and practicability of American hospitality.

In due time the guest descended again to the parlor, where Mrs. Y. awaited him.

"I hope you found everything to your m[illegible]," she said.

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I have had a delightful bath; and now I must bid you good afternoon, as I have to catch a train."

"What!" cried the hostess aghast. "You are not going?"

"Unfortunately I must. I only stopped over a train to call on you.

"Mercy!" she exclaimed in dismay. "I thought you had come to remain. You certainly cannot go away when I haven't seen you at all?"

"I really must," was the reply, but I assure you that I have had a most refreshing bath and I shall always remember with sincere pleasure your unique hospitality."

The story was too good to keep, and Mrs. Y. told it at her own expense, greatly to the entertainment of her friends, who declared that this fashion of entertaining callers was one which deserved to be widely introduced, as it would solve many a perplexing question of the proper method of disposing of guests who were not easy to amuse.

Wilde on Tight-Lacing.

Miss Leffler-Arnim's statement, in a lecture delivered recently at St. Saviour's Hospital, that "she had heard of instances where ladies were so determined not to exceed the fashionable measurement that they had actually held onto a crossbar while their maids fastened the fifteen-inch corset," has excited a great deal of incredulity, but there is nothing really improbable in it. From the sixteenth century to our own day there is hardly any form of torture that has not been inflicted on girls and endured by women, in obedience to the dictates of an unreasonable and monstrous fashion. "In order to obtain a real panish figure," says Montaigue, "what a Gehenna of suffering will not women endure, drawn in and compressed by great coches entering the flesh; nay, sometimes they even die thereof!"

"A few days after my arrival at school," Mrs. Somerville tells us in her memoirs, "although perfectly straight and well made, I was enclosed in stiff stays, with a steel busk in front, while above my frock bands drew my shoulders back till the shoulder blades met. Then a steel rod, with a semi-circle, which went under my chin, was clasped to the steel busk in my stays. In this constrained state I and most of the younger girls had to prepare our lessons." And in the life of Mrs. Edgeworth we read that, being sent to a fashionable establishment, "she underwent all the usual tortures of back boards, iron collars, and dumbs, and also (because she was a very tiny person) the unusual one of being hung by the neck to draw out the muscles and increase the growth,"—a signal failure in her case.

Indeed, instances of absolute mutilation and misery are so common in the past that it is unnecessary to multiply them; but it is really sad to think that in our own day a civilized woman can hang on to a crossbar, while her maid laces her waist into a fifteen-inch circle. To begin with, the waist is not a circle at all, but an oval; nor can there be any greater error than to imagine that an unnaturally small waist gives an air of grace or even of slightness to the whole figure. Its effect, as a rule, is simply to exaggerate the width of the shoulders and the hips; and those whose figures possess that stateliness, which is called stoutness by the vulgar, convert what is a quality into a defect by yielding to the silly edicts of fashion on the subject of tightlacing.—Woman's World.

Fashion's Fancies.

Novel leather card cases for ladies have a tiny nickel watch in one corner.

The banjo is a favorite design in brooches, and may be entirely of gold or with a mother-of-pearl face.

Oxidized silver hairpins, having square or round heads, set with graduated gold balls, are new and unique.

A very becoming face trimming, often used in velvet bonnets, is two crimped puffs of tulle or lisse of some delicate color placed inside the brims like the ruche of a widow's bonnet.

White ostrich feather fans are often given to debutantes. These are among the prettiest of fans, and may be carried with any costume, do not break easily, and are very handsome.

Tam O'Shanter bonnets are new, and differ somewhat from the hats of that name. They have no frame, but merely a velvet band fitting the head, to which a single large piece of velvet or cloth is sewed without lining, and so shaped as to point forward in large folds. They are ornamented with loops of ribbon and a feather or quills, and ribbon ties are added to fasten them under the chin.

TATE SPRINGS, TENN., July 4, 1888.

The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

During the spring of 1871, while working in the field at my home in Morgan county, Ga., I pulled off my shoes to give my feet a rest. Unfortunately, I walked into a clump of poison oak, and in a few days my feet were in a terrible condition, and I could not put on a shoe because of the soreness and swelling. I was treated as poison oak cases usually are, and everything was healed up. About the same time the following spring, 1872, my feet became sore again, as at first; and every succeeding spring for five years brought back the same condition of the disease, only each time it became more distressing, because I began to think it was a lifetime trouble. Finally, I was induced to try Swift's Specific. I took six bottles, and to-day am entirely well. My improvement was gradual from the first, and no evidence of the disease remains. I shall take pleasure in testifying as to its curative properties. It is the greatest blood purifier in existence. Yours truly, J. L. MORGAN.

The foregoing certificate is taken at random from thousands of letters in possession of the Swift Specific Co., and presented simply as a sample. It is a voluntary statement, giving facts and results of the case. Its accuracy and genuineness are beyond question.

LAKE RIDGE LACONICS.

Backward weather for corn-husking and political meetings.

The pole raising at Harrington's Corners, Tuesday afternoon, brought forth a nice pole, big speeches, but a small crowd. It is better weather for prohibition: the rain Monday night brought out a full house in the M. E. church at Pennington's Corners. L. C. Chase and the Wolverine Glee Club were at their best, after a Sunday's rest, and the enthusiasm was grand. The next meeting of the club will be at James Hatch's this week Saturday evening, for the purpose of adjusting campaign matters and a social reunion. Everybody invited, including the ladies.

C. R. Henry late prosecuting Atty. at AuSable, is out on a foraging expedition. He is taking a lot of hay and straw on his Lake Ridge farm, which, with a lot of grain, he will ship to his home at AuSable. He says he is out of politics, having left the group which he claims is a party of monopolists. Thinks he will affiliate with the Union Labor or Prohibitionists and wishes the two were united in one grand party.

Mrs. T. C. Grady of Caro, who declined coming out the 25th inst. to attend her mother's birthday and Alma's, writes that they cannot come till after election, as Lyman wants to vote for Fisk and Brooks. When we were out there three weeks ago he had a small homemade Harrison flag mounted on a 15 or 20 foot pole, and for our first visit to the city he escorted us to the party "flag-staff" with cool skin front. We remarked that it represented the condition of the mass well enough, but the business end of the party is better represented thro' the great National Saloon at Washington, with its marble and granite structure. The late rains have washed his flag—serves him right.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

There was a large audience out Wednesday Eve., to hear the tariff question discussed. Jas. W. Helme, Jr. was the first speaker. He handled the tariff in a manner that would have done credit to our more experienced speakers and surprised his most ardent friends. Seth Bean then followed with one of those clear pointed and convincing arguments for which he is noted.

Something should be done with the stone walk in front of the Smith store. Several have received severe falls in consequence of its being so much higher than the wall adjoining it on the west. Uncle Van Miller thought he could discount the weight of the largest potato with an ear of corn weighing 3 lbs., but failed to connect, as the ear of corn only tipped the scales at 18 oz. He said he guessed the ear he was thinking of must have been picked green.

A FISH STORY

We clip the following from a late number of the Jefferson, Iowa, Bee, from which it appears that Uncle John is at his old tricks. He was a famous fisherman years ago when he lived at Evans Lake, and it seems that his hand has not forgotten its cunning. "Uncle John Davenport had a narrow escape from an involuntary bath in Coon river, last Saturday morning. He went down at high tide, under a sort of pledge to bear the biggest "fish catch" ever made from that raging stream. Had it been a boy, or even a young man who had allowed his ambition to run away with his judgment, no one would have marveled, but when a staid, practical man like the hero of this story, hooks on to a prize large and strong enough to drag him into the water, voice and all, thereby substantially ruining a pair of eleven dollar pants, we may as well prepare to believe anything. But the fisherman did not mourn for his faded lavender trousers, for he caught a splendidly proportioned muskalonge (some say pike) weighing a little over twenty-five pounds, and he has been picking meat from its mammoth frame work since. A lively experience was enjoyed in landing this prize and for a time it was a matter of doubt whether the fish would come ashore and float around as a land lubber, or whether the veteran of a thousand stock sales would turn mermaid, and sell stuff at auction to the bull-heads who live in the thickest of the current. The battle was nip and tuck, but finally the fish was tucked under Uncle John's arm, but not until after it had bitten him severely on the hand. With the aid of a good-sized boy, the fish was mounted on a pole and conducted in triumph around the square. As a result of a somewhat diligent enquiry, we conclude this fish beats the record so far as the output of Coon river in this latitude is concerned. It was about four feet in length and its honest weight is given above. Who will undertake to over size this monster of the fresh water deep? It was caught near the Old County Bridge. P. S.—This notice is gratuitous the editor got none of the fish.

A Reliable Port Wine.

Mr. A. Speer of New Jersey, whose Port Grape wine has such a wide reputation, and which physicians prescribe so generally, was the first to this country to import Port Wine from the banks of the River Douro, in Portugal, where the finest old-time port wine is made. He received an order from a New Jersey gentleman for a pipe of Port Wine which, now the best wine to be had, have become a great favorite among the temperance New York, Philadelphia and Washington society.

OBITUARY.

Leota I. Lanning, only child of Joseph and Ida Lanning died at the home of her parents in Raisin, Tuesday Oct. 16, 1888, of congestion of the liver. The funeral services took place at her home Thursday, Oct. 18th, and were very largely attended. Rev. W. H. Babbitt Pastor of the Presbyterian church of Tecumseh assisted E. E. Pearce the pastor of the family. Long before the hour for service had arrived it became evident that there would not be room for the very many who came to express their sympathy with the stricken family and see Leota. It is estimated that 160 carriages were in the sad procession. Leota's sickness lasted about six weeks. She was very sick during this time with only two or three exceptions when she seemed to get better. Many loving hearts gathered around her during the long wearisome days and nights eagerly watching the work of the disease. But all that physicians parents and friends could do could not save her; and they bowed submissively to that mysterious Providence which took their loved one away. The funeral services were held at the house and all the scene connected there with will not soon be forgotten. Rev. Babbitt who but a few weeks ago conducted the funeral services of Leota's grandfather offered an impressive prayer. Then followed the sermon by the pastor from Jer. 1,59 "Her sun has gone down while it was yet day." The selections and singing by the choir were appropriate and beautiful. The beautiful white casket and the beautiful flowers which adorned it added to the scene which drew tears from all eyes. Seldom was there a more peaceful and beautiful death scene. When told that she might not get well and that death was perhaps near, she answered: "There's a crown for me." She asked her parents and those around her to promise to meet her in heaven. They did so. Twice did she ask her father to confirm his promise by kissing her death pale lips. Death brought no terror to her. Realizing that loved ones were about she expressed a desire to see them. After seeing them she calmly fell asleep in Jesus. Leota was led to love her Savior through the Sabbath School where she will be missed as well as the many other places where loving hearts gathered around her. Some circumstances make Leota's death a sad one. She was an only child. It is difficult to imagine what must be the grief of the parents, and those who sympathize with them will not forget this fact. There was one in that mourning group who would have made Leota his bride; an only son. To him and to the family the church and community desire to express our sorrow and sympathy.

"Let gentle hands the casket bear
Where our loved one lies to rest,
As angels bear sacred relics from
The world and bring them to the blest."

WOOL GOING UP.

Our farmers will remember that the Argus published an article at the time wool buying began this season telling them that if they held on to their wool, they would find it bringing thirty cents. The facts of the case were, as we stated, the eastern wool buyers were taking advantage of the farmers to buy their wool at as low a price as possible. They wanted to make what money was to be made out of wool. The article which was published in the Adrian Press was vigorously criticized by the republican press, notably by the Michigan Farmer. These republican papers were interested in having the price of wool low, so they might gain the votes of the farmers who could have the wool pulled over their eyes. Behold the result. According to the Michigan Farmer of last Saturday, No. 1 Michigan wool has sold at 36 and 37 cents in the eastern market and Michigan x at 27½ and 28 cents and the Farmer further says: "The eastern markets are decidedly firm in the basis of present quotations and an advance in values seems more likely than a decline at present." And further on it says that "prices are likely to be higher". All of which goes to show that the Adrian Press knew what it was talking about and if the farmers of this county had taken the advice given in these columns, it would have been money in their pockets. Washtenaw county can thank the scape, which the Republican party attempted to raise for the temporary low price of wool, so they can best show that party what they think of the loss of their money by voting for Cleveland and Thurman's Ax has been proven in these columns the price of wool has steadily gone under low wool than under a protective tariff. Wool has fallen below thirty cents only under such a administration. It is the interest of the farmers to keep it above thirty cents. And therefore they should vote for Cleveland and Protection. TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, OCT. 25.

Here is another straw. Joe Jefferson and his three sons will vote this fall for the first time, and will all cast their ballots for Cleveland.

Congress adjourned last Saturday. It beat the record in duration, having held the longest session by twenty days since the organization of the present form of government.

The present Republican position seems to be about this. "We are in favor of reducing war taxes ourselves, but we don't want the wicked Democrats to get the credit of it."

Adam Forepaugh, the big circus manager, has bets $18,000 on Cleveland's election. He has been traveling through the N. Atlantic states and has had extra opportunities for catching the drift of public sentiment.

[illegible]

[illegible] Mills bill would reduce the revenue without relieving the people from the taxes that tax at all.

Henry A. Robinson of Detroit, Republican and labor candidate for congress two years ago, supports the Democrats this year on this platform: "I assent to the doctrine of Allen G. Thurman that the tariff is a tax, and to the declaration of President Cleveland that unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation."

Hugh McCulloch, one of the great old American financiers, past and present, has declared for Cleveland. Mr McCulloch was secretary of the treasury under Lincoln, Johnson and Arthur. This is a notable conversion to democratic allegiance and its effect will be the bringing over of many more to the side of lower taxes and honest government.

The Republicans have decided to let the tax on Bibles stand. The Senate Tariff bill provides for admitting free "all books printed exclusively in other languages than English," and that rules out the Scriptures. However, the Senators come out strong for free acorns, free opium, free Chinese matting and free alcohol for industrial purposes. The Republican Senators are pointed in the right direction but they are mighty slow in getting there.

President Pullman stated, at the annual meeting of his car company, that the 4,598 persons employed in the company's shops at Pullman, Ill., earn an average of $60.40 each per month—a much higher average per person than exists in any community where similar work is performed. According to Tribune reasoning, the tariff must be higher in Pullman than any other part of the world.

The number of working people in this country is about 20,000,000. Of these not more than 2,000,000 are employed in protected industries, and they get lower wages, many of them, than the men who labor in the ranks of the unprotected industries. Yet the war taxes are laid upon more than 18,000,000 of workers on the plea that otherwise two millions might starve. It would surely take less than the amount of these taxes to support these 2,000,000 outright.

Carl Schurz, the great German orator, has published a vigorous letter in favor of Cleveland and Thurman. He states the issue in a nutshell thus: "The question is not whether tariff reform will or will not come. It is sure to come, either now or in the new future. The question really is, whether it shall come in the temperate and prudent shape proposed by Mr. Cleveland's message, tending to strengthen rather than to endanger the manufacturing industries, or in the shape of an angry reaction a little later, threatening such loss and confusion as is incident to sudden, violent and sweeping changes of system."

TAX REFORM—ADVANCE!

It is a matter of little moment to the country whether President Cleveland or General Harrison shall be chosen President in November, as far as the character and qualifications of the candidates are involved. Both are admittedly honest and competent; both have been tried in public trust and made creditable records, and either would make a patriotic and faithful President.

Which should be elected? There is one supreme issue involved in the contest, and both sides have met it manfully. Grover Cleveland demands the reduction of war taxes upon the necessaries of life and upon the raw materials necessary for our industries to a standard that will furnish sufficient revenue for the government economically administered; and in that reduction he distinctly demands that the wages of American labor shall be fully protected. Benjamin Harrison demands that the present tariff policy of the country shall be substantially continued, and that revenue reductions shall be made chiefly on internal taxes and sugar, and that raw materials shall not be put upon the free list if any portion of our supply is produced at home.

The issue is simply one of tax reform, and it appears to every citizen of every section and in every condition. It is an issue that has been forced upon Congress by the people. It was forced upon both parties four years ago and was given pledges by both which are yet unredeemed, and it has been forced upon the leading party in the Senate after long efforts at tariff reduction, a revised tariff measure to meet the Mills bill passed the House.

[illegible] war taxes or had a generation after they had ceased to be a necessity, and to-day they are taxed [illegible] annually that the government cannot expend it. It has now [illegible] of the people's money in government vaults, withdrawn from the channels of commerce, industry and trade, and is daily collecting over $2,000,000 of unnecessary revenue from our overtaxed industries. Such an issue calls for a bold, defiant advance of all who are ready to protest against extortionate taxes on the necessaries of life.

Our manufacturers are crippled and our American labor ill paid because of the extortionate war taxes continued on raw materials needed for our products. We are to-day taxing consumers of woolens, which embrace every man, woman and child in the country, over 60 per cent. on their clothing, and yet allow English mills and English labor to supply nearly half our markets, while our American mills and American labor languishes in idleness, solely because we tax wool, chemicals and dye stuffs to an extent that forbids competition in our own markets.

As a rule, every champion of high war taxes appears before his audiences clad in English garments, to demand high taxes for the protection of our woolen industries. And why are these orators English clad? Why are not American cloths as good as English manufacture? Solely because the raw materials for good woolen cloths are so highly taxed that no American mill can buy them; and yet professed labor protectionists mock our workingmen by demanding that they shall be taxed into idleness and denied the right to supply their own markets with the products of their industry.

And why should every table be taxed for the salt upon it? And why should every home be taxed for the lumber in it? And why should every kitchen and every workingman's dinner pail be taxed for the tin in it? And why should every bed in the land be taxed double price or more for its blanket? And why should tariff taxes now average over 47 cents on every $1.00 of foreign goods consumed, when the highest protective tariffs before the war never exceeded 36 cents on the $1.00? These are not protective taxes, they are extortionate and they have bred monopoly combines and trusts until banded greed robs every consumer of the nation.

With such an issue and such a cause, there is but one order to be given along the whole line before the whole people: It is "Tax reform; advance!"—Ex.

"A prompt source of relief from every symptom of indigestion is found in Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic. This elegant and efficacious remedy is prompt and thorough in its action, acceptable to the taste and stomach, curing dyspepsia, jaundice, bad breath, piles, pimples, low spirits, headache, ague, malaria, scrofula, salt rheum, eczema, boils, tetter, rheumatism and all chronic diseases of the blood, stomach and liver. Fifty cents of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. Cures many Who vainly seek relief of physicians.

SOUND VIEWS ON TARIFF REFORM.

The Philadelphia Times has long been known as one of the ablest Republican papers in the East, and one of the warmest advocates of a high protective tariff. But to the utter surprise of many, Col. McClure, the editor, is an ardent supporter of tax reduction and of the Mills bill in particular. In a recent speech he tells what caused his change of opinion. Here are some extracts from his speech:

"Let me say here that two years ago I opposed the free list proposed by the Mills Bill. I opposed free wool and the entire list because I believed the manufacturers, who said it would imperil American industries. Two years ago my attention was first called to this error by an address sent to Congress by the Wool Manufacturers Association. I went to Mr. Bullock, one of the largest Republican manufacturers of Philadelphia, and asked: "Do the woolen manufacturers of the country demand free wool?" He said "They do, unless we have it the industry will languish and die."

I went to Mr Singerly, a democrat, who has 500 men in his woolen mill. When I asked if he wanted free wool, he said: 'I can't operate my mill and pay my labor fair wages without it.' I went to a dozen different Republican manufacturers, and said: 'Tell me whether wool should be free.' All said yes: that it was essential to their prosperity, but added: 'I do not want you to say so do not quote me.' Is it surprising that I changed my mind about free wool?

[illegible] Mr. Derwent, the largest refrigerator in Philadelphia, and a very liberal Republican, as Mr. Cooper knows, and asked whether wool should be free. He said: 'Of course it should be free. [illegible] would [illegible] tax on our coal, and we could sell in Philadelphia more [illegible].'

I went to Charles Potts, who has more [illegible] than any other man in Philadelphia, and asked: 'Tell me, Mr. Potts, should wool be free?' 'If any man says that it ought not to be free, I will send him to an insane asylum,' he replied. 'We don't make a ton of it. Why should our people pay $100,000,000 a year taxes on it?'

I went to Mayor Fitler. 'Tell me, Mr. Mayor,' said I, 'how long it would require you to manufacture all the hemp grown in the United States.' 'Well,' said he, 'about six months,' and for that $25 a ton is put on all hemp imported into the United States. I would be false to intelligence and integrity if I did not yield to the judgment of these men in favor of free raw material.

"I am in favor of the free list of the Mills Bill, and would make it larger. I would add to it coal and iron ore. And these will be added, and Mr. Cooper will favor them, if Harrison should be elected President, simply, you know, because there is a limit to resistence to common sense.

"Why should lumber be taxed 17 to 20 per cent.? There is no labor protected by it. God has made the lumber grow upon the mountains without labor. If there were any industry to protect, I would say, tax it. And yet they say to make it free is free trade."

Smyptoms of Heart Disease

Diseased hearts are as common as diseased lungs, kidneys or stomach, but far less understood. The symptoms are shortness of breath, when weepings, etc., oppression in the chest, faint, weak or hungry spells, dreaming, pain or tenderness in the side, swelling feet, dropsy, etc. The unnatural circulation of the blood in the lungs, stomach, kidneys, liver and brain causes other symptoms. The only reliable remedy for the heart yet discovered is Dr. Mile's New Cure. Try it and be convinced. Sold by Baker & Hall.

W. F. Beyer, Gattretsville, Ohio, says: "My wife has been troubled with Catarrh a long time, but have, with what remedies we had, and what the doctor could do, kept the upper hand of it until this fall, when everything failed. Her throat was gaw as far as one could see, with an incessant cough, when I invested my dollar in a bottle of your Papillon Catarrh Cure as a last resort. To-day she is free from cough, throat all healed and entirely cured." Papillon extract of flax Catarrh Cure effects cures when all others fail. Large bottles $1.00.

PLAIN TALK BY A MANUFACTURER.

William H. Axtes, of Philadelphia, blanket manufacturer, who is the Democratic candidate for Congress from the fourth district in opposition to Judge Kelley, made his maiden speech the other day to one of a large meeting of Democrats at Manayunk. The audience was composed almost entirely of workingmen. He said:

"I have come before you to tell you as plainly as I can why I have consented to become a candidate for Congress in what is known as Judge Kelley's district. It is because I believe that the time for a revision of the tariff has come, and I believe it would result in the greatest good to the greatest number. Last year we imported over $700,000,000 of goods. Just think of it! It is so vast a sum that one can hardly conceive of it, and yet I believe that if we had free raw materials a very large percentage of that $700,000,000 worth of goods would have been made here. You may ask, if this is so, why so many manufacturers are opposed to a revision of the tariff and the re election of President Cleveland.

"I think I can give you some of the actual reasons. The first is because of old affiliations. When men have been voting with one party for twenty years they don't like to change. Another is that many of them fear a temporary loss on the stocks of raw materials they may have on hand when a bill like the Mills bill passes. I expect to lose a little that way myself, but I and my brothers—in fact, our firm—are willing to sustain this temporary loss for the general good which we know will follow. We expect to more than make it up ten times over in the near future. But men hate to meet with even a temporary loss, and they are always looking for a boom. For instance, in 1880 we had a boom. Our firm bought goods for 55 cents and sold them for $1.30. It was an enormous profit, I am forced to confess, and we got it all; you didn't get any of it, you workingmen, because by the time you were ready to demand an increase of wages the boom was over, and we were in a position to refuse them, and you didn't get any of them. Now, without the existing enormous protective tariff such profits would have been impossible, and there are lots of manufacturers who know this who are waiting for another boom, when they can make suddenly in one year more profit than they can in three years of ordinary business. The boom, which began in 1880, lasted fifteen months, but with a revision of the tariff there will never be another one like it.

"Now, I want to feel that my candidacy will do something to bring about a revision of the tariff and secure the success of the whole ticket. President Cleveland has given us a live issue, and while I am free to confess that I think the workingmen will be more directly benefited by the reduction of the tariff than the manufacturers will, I want to see it done, because your prosperity means mine in the long run. I hope I have made myself clear to you."

A POSITIVE CURE FOR SKIN DISEASES

OF diseases of the skin there are some 12 or 15 classes, in each class from two to four varieties. These are modified according to the particular condition of the blood, for disease of the skin means disease of the blood. These are either the result of stomach, liver or kidney difficulties, and for a cure depend upon a healthy action of these organs.

Erysipelas, or St. Anthony's Fire

The Session of Congress Which Has Just Closed,

AND FOR PRECIOUS LITTLE ELSE.

A Short List of Things Done, Considering the Time It Took, and Another of Things Left Undone—The Record Beaten on Public Buildings and Rivers and Harbors.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 24.—The first session of the Fiftieth Congress is notable only for its moderate length—having lasted three weeks longer than any other session in the history of the country—and for its voluminous tariff debates, which also exceed greatly any previous debate on the tariff. Of the so-called public acts a very large proportion are local or private in their character. There is a long list of acts permitting railroad companies to bridge navigable streams and extend their lines through Indian reservations, and creating corporations in the District of Columbia, and permitting various things to be done in particular places and authorizing terms of court to be held where they are not held now. The following list comprises about all the general acts of much importance during the session of nearly eleven months:

Authorizing the president to arrange a conference between the nations of Central and South America and the West Indies for the establishment of international arbitration and the promotion of commerce.

Reviving the grade of general for the benefit of Gen. Sheridan.

Enabling certain volunteer soldiers, who under a treasury ruling were denied the $100 bounty under the act of 1872, to receive the benefits of that act.

Increasing the rate of pension for total deafness from $24 to $30.

Appropriating money for the creation of a gun factory and the purchase of steel forgings to be made into heavy ordnance.

Establishing a statute of limitations for the benefit of the bondsmen of disbursing officers.

Rendering judgments and decrees in federal courts liens on property throughout the state in which the court is held.

Limiting the hours of work of letter carriers to eight per day.

For the division of the Sioux reservation according to option and on conditions which have been duly reported.

Amending the law excluding offensive matter from the mails.

Extending the homestead laws to the Hispanic.

Providing for an additional assistant attorney general.

Punishing robbery, burglary, and larceny in Indian Territory.

Authorizing the use of troops in Indian operations.

Of private bills about 500 have been passed at this session, and of these two-thirds are private pension bills. Among the private pension bills of this session are two granting pensions of $5,000 a year each to the widows of Gens. Logan and Hancock. The bill to give Mrs. Sherman $5,000 has not passed the house on account of the failure to get unanimous consent at a time when a quorum was absent. Several generals' widows have had their special pensions doubled at this session. Nancy Paine, the oldest revolutionary pensioner, has had her pension raised to $50 a month. John W. January, the Illinois soldier who amputated both of his own feet at Andersonville, has had a pension of $50 a month given him, and several disabled soldiers have had their pensions raised to $72 a month.

This congress has the distinction of voting more money for rivers and harbors and for public buildings than any previous session. The aggregate appropriations for public buildings amount to $7,279,510, but more than a million of this is contingent and may not be required. Congress provided for twenty-seven new public buildings besides appropriating money to continue a large number now in process of erection and to repair and enlarge another considerable number. Chicago gets $200,000 in addition to $120,000 on hand for the appraisers' warehouse.

Among the joint resolutions of the session were that directing the geological survey to investigate the practicability of constructing reservoirs for the storage of water in the arid region; appropriating $200,000 to prevent the introduction of yellow fever into the United States or its transmission from one state to another; making appropriations for the representation of the United States at the expositions to be held in Paris, Brussels, Barcelona, and Melbourne.

The bill to create a bureau of labor became a law at this session, but it merely changes the organization of the existing bureau. Among the measures that failed for this session are the following:

The tariff bill, the bill to quiet the title of settlers on the Des Moines river lands, bill for the settlement of private land claims, the postal telegraph bill, the inter-state telegraph bill, the bill to repeal the timber culture, preemption, pre-emption, bill, bills to admit Dakota and Washington and to create the territory of Lincoln, the filled cheese and oleo bill, bill relating to the court jurisdiction, the bill for the repeal of the preemption and timber culture laws and the amendment of the homestead law, the [illegible] bill, the bill for the relief of the Northern Pacific and forfeiting all unearned grants, [illegible] bill, bills to prevent the undervaluation of imports, to incorporate the Maccabees, [illegible] to prevent the importation of Canadian [illegible] and for the protection of American [illegible] in the Dominion, the copyright bill, the bill for the protection of American industries, bill for the protection of American [illegible] and the bill for the protection of American [illegible] and the bill for the protection of American [illegible] and the

Every voter in the land, whether he be old or young, rich or poor, is interested in the question of tariff revision and tax reduction. All of us, who are called upon to pay taxes and who is not? are interested in having our taxes as light as possible, and in having them equitably and properly distributed. A public policy, which gathers from the people needless and exorbitant taxes, or which levys the taxes for government use in an unequal manner, by shifting these burdens from the rich upon the shoulders of the poor, is one which all right thinking men must condemn. The question of taxation is not so much a political one, as it is a business one. It matters not what ticket a man may vote, or whether he votes at all. The summons of the tax gatherer comes round as inevitably as seed time and harvest. His visits are as certain as death and as inexorable as fate.

In this connection we wish to say a word to the young men on this subject of taxation—to the young voters who are just coming upon the stage of action. In nine cases out of ten the young man starts in life with little or no capital. His daily labor is his only capital, and his good health is his only bank account. With him, every dollar saved is a dollar earned, and every dollar earned is a nest egg from which he lays up a few hundreds, to enable him to embark in business and thus start in the race of life.

How do these war tariff taxes effect the young man? Tariff duties are not levied on wealth and property as our local taxes are. State, county and municipal taxation is levied on real and personal estate. The richest man in town pays the highest tax. But tariff duties comes out of the consumer. It is a literal truth that the poorest man in town may pay more tariff taxes than the richest man. This entire tariff system therefore is founded upon iniquity. The basis of the system is inequality, not equality. The corner stone upon which this protective tariff structure rests is this: The government should protect the rich and tax the poor. Under this system the young man just starting in life and struggling for a foot hold is continually robbed for the benefit of his richer neighbor. He is handicapped by a system of taxation which discriminates against him in all his daily purchases. It is a burden of daily recurrence and far reaching in its effects.

But the indirect evil effects of the system are even greater than the direct results. This excessive surplus revenue drawn from the business of the country brings about a contraction of the currency. It produces dullness and stagnation in trade. This makes work scarce and depresses wages. Hundreds of young men are thrown out of employment who would be glad to work if they could find work to do. When business booms, work is plenty and wages are good. When business is depressed the condition of work and wages is reversed. And the present outrageous system of war taxation has done more to depress and disorganize business during the past five years than all other causes put together. Again, this jug handle tariff fosters and protects big monopolistic concerns, at the expense of small concerns in interior towns like Tecumseh. One of the most dire effects of a high protective tariff is its certainty to freeze out all small lines of business. In other words the big fish eat up the little ones, and the wealthier the big concerns become, the harder it is for small enterprises in country towns to start and succeed in business. Under this policy hundreds of men are doomed to work for daily wages all their lives who could, under a wise and equitable tax system, embark in business on their own account. Nothing has a more emphatic influence upon the material condition of any people, either for good or ill, than their tax laws. Wise tax laws bring national prosperity as surely as the needle points to the pole, while unwise, unequal and oppressive tax laws are just as certain to bring national distress and calamity.

Young man! the fact that you are called upon to vote a Republican, Democratic or Prohibition ticket this fall is a matter of little moment. The name of a ticket is nothing. The principle you vote for is everything. And in this tariff business, it behooves you to make haste slowly. Not only your individual interests, but the social and business welfare of the community as a whole, are wrapped up in a policy of low taxes and tariff reduction. Sophists may befog and befuddle this question as they may; paid orators may depict the ruin of American industries which will follow a wise revision of the tariff. But the great bald fact still stands, which no sophistry can overthrow, that no nation can be made rich by being taxed to death; that any tax system must be an evil which builds up huge monopolies and trusts, which depresses legitimate trade, which robs consumers, which transfers our tax burdens from the rich to the poor, which covers our far as with mortgages, which breeds millionaires and which manufactures paupers. Young man, where will you side of low taxes and the poor man's home, or on the side of high taxes, free tobacco and free whiskey? Revenue reform is bound to come. It is in the air. The leaven is working in the hearts of the people. This reform is just as inevitable as the abolition of slavery was a quarter of a century ago. Ten years hence it will be difficult to find a man who will acknowledge that he fought against tariff revision in this campaign. Therefore we say to you: Start out right: do not be misled by partizan fuss and fustian; vote for your own welfare and your country's good; vote for tax reduction and revenue reform.

THE DEMOCRATIC OUTLOOK.

Twelve days hence the political parties will meet in the great battle of the ballots, and the question will be decided whether war taxes shall survive or perish. The lines are now formed in battle array, the recruiting service is about over, the floppers on both sides have found their proper places in the ranks of the opposing forces, and but little remains to be done preparatory to the great conflict on the 6th of November next.

Watchman what of the night? What are the signs of promise? What is the outlook for a victory in behalf of the rights of the people, in behalf of low taxes, tariff revision and revenue reform?

If a man should read the Tribune daily and implicitly believe all he reads, he would be willing to bet his farm that Harrison would not only carry every Northern state, but a good share of the Southern states also. On the other hand, a man who reads only a Democratic party organ and accepts every statement therein without any discount, would be sanguine of Cleveland's overwhelming election. The actual truth is to be found between these two extremes. From a careful survey of the whole field, what are the indications at this writing?

1st—There is no doubt of the success of the Cleveland and Thurman electoral ticket in the Southern states proper. The present administration has accomplished what none of its predecessors could do. It has thoroughly pacified the South. The bloody shirt is buried at last, and let us hope, forever. The Union is finally restored in fact as well as in name. A business boom has struck that section and it is entering upon a grand career of material development. The South will not desert the Moses who has led her out of the wilderness. She will remain true to the interests of the masses by refusing to swap horses while crossing a stream.

2d. What is the situation in the four debatable states of New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and Indiana? It can be stated as a general fact that Cleveland is stronger with the people in all four of these states than he was four years ago. His campaign is in far better shape than it was four years ago at this time. The tariff scare has already spent its force and a strong reaction has set in. The city election in Newark, New Jersey, early this month, was an eye-opener. That city is one of the richest manufacturing centres in the union according to its population. It has never failed for twenty years to go republican in a Presidential year. But at the last election the Democrats gained over 2,000 over four years ago and carried the city by over 700. The significance of this result is apparent. It shows that the free trade scare crow does not freighten laboring men out of their senses in the factory towns. They are beginning to realize the humbug of a high tariff, and are disposed to vote for a reduction of war taxation. Cleveland is gaining largely in the factory towns. The same causes will produce a like result in Connecticut. In New York, the independent elements which supported Cleveland four years ago are with him to-day. The 30,000 Irish democrats who voted for Butler in 1884 are all for Cleveland now. The registration in New York and Brooklyn on the first two days shows an increase of 42,000 over four years ago. This means an increase of at least 20,000 democratic majority in these two cities. With these big gains in Cleveland's favor, New York cannot be wrested from him. In Indiana the entire labor and greenback elements are bitterly opposed to Harrison. His uniform unfriendly course toward the laboring man, and his record in favor of Chinese immigration, have consolidated the laboring classes against him. The effort to work the free trade spook in Indiana has also played out. All indications go to show that Gen. Harrison will lose his own state.

We do not claim to be a prophet or even the son of a prophet, but we will risk our reputation as a careful man, to estimate political prospects, on the assertion that Cleveland will carry the same states which he carried in 1884. The majorities, however, will not be large. People who look for heavy majorities either way this fall will be disappointed. The majorities will be small, but large enough to be safe. In addition to the above, Michigan is one of the four debatable states. In these two states, the Democracy not only have a fighting chance but have the inside track to-day and are running a neck and neck race. Unless a revulsion of sentiment shall take place, between this and election day, W. R. Burt will be our next governor. If every revenue reformer in the second district shall do his full duty, we will not only elect Burt governor, but we will also redeem this congressional district.

CHICAGO "ALL RIGHT" AGAIN.

"Anti-Scab" Mobs Indulge in Their Playful Freaks.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—At 10:30 o'clock Saturday night as a Wells street cable car, under the charge of Gripman Thomas Ford, one of the new men, was turning the corner of Dearborn and Monroe streets, some one on the sidewalk shouted "scab." The streets were crowded with people returning from the big political meeting at Battery D, and the shout served as a rallying cry. The street near the corner had been torn up for repairs, and the paving stones furnished ammunition for the onslaught which was at once begun. Every window in the car was broken, and the driver was struck repeatedly before the patrol wagons arrived, and cleared the streets. Four arrests were made, but the crowd followed the car clear into the LaSalle street tunnel, pelting it all the way. Ford was severely, but not dangerously hurt by the fusillade.

On Historic North Halstead.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—North Halstead street was the scene of another "anti-scab" demonstration yesterday afternoon. About a thousand people collected on that thoroughfare, at the corner of Clybourne avenue, and after collecting a pile of bricks, stones and timbers on the street car tracks, waited for a car to come along. When it appeared the conductor and driver were saluted with the usual fusillade of brickbats, and the police, who were hastily summoned, had considerable difficulty in dispersing the crowd and escorting the car back to the barn. On Wells street, also, the new men were kept busy all day removing stones from the track, pulling wedges out of the cable slot and watching for missiles thrown from alley ways. The police made several arrests during the day.

AN AUTHORESS MARRIED.

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Miss Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, the authoress, and the Rev. H. D. Ward, of The New York Independent, were married quietly at East Gloucester Saturday. Mr. Ward is a summer resident there, and is an enthusiastic amateur yachtman. Professor Phelps, of Andover, officiated. Miss Phelps has been for many seasons a resident at East Gloucester, and one of her recent publications, "Jack," a story of a Gloucester sailor, aroused a storm of adverse comment from the people and pulpit here. Mr. Ward is a comparatively young man, not over 35. Miss Phelps is somewhat older.

WITH A TERRIFIC CRASH

Two Passenger Trains Come in Collision—The Dead and Wounded.

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—Two passenger trains on the Cumberland Valley railroad collided at Britton's Woods, one and a quarter miles from here, yesterday morning. Both trains were running at the rate of from thirty-five to forty miles an hour, and came together with a terrific crash, telescoping the engines, express and baggage cars, killing one train hand, and injuring a number of the passengers. Following is a list of the killed and injured: Charles Ritner, of Chambersburg, baggagemaster, rescued alive but died soon after; Alexander McClinn, conductor, of Chambersburg, skull crushed and badly bruised; Mrs. D. H. Harmony, of Chamber-burg, head and arm cut and bruised; Frank Manle, express messenger, badly injured internally; Mme. Stella Long, the pianist with the Gypsy Quartette, head cut and internally injured.

AN INDIANA ATROCITY.

In Which the Dastard Wife Killer Does His Bloody Work.

WINCHESTER, Ind., Oct. 22.—Victor Hill and his wife have been separated for some time. Last evening Hill called at the residence of his father-in-law, Zimri Moffatt, where his wife is staying, and asked to see his child. His wife refused, and Hill drew a revolver and shot her through the heart, killing her instantly. He also shot and slightly wounded his father-in-law and Mrs. Harper, his sister-in-law. He then made his escape and fled to the woods. Large parties of armed men are in pursuit, and if taken he will undoubtedly be lynched.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The great trial of The London Times charges against Parnell and other Irishmen was begun yesterday, the day being taken up with the preliminary talk which was only begun. Attorney General Webster began the opening statement for The Times and said that he would prove that the Irish National league was directly implicated in many of the crimes that have been committed in Ireland, including the Phœnix park murders. Webster expects to take nearly a week to finish his statement. The Irish statesman was represented by Sir Charles Russel, and many Irishmen were present in the court room.

Twenty-One Prisoners Break Jail.

SPOKANE FALLS, W. T., Oct. 20.—A big jail delivery occurred here Friday evening by which twenty-one out of twenty-eight prisoners escaped. The cells in the large cage were left unlocked and the prisoners got together, cut a hole in the cage, seized and bound the guard, gagged him and locked him in the jail. Seven prisoners, confined for petty offenses, declined to escape. Among the escapes are three murderers and the remainder are thieves.

Base Ballists off for Australia.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—After playing a game here Saturday that was uninteresting except for the fact that Mr. A. G. Spalding pitched a few innings in the old straight-arm style that he used when he was an expert, the Chicago and All-America clubs left the city en route to Australia, where they will show the people of the antipodes how we play base ball here.

RIVALS STRANGELY RECONCILED.

A Snake Story Which Has the Merit of Being Truthful.

Just a year before the war, in a little town of one of the Southwestern States, two young men lived, and had lived all their lives. They grew as strong friends as the fabled Damon and Pythias.

In the same town was a beautiful young girl, and in an evil time both the young men fell desperately in love with her, and fell more desperately into hating one another. In fact, they never spoke to one another, only to curse and revile.

Finally they decided to fight it out, and appointed to meet in a grove a mile off, having no one to witness the scene, and the victor was to have the girl.

The time to fight was about 4 o'clock one August afternoon in 1860.

One of the parties took his pistol, proceeded to the rendezvous, and sat down at the foot of a tree to rest, and fell asleep. He was awakened by the report of a pistol to see his hated rival standing about ten feet off with a smoking pistol in his hand, while at his feet was a very large and ugly rattlesnake, twisting and squirming in the throes of death.

He looked at the snake, then at the enemy, and jumped forward with hand outstretched, saying:

"John, I'll give her up. I would rather have your friendship than hate."

"No," said John, "she is yours, Dick. I did not see any sense in fighting for a girl without knowing that she cared for me, and she told me frankly that she preferred you, so I came to tell you and found that serpent ready to kill you, and I killed it; we are always friends hereafter," and so they remained until he fell at the first battle of Manassas a year or two later.

Big Failure in Pig Lead.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The great pig lead firm of Nathan Corwith & Co., the largest concern of the kind in the west, has failed, and without doubt the trust in pig lead is demolished thereby. The Union National bank took out an attachment writ for $39,580 against the firm, and it was served on the firm Friday. The amount represented on the writ is said to be but a small portion of the sum loaned the firm. The latter refused Thursday to extend the time on the firm's overdrafts and the failure followed.

Three Persons Killed.

FREEPORT, Ills., Oct. 19.—At an early hour yesterday, on the Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City road, a collision occurred by which John Brown, a stock man, of St. Paul; James Orr, of Larrimer, Minn., and Edward Hickey, of Fairbanks, Minn., were killed. The injured are E. R. Smith, a merchant at Stockton, whose ankle was badly crushed, and Frank Martin, of St. Charles, who sustained internal injuries and was badly bruised. The train men all escaped.

Threw the Escutcheon in the Street.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The escutcheon of the German embassy at Havre was stolen and thrown into the street Friday night. The prefect of the cit called upon the German consul and profusely apologized for the unfortunate affair. Minister Goblet also apologized to the German ambassador here. The thieves have not yet been apprehended.

Bet Their Business on It.

STILLWATER, Minn., Oct. 20.—Dan Harkins and Jay Barnes, proprietors of a livery stable here, have each bet their half of the business on the presidential election, one being a Democrat and the other a Republican. The papers have been drawn up for the transfer of the property to the winner, and been placed in the hands of a lawyer.

Five Years' Imprisonment for Murder.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 20.—Anderson Duff, a colored man of Normal, charged with murdering John Stuart last November, was found guilty Saturday and sentenced to five years in prison.

Trouble in Hayti.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—A dispatch from Santiago de Cuba dated Oct. 50 says: The schism between the north and the south is complete. Troops from Cape Haytien, Port de Paix, and Gonaives are marching on Port-au-Prince to avenge Telemache's death.

Chief Arthur's Course Indorsed.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 20.—The meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers indorsed the action of Chief Arthur in all matters pertaining to the brotherhood since the last session. This virtually sustains Chief Artur's action in the "Q" strike.

Frightful Disaster in Italy.

ROME, Oct. 22.—Ten cars of an excursion train were overwhelmed by a land slide yesterday in the province of Potenza. Seventy injured and ninety dead bodies have been recovered, and there are still more in the wreck.

The approaching death of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe revives interest in her great work, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and the audience which greeted the dramatization at White's last night was very large. Lewis Clark, the slave spoken of in the book as George Harris, narrates the manner in which Mrs. Stowe got the facts for her work. The company is good and will stay the week.—Detroit News, Sept. 18, '88

Next Monday evening Oct. 29, the Democrats of Clinton will have another big rally. The speaker will be Jno. W. McGrath, of Detroit. Mr. McGrath was State labor commissioner under Gov. His speech will be worth listening to and Tecumseh ought to send a good delegation to this meeting.

A good audience assembled at the Baptist church Tuesday evening to listen to an evening's entertainment by the Carman family. Their repertoire consisted of vocal music and recitations, both grave and gay, and was intensely interesting from first to last The Carmens are not strangers here however, and they always draw a good audience. The proceeds added a goodly sum to the poor fund of the church.

A beautiful hickory 130 feet high was raised on Harrington's corners in Macon last Tuesday afternoon and a fine Cleveland & Thurman streamer swung to the breeze. Notwithstanding the raw, chilly weather a goodly number were present. Short speeches were made by J. W. Helme, Jr. and S. C. Stacy and at five o'clock the farmers dispersed to their homes. The Macon Democrats are wide awake and will give a good account themselves on election day.

W. Jones, of Florida. Voters of all parties will be welcomed and the ladies also. And a special invitation is extended to all Irish American citizens.

Among all the candidates who are running for county offices this fall, no one is more worthy of support than Capt. Fred B. Wood, who is up for prosecuting attorney. He is eminently qualified for the position both in legal acquirements and experience. He is an earnest devotee of his profession, a shrewd, skillful manager in practice, a man of unflinching integrity, and an indefatigable worker. Owing to constant legal demands upon him, he has been unable to make a systematic canvass of the entire county, but wherever he has gone he has made friends, and in this section of the county where he is well known, he ought to be stronger than his ticket. Scores of men who always voted for his honored father, Edwin B. Wood, will gladly take this occasion to give the son a lift. While we have nothing to say against his opponent, we sincerely hope that our gallant young Captain may draw the winning card this fall.

The Democrats were very fortunate in their choice of Wm. M. Corbet as their candidate for the state legislature in this district. He is admirably fitted for the place and possesses personal strength in the South towns of the district which will go a long way toward electing him. In this end of the district, the Democrats have great confidence in him as a man of honor and integrity and they will give him a cordial and united support.

Messrs. McMahon & Case who own a large modern creamery in Stowe, Vt., captured the sweepstakes premium over all creamery butter at the Vermont State Fair this year. In their report they state that their butter was brought to its beautiful shade by the use of Thatcher's Orange Butter Color. Dairymen and creamerymen should be careful to have their butter colored just right and as Thatcher's Color is found in most prize packages they should procure this kind. It is sold everywhere and is manufactured by Thatcher Manufacturing Co., Postdam, N. Y.

A GEM FROM BEECHER.

The following is published at the request of a friend in which Henry Ward Beecher gave some of his personal experience while attending an Episcopal church service during a visit in Scotland.

"The services began. You know my mother was, until her marriage, in the communion of the Episcopal Church; this thought hardly left me, while I sat, grateful for the privilege of worshipping God through a service that had expressed so often her devotions. [Aye, this is a sweet and holy tie among us, whether separated by sea, or land, or death.] I cannot tell you how much I was effected. I had never had such a trance of worship and I shall never have such another view until I gain the gate.

"I am so ignorant of the Church Service, that I cannot tell the various parts by their right names—but the portions which most effected me, were the prayers and responses which the choir sang. I had never heard any part of a supplication—a direct prayer—sung by a choir; and it seemed although I heard, not with my ear, but with my soul. I was dissolved—my whole being seemed to me like an incense wafted gratefully towards God. The Divine presence rose before me in wondrous majesty, but of ineffable gentleness and goodness; and I could not stay away from a more familiar approach, but seemed irrisistibly, yet gently, drawn toward God. My soul, then thou didst magnify the Lord, and rejoice in the God of thy salvation! And then come to my mind the many exultations of the Psalms of David, and never before were the expressions and figures so noble and so necessary to express what I felt. I had risen, it seemed to me, so high, that I was where David was when his soul conceived the things which he wrote. Throughout the service, and it was an hour and a quarter long, whenever an "Amen" occurred, it was given by the choir, accompanied by the organ and the congregation. Oh, that swell and solemn cadence yet rings in my ear. Not once, not a single time did it occur in that service, from beginning to end, without bringing tears from my eyes. I stood like a shrub in a spring morning—every leaf covered with dew, and every breeze shook down some drops. I trembled so much at times, that I was obliged to sit down. Oh, when in the prayers breathed forth in strains of sweet, simple, solemn music, the love of Christ was recognized, how I longed then to give utterance to what that love seemed to me. There was a moment in which the heavens seemed opened to me, and I saw the glory of God! All the earth seemed to me a storehouse of images, made to set forth the Redeemer, and I could scarcely keep still from crying out. I never knew, I never dreamed before, of what heart there was in the word Amen. Every time it swelled forth and died away solemnly, not my lips, not my mind, but my whole being said—Saviour, so let it be.

"The sermon was preparatory to the communion, which I then first learned was to be celebrated. It was plain and good; and although the rector had done many things in a way that led me to suppose that he sympathized with over much ceremony, yet in his sermon he seemed evangelical, and gave a right view of the Lord's Supper. For the first time in my life, I went forward to commune in an Episcopal Church."

A MAN FROM MAINE.

Volney B. Cushing's Talk on Political and Temperance Reform last Saturday.

The prohibitionists seem to understand the power of music as they prefaced their speaking with the aid of a local orchestra with pleasing effect. The Social Glee Club also supplemented the oratorical elucidation of the subject with some fine temperance songs. Shortly after 8 o'clock, Mr. M. P. Brown introduced the speaker who commanded the close attention of the audience for about an hour and one half. Below is a synopsis of his remarks.

Last fall was held at Indianapolis a most remarkable convention. It represented an element which is coming to the front in our higher civilization, and which is destined to overturn the influence which the saloon now holds upon the politics of our country. The workings of the saloon in politics has created the prohibition party. Several years ago Wendel Phillips said the people of Boston could not elect a ticket without the aid of the saloon. State street with its wealth, High st. with its churches, the schools and colleges with their learning, all these could have no weight or control in the government of the city without invoking the aid of the liquor ring. He was hooted as a radical, but the facts as developed in the election verified his statement. Such is the condition of our national and state politics at present. The leading journals of our large cities claim that the saloons have more influence in their government than religion, wealth and learning combined. This influence grows with the wonderful growth of our cities. Even now it is the dominant factor in politics. Immigration is a constant supply to our cities and a support to the saloon. Not only is our country a refuge for the desirable foreigners, but the vicious classes throng to the cities and are controlled by liquor. The republic will live if it deserves to live. It will live through the intelligence and purity of the people. So far as we, as voters, encourage systems which strike at the intelligence of the people, so far we strike at the life of the republic. The crisis comes to men when they must break the black bottle, or the black bottle breaks them. So with the republic. The great crisis of the black bottle is creeping upon us. Which shall we break?

Politically, two ideas present themselves. First, the liquor power in politics must be crushed; second, it must be crushed by an opposing political party. I come here to talk politics, not sentimentalism. Talk and prayer will not avail in this case. If the enemy uses shot, we must use the same weapon. This is the philosophy of war. If the enemy are intrenched in politics, we must meet them on that battlefield; we must fight them with a well organized political party. For this warfare, which party shall we use? Many of the democratic party are opposed to intemperance, but the organization and its leaders are committed to and identified with the liquor interests. To ask this party to aid us, is to ask the leper to change his spots. If it should attempt to close the saloon, the saloon would close the democratic party. Can the republican party settle this great question? Many of our most earnest temperance workers believe this, but this view is not supported by the facts. The first and only mission of the republican party is to defeat Cleveland and the democracy. If the advocacy of temperance is necessary to aid them in this fight, in a particular section, it is worked with all sincerity. If the liquor element is the stronger, every means is used to court their favor and their vote. It stands for temperance in Maine; for beer and license in Ohio, and the speakers are obliged to consult a map to determine the nature of their appeals in the different states. It has no uniform and national policy. The g. o. p. has had its mission, and it is fulfilled. It is absolutely impossible for it to carry out another reform. It is divided on the greatest living issue and can not stand. The faithlessness and inconsistency of the republican platforms and policy in this respect have become proverbial. The sobriety of the home is the first concern of all good government, but the last concern of a great political party of moral ideas. All the great liquor interests are well satisfied with such planks and resolutions. But how do they receive the platform of prohibition? Only to use their united power in its opposition. This must be the only party having for its purpose the first concern of all good government. Wherever it floats its banner it bears the same inscription. Why do we belong to parties? Is it not to carry out principles through their instrumentalities? When parties lose their principles and new and vital issues arise, we adopt new parties. Did not the lesson of abolition teach us this? And has it been forgotten, that temperance men have no political sagacity? In Brooklyn, 13 men asked for a saloon on a prominent street; 200 opposed it. The 13 obtained their request because they possessed the political sagacity to always vote for and support the saloons. Hence their influence. The 200 also voted with them but as they were temperance men and opposed the saloon on principle, they had no influence and practically threw away their votes. Does this not disclose a fearful lack of political consistency among a large class of temperance men?

Mr Cushing said that in a large portion of Maine, open liquor selling was done away with, and they were thus rid of the baneful influence of the saloons, but in the cities the sale is carried on quite openly. National and absolute prohibition he declares the only remedy.

COUNTY TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Teachers' Association for Lenawee Co. met at the High School building in Adrian, Saturday, Oct. 13th. Notwithstanding inclemency of the weather there was a large gathering of the teachers of this county.

The meeting was called to order promptly on time at 10 A. M. The paper on Arithmetic was well written and showed the writer of the subject to be an enthusiast upon that subject, and provoked a general discussion of the subject.

In the afternoon the first paper was read by Louis Burr, of Hudson, subject, "The Art of Questioning." Questions should not be leading in their nature—not be framed so as to require monosyllabic answers, but should lead the pupils to study—think and act. Discussion followed. The first speaker, Mr. ——— said he would make questions preliminary, stimulative, examinative. Another lady teacher said she would have most of the questions if not all of them oral.

E. A. Wilson said he would have a judicious combination of both adapting the kind according to the age of the pupil. In general oral for younger pupils, diminishing the oral and increasing the written so far as test work is concerned. He would increase the written and topical method as the reasoning faculties are developed.

Prof. Curtis then gave a very interesting talk upon the "Metric System" illustrating by means of objects and the use of the chart.

The next subject taken up was "The Needs of the Schools." The writer thought the first need was qualification for work on the part of the teacher—also the faculty of imparting instruction, and in order to impart moral training the teacher ought to be an earnest christian. Discussion followed upon this subject, participated in by E. G. Walker, Prof. Hathaway, E. A. Wilson and others. A very interesting paper was read by Prof. Hopkins of Clinton, "The Teacher in Society." If the character is right the society will be right. E G Walker thought the teacher ought to lead in society. Prof. Hathaway thought that there ought to be a limit—if it meant to visit pupils in their homes all right, but he questioned the idea of being a leader at all the gatherings of society. A teacher, by attending all places and acting as a leader in society would lose his grip upon his school. One lady teacher whose experience was of this nature said that she never fully recovered her grip upon the first school she taught, after allowing the young men to escort her to all the places of amusement in the district.

All were pleased with the meeting, and pronounced it a success in every way.

The next meeting will be held the third Saturday in January, 1889.

THE FALL OF JERICHO.

LESSON IV, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 28.

Text of the Lesson, Josh. vi. 1-16—Commit Verses 15, 16—Golden Text, Heb. xi. 30—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

When the power of the Lord was seen on behalf of His people, then the hearts of their enemies failed them and there was no spirit left in them (v. 1). Because there is so little of the power of God manifest today on behalf of His people, by reason of their unbelief, therefore the enemies of God are rebellious and despise His people. As soon as the nation had crossed the Jordan and entered the land Joshua caused to be circumcised all who had been born since they had left Egypt, and then they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the month; thus with the reproach of Egypt rolled away, and living in obedience to God, they were ready to go up and possess the land, overcoming all obstacles. They had also eaten of the fruit of the land, the manna having ceased, and thus they were strengthened for victory (v. 9-12). Another most interesting and important incident is recorded in the closing verses of the fifth chapter, as a last preparation for their moving forward. Joshua, by Jericho, sees a man over against him with a drawn sword in his hand, and addresses him with the question: "Art thou for us or for our adversaries?" The reply is: "As captain of the host of the Lord am I now come." Will Joshua submit to be ruled and directed by another, or will he assert his dignity and say that he himself is captain of this host? Blessed servant of the Lord, he falls on his face and worships, and says, in meek subjection and obedience,

1. Jericho was strictly shut up." As if to say, you cannot enter here, nor thus to enter these walls, for We are too strong for you. But there was one house in the city from whose window hung a scarlet thread, and in which was Rahab the harlot, who, by her faith, became one of the Godly Land. (See Heb. xi. 31; Jas. ii. 25-27.) This present evil world is as truly shut up to the vengeance as was that doomed city. Jericho, and there is no escape except as we take refuge in Christ, the Godly Land. Flee, Lot, to the mountain, and escape, lest you be consumed. (See Gen. xix. 15-17, 22-25.) This present evil world is as truly doomed to destruction

CONGRESS IN BRIEF.

WIND-UP OF THE LONGEST SESSION ON RECORD

After Hammering Away for Over Ten Months the Law Makers Get Tired and Conclude to Adjourn. Record of Business Transacted During the Last Days of the Session.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. [illegible]—The senate yesterday put in the time taking tariff. Cockrell pitched with a speech against the senate bill, in which he quoted speeches of Allison and Wilson of Iowa in opposition to high protection. Cockrell read a letter from the commissioner of internal revenue which said the reduction of the duty on alcohol used in the arts would lead to extensive frauds to which Allison replied that England and Germany had not found it that way. Spooner spoke twice, giving reports from English sources in opposition to free sugar. After a brief executive session the senate adjourned.

OUR DAILY BREAD.

HEAVY and sour bread of all kinds has a vast influence through the digestive organs upon the measure of health we enjoy. How important to our present happiness and future usefulness the blessing of good health and a sound constitution are, we can only realize when we have lost them, and when it is too late to repair the damage. Notwithstanding these facts, thousands of persons daily jeopardize not only their health, but their lives, and the health and lives of others, by using articles in the preparation of their food the purity and healthfulness of which they know nothing. Perhaps a few cents may have been saved or it may have been more convenient to obtain the articles used, and the housekeeper takes the responsibility and possibly will never know the mischief that has been wrought. Paterfamilias may have spells of headache, the children may have lost their appetites or look pale; but the true cause is rarely suspected. The weather, the lack of out door air, or some other cause is given and the insidious, poisonous system of adulterated food goes on. Next to the Pure, which should be name of good, sound wheat and not ground too fine, the most [illegible] baking powder, which furnishes the rising properties is of the greatest importance, and of the two we prefer baking powder, and always use the Royal, as we thereby retain the original properties of the wheat, no fermentation taking place. The use of the Royal Baking Powder upon the dough is simply to swell it and form little cells throughout every part. These cells are filled with carbonic acid gas, which passes off during the process of baking.

The Royal is made from pure grape cream of tartar. The action of this acid upon the alkali, carbonate of soda, is so prompt and complete, the gas is all liberated in the stiffest dough, and the bread is ready for the oven as soon as the dough can be mixed and put in shape. The Royal is the only baking powder which does this work perfectly. Alum powders are cheap, low priced, and injurious to health. Alum is a poison, and its use in food is condemned by all the leading chemists of the land as adulterated food.

CATARRH

WILL IGNORE THE TREATY.

A Little Thing Like the One with the Sioux Will Have to Go.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 22.—The negotiations between the Sioux and the government are at an end, and it is more than likely that congress at its next session will amend the Sioux act so as to provide for the opening of the great reservation without any further attempt to gain the consent of the Indians. The increasing demand of the west for more land for the settlers, and the fact that the Sioux can make no progress without the reduction of their reservation has convinced the authorities that public policy demands that a further attempt should be made to the treaties under which the Indians are constantly falling behind in their efforts to prevent the wiping out of the tribal relations.

The Deming brothers are said to have had eight teams plowing for corn last Thursday. They do not expect to plant, just yet.

Neighbors took hold in the old, new country fashion, on the 15th ult., and helped Crowell Eddy to draw lumber for his new barn. On the 24th the barn was raised and is to be finished with like speed.

We were favored with some excellent music at Wm. Witherell's, Friday evening during the Lyceum and after its close. Messrs Simmons and Spaulding had their violins, which with Mrs W's piano made a "concord of sweet sounds" that it was hard to tear one's self away from. Our new president is winning golden opinions.

Mr. and Mrs. Bronson Knapp visited Will Witherell's Friday and stayed to the Lyceum, to the gratification of old neighbors who were thus given opportunity to meet them.

Last Thursday morning Geo. Taylor visited his traps to see if perchance an obliging woodchuck had responded to his offers of hospitality. Instead, he found a badger—pronounced such by old residents, none of the younger generation having been privileged to meet one before. We are told that it is not less than twenty-five or thirty years since one has been seen in this part of the country. The animal was caught on Fay DePuy's land. The boys say if you don't believe a badger is tough, just try to kill one.

The house on Mr. VanDoren's land, occupied by Daniel Preston, burned down on the night of the 24th of Oct The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is thought, may have been caused by a mouse gnawing matches. The flames were first seen by Wm. Witherall, who immediately gave the alarm. Calls for help were heard upward of a mile away and a crowd soon gathered, but too late to save the building. Most of the contents were saved but there was lose enough to greatly inconvenience the family. Mrs. Preston had been ill all day, but forgot it while the fire lasted. It started about eight in the evening so that owing to the early hour, the loss was less than it might have been.

BRITTON BUDGET

We are having beautiful weather just now in Lenawee Co. It is very acceptable.

Richard Adams has had a stroke of apoplexy, but is some what better, and it is hoped he will recover.

Mrs Owen Lenard's child has been quite sick for some days but is convalescent.

I. S. Osborne had a mishap a few days ago: he slipped from a plank and fell between the floor joists into the cellar of the new store building he is putting up. Happily he came thro' it with only a few bruises, and we trust Irve. will be spared to go on with his business here, for we really find him an energetic pusher.

The Osgood Brothers are doing a pretty large business this season in their cider mill. The apple drying business is prospering finely.

The new brick block is going steadily up, with no drawback, except rains of last week. A good strong corps of workmen are pushing forward the work with great energy. The proprietors are themselves great workers, as well as men of business, and they are daily to be found in the thickest of the work, carting brick and sand.

On the 29th inst. the Exelby Hall was crowded to its utmost in the evening, a Prohibition meeting being held, on which occasion Hon. Chas. Fellows, nominee for Congress on the Prohibition ticket, addressed the meeting, giving a very good and interesting speech. Prof. Vandeventer, of Dundee, was present and contributed very largely to the interest of the occasion. He is a good singer, a very fair speaker, a mimic, and remarkably good in the use of the pencil. He gave some very amusing sketches on canvass, illustrative of the issues in the pending contest. The Wolverine Club was present and sang some telling pieces. On the whole, the occasion was one of great interest to all parties present.

Well, Britton is not the worst vile in Michigan. We have prohibitionists, democrats, republicans and some sinners, but the sinners—political I mean—are only playful. Saturday night the wind rose pretty high, and those young, playful sinners hitched the rope of the prohibition pole so as to pull with the wind, but yet it stands all right.

Andrew Riley is nursing a lame back at present.

William Aldrich voted for Tip Harrison in 1840 and he says will vote for his grandson this next election day if his life is spared him.

The school house at this place is a stone structure and has lately been repainted on the outside, which it needed very much, and the outside woodwork should be repainted also.

O. L. Short's new house is receiving its finishing outside coat of paint, and the frame for the hardware store is up.

At our regular session of the M. E. church Sunday School at Tipton, Sunday, Oct. 21, '88, a committee was appointed who adopted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, The all-wise Father in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst our much beloved friend and classmate, Leota I. Lanning, therefore

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in her removal from our midst we have lost a sincere friend and faithful scholar.

Resolved, That we profit by her faith in Christ and will strive to meet her in Heaven.

Resolved, That we sincerely sympathize with the family of the deceased in the great sorrow which the Divine Providence has thought best to afflict them.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased and also be inserted in the weekly papers.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, NOV. 1.

Since the Senate passed their "free trade" measure we don't hear so much talk about the wicked Mills bill.

The damp weather we have had lately has ruffled the feathers of the "free trade" spook very sadly. The Republicans may as well take him in "out of wet" at once.

The party of great moral principle is getting in its work right along now. Last week they stole the subscription list of the Farmers' Union Advocate of Indianapolis and issued a forged imitation of that paper, which contained a lengthy editorial reproaching Cleveland and endorsing Harrison.

The Indianapolis News says: "Taxes are at their worst when they are most indirect, so that the people who pay them do not know they are taxed, and pay them blindly. It would be a civil war in less than a week if we should pass that every time you made a purchase of anything except the necessaries of life a tax gatherer should demand 47 per cent additional, how long would you stand it?"

The London Shipping World says: "Judging from President Cleveland's own words we gather that he is for taking the duty off from raw materials and from articles that go to build up and fit up a ship—a departure which would convert America into a formidable competitor of this country both in ship building and in the carrying trade."

The Providence Journal very coldly calls the attention of Senator Edmunds to the fact that the number of Vermont sheep has decreased almost fifty per cent. during the twenty years of high tariff on wool. As the same journal seems in some doubt as to the cause of this decrease, it is tenderly reminded of the fact that one chairman Mills proposes to place wool on the free list at some time in the future. This, of course, explains why the Vermont sheep went South or died. They had "the de advices" to prove that the bill was on the way.

The high protective tariff enriches the East and impoverishes the West. In 1880 the East had $529 per capita and the West had $507 per capita. In 1886, after twenty-five years of high protection, the East had $1,679 per capita and the West had $475 per capita. The tariff robs the West and enriches the East. And moreover, the tariff does not distribute the wealth fairly among the people. It makes millionaires and tramps. The wealth of the East gathered by the tariff is mostly held by the wealthy. The laborer gets little more than a bare living, and in many cases sadly pinched at that. The tariff robs the West, enriches the East, and makes millionaires and tramps.

Joseph Skeavington of Albion, Ill., who has for many years held, and still holds, the position of Vice-President of the State Board of Agriculture, has come out for Cleveland. He gives his reasons as follows: "I was born a whig of the high protection school. I have voted the Republican ticket because it succeeded the Whig party. But I have had enough of protection. My Republican friends think it strange that I should have left them, because I am the largest sheep grower in Edwards County. But I am not afraid of free wool. If I cannot make sheep raising profitable, I will abandon the business and raise other stock. I don't want some one else to be taxed for my benefit. The duty on wool is legalized robbery plain and simple."

"Whiskey and tobacco," says Mr. William Green, a Republican candidate for the State Senate in Texas, in his address to the voters, "are as necessary as flour and bacon, for where parties use tobacco they crave it, and must have it. Whiskey is needed in all families for medicinal purposes, and a little good whiskey does no hurt any laboring man, and if it was not for this tax you can buy a gallon of good whiskey for 50 cents." Mr. Green further explains that this is the policy of the Republican party as opposed to that of the Democrats, who "want dress goods covered by the Mills bill to come in free of duty so they can clothe their families in good style at small expense." Mr. Green may not be a discreet politician, but he unquestionably understands the Republican platform.

BRAVE WORDS FROM HONEST MEN.

All the arguments advanced in favor of a protective tariff can be reduced to these two propositions—that it tends to build up manufacturing industries and increase the wages of laboring men. The surface argument would seem to sustain both of these propositions, but the more the subject is investigated, the more their absurdity appears. An equitable revenue tariff with incidental protection might have this effect, but facts can be piled up mountain high to prove that our present outrageous war tariff is a curse to both capital and labor. No sane man would argue for a moment that the present tariff benefits the consumer. Then if it be an injury to the wage worker, if, by over stimulation, it draws capital into unproductive channels, and tends to upset and demoralize legitimate trade, why in the name of common sense should it not be wiped out as speedily as possible?

We present to our readers herewith two strong articles on these two points. One is a letter from E. S. Noble, the secretary of the Elk Rapids Iron Company. Elk Rapids is a flourishing town in Northern Michigan on Grand Traverse Bay. Pig iron has always been a conspicuous product of the protective system, and Mr. Noble's letter shows by unanswerable arguments that with the exception of the pig iron manufacturers of America it supports none and injures the world. The other is Cleveland's message, as given in the Free Press.

As I am almost daily in receipt of letters inquiring as to my views on the tariff question and its relation to the interests of people in which I have been engaged for the past fifteen years, I prefer to answer inquiries in the columns of your valuable paper.

As secretary and treasurer of the Elk Rapids Iron Company I have had nearly all the high tariff literature of the Iron and Steel Association freely laid before me, and it is largely due to the arguments put forth by them that my disbelief in the methods proposed by the advocates of tariff for protection is due. These methods have made me bitterly opposed to it, either as a principle or in practice. Practically the effect of protection on the iron business has been to induce parties to build large and expensive plants for the manufacture of pig-iron where neither the geographical location or natural advantages warranted any prospect of success, unless aided by some legal means for enabling their owners to tax their neighbors. As proof of this, in July, 1882, according to the reports of the Iron and Steel Association there were 650 blast furnaces completed, and thirty in process of construction, making a total of 716 furnaces in the United States. In November, 1887, there were but 582 completed and thirty in process of construction, a total of 612, showing that 104 entire plants had gone out of blast and been abandoned in five years—wiped out as effectually as if destroyed by fire or flood. Now any system that induces men to build large and expensive works in a locality where they never would have been built but for artificial stimulus, appears to me to be a bad one and if protection is to be worth anything it must extended so as to enable the most hair brained pilot in maintaining his works in the worst location.

The facts are that while the people of the United States have for a long period of time paid an enormous tax to support the pig-iron industry, at last the tariff is powerless to protect. Furnaces are abandoned because built in bad localities. Workmen are scattered and gone, and the result is disastrous alike to owners and operatives.

The law of the Almighty that no artificial stimulant can be applied to man without a corresponding depression, applies equally to manufacturing, and we have for years been drunken with this seductive beverage called protection, and have now arrived at the period of head and heart ache which follows as surely as does the shadow of the setting sun. The question becomes one of grave magnitude. Does it pay to have a season of debauching with its present delights, and suffer the depression which must come, and has come to the leading manufacturing industries of this nation? The furnace with which I am connected is not one which came under this rule, as the most important question debated at the time of its construction, was: Does the locality possess such advantages as to enable it to run at a profit should the tariff be removed—consequently I do not write from the standpoint of one who has been hurt by the evils which he endures, to such a degree as to dislike a system that once gave him large profits. This company can and does make pig iron at a profit, and has this year shipped over 600 tons of pig iron to England, receiving therefor a price a trifle better than for any sold in this country, and so could they all had they built when sound judgment unbiased by the glamor which the protective system threw over the iron industries of this country dictated.

As to the laborer I say plainly that "the tariff on pig metal was $10 a ton and every cent of it went into my own pocket I would hire my men in the open market as cheap as I could. If I wanted a hand found too stiffing about I should get them cheap. If 100 were wanted and but 50 to be had I should pay them their price. There is in my opinion no more relation between the price of wages and a protective tariff than between it and the transit of Venus. Every manufacturer who is willing to tell the truth knows this. No man buys sugar of Jones for ten cents that he can purchase of Johnson for eight—and the manufacturer does not live who pays more for labor than he will secure it. It's not common sense to suppose he would. If he be philanthropically inclined he will do something very different—endow some institution for the benefit of his workman or their families or establish baths, reading rooms, etc., but never will he pay more for wages than supply and demand compel him to.

The difference in manufacturers in this respect varies only in their having the courage to own or deny it.

In the particular branch of the iron industry in which I am engaged (charcoal pig iron), there were on September 1, 1888, thirty-nine furnaces in blast and forty-seven out; and I state without fear of contradiction, that if the tariff was raised from its present rate of 6.72 per ton to $50 it would not alter the price of charcoal pig iron one penny for the better.

With a substantial reduction of the tariff and an enlarged free list for raw material I believe we could manufacture and sell pig iron to the whole world. I am an American citizen, and not willing to own that with the best ores, best fuel and I believe best brains in the world, we cannot compete with the nations of the earth if allowed, to do so untrammeled by legislation. Think of mortal man assuming to say whether 6.72 or any other sum is a just tax and the proper quantity to lay upon pig iron. Only the Almighty could determine a question so complex, and yet puny legislators with their diminutive intellects assume to say how many dollars and cents shall be a just measure to exact from sixty millions of people to enable less than one hundred and fifteen thousand to engage successfully in the business of making iron.

Manufacturers are asked for frequent contributions to go to the Congress of these United States, to be used as a corrupting fund to bribe indirectly men who should be above bribery to favor this or that manufacturing enterprise. Is it then surprising that young men, instead of embarking in an enterprise with the idea that they should succeed by industry, the selection of a proper location and by making great excellence in the article they produce, come to believe that it is a "wise of the wrist" to ways that bleed dishonor and a low ideal of the methods by which men obtain wealth, that success is to be achieved. I maintain that—excepting only the liquor traffic—there is not such a demoralizing agent at work among our people today as is tariff for protection. As great an evil as I deem it, still it is one of long duration, and its ramifications are so far reaching that had I absolute power to day, I would first fix the tariff where it now is, on the ground that no amount of tinkering or alteration has or ever will make it just or equitable and then reduce it five per cent a year for twenty years, giving people time to adjust themselves and their business to a change of known quantity. Uncertainty is the worst business element in the whole scheme, and every manufacturer knows it. The fact that men bred to occupations which do not fit them for business life, are sent to Congress to dabble in so weighty a business matter, and that each session of Congress has become like a terrible nightmare for fear that this or that article will be put up or down is in itself enough to condemn the whole theory of tariff for protection.

EDWIN S. NOBLE,

Secretary and Treasurer, of the Elk Rapids Iron Company.

Does the present iniquitous war tariff help the wage workers? On this point we submit the following letter from Henry A. Robinson of Detroit. Mr. Robinson was the Labor candidate for Congress in the Detroit district two years ago, and was endorsed by Republicans. He came within a few hundred votes of election in a district that has a normal democratic majority of nearly 4000. He has long been recognized as one of the foremost labor leaders of the State, and is at present a Justice of the Peace in Detroit, elected by labor votes. No man in Michigan is better qualified to speak for the wage workers of the State.

As there have recently been numerous statements in the newspapers concerning my political status in this campaign, it seems to me proper to inform the public, or "whomsoever it may concern," somewhat more definitely regarding it. I have given the national political situation much careful consideration, and have come to the deliberate conclusion that as a consistent friend and advocate of the cause of labor, I cannot support the national Republican party. Loyalty to my honest convictions and a desire to promote the welfare of the masses rather than the classes, compel me to vote for and urge the election of Cleveland and Thurman.

Owing to the message of President Cleveland in December last, and the congressional action of the Democratic party in harmony therewith, the tariff question, long in a state of sluggish repose, has loomed up in such proportions as to dwarf all others, for the time being at least, and it seems to me to be a question of such great importance, and so intimately related to the labor reform movement, that it would be folly, in view of the present situation, not to assist in its rightful solution, even if to do so should involve the laying aside for the present of other questions of greater importance.

For many years I have been aware of the wicked and grievous burdens imposed upon the laboring masses by the protective tariff system, and have hoped that the good work of its reform might be begun under the revision promises that have been so freely indulged in by the Republican party. But such hopes have been in vain. The promises of that party to remove the people of unjust taxation—after it had completed the cheerful service of relieving the rich and powerful from just taxation—have been steadily violated, and the culmination of Republican insincerity, not to say hypocrisy, is found in the Chicago platform of this year which unqualifiedly commits the party to protection as a principle to be perpetuated in American policy—and that committal has been re-echoed and emphasized in Mr. Harrison's letter of acceptance wherein he says that "the protective system is constitutional, wholesome and necessary."

If I owed allegiance to any party as such, these declarations would afford sufficient reason to absolve me. For I believe and approve the statement of Allen G. Thurman that the tariff is a tax, and the utterance of President Cleveland that all unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation.

The wage question, so far as involved in that tariff, is to me a matter of paramount importance in this presidential contest, and, as I do not believe, as is claimed by the advocates of protection, that a protective tariff, which is but another name for a shackle upon commerce, makes high wages, and not being able to believe the precise opposite of the claim, to-wit, that free trade, without restriction or slavery in any form, is the parent of all good things, including good wages, it seems to me to be my duty as well as the duty of all friends of the wage workers and that of all the wage earners themselves to join our forces in this national issue to that of the party which proposes at least to take the first step toward the abolition of the abuses of that tariff system.

The claim of the Republican party that a protective tariff makes and maintains high wages is so absurd that it would provoke a smile on the face of every intelligent workingman were it not that its mendacious audacity were much better calculated to produce a feeling akin to anger. The wages of American labor measured in dollars and cents are higher than those of most other countries, but measured by the amount of products resulting from the intelligence, skill and vim of the workmen, the wider and more complete utilization of the forces of nature through labor saving machinery; and our sparser population and fat lands, they are not higher than in other countries, but they are much lower than they ought to be.

The rate of wages in America is not enhanced a single mill by the tariff, but the purchasing power of wages is heavily reduced by the tariff taxes imposed upon nearly all the necessaries of life. The labor masses need cheaper food, cheaper clothing and cheaper shelter for their families. They need the steadier employment that comes from wider markets and unrestricted trade. They demand the destruction of the tariff protected "trusts and combines." They do not ask nor need free whiskey and free tobacco. They want justice, not charity or taffy.

The Blaine party shows no signs of an intention to concede their reasonable demands. I therefore appeal to every wage-earner to rally to the support of President Cleveland regardless of the threats and menaces of bosses and employees.

"Well, yes, my income is not large, but with you, dear Mrs. Tompkins, to cheer and encourage me, it would soon——"

"Ah," interrupted the widow, with a sigh, "that would be giving hostages to fortune. I am drawing $15 a month pension, and I wouldn't like to give up a dead sure thing for an uncertainty."—Epoch.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the man-eating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

"WHAT is it they put in IVORY SOAP, Doctor, to obtain its healing qualities?"

"No special ingredient is used. It is simply because the IVORY is as nearly pure as it is possible to make soap. Any soap that is as pure as the IVORY will be equally as healing in its effect, but the difficulty is to find a soap so pure. The profession recommend this non-irritating soap simply to cleanse the wound, then nature does the rest. You can readily appreciate what the effect would be if your neck had been washed with an impure and adulterated soap. Avoid colored and highly perfumed soap, for the coloring and perfume are so often used to disguise something the soap should not contain."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

A Crushed Diplomat.

The President Interviewed on the Sackville Letter.

HE CAN NOT DISCUSS THE MATTER,

But Assures the Inquirer That His Course Will Satisfy the People—A Rumor He Has Heard—What Is Thought at the British End of the Line—The Minister's Blunder Universally Recognized—Comments of the Newspapers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The World's Washington correspondent telegraphs an interview which he had with the president at Oak View last evening. The correspondent asked the president if any demand has been made on the British government for the recall of Lord Sackville, and, if not, whether any assurance had been received that Lord Sackville's government will recall him. The president hesitated a moment, and then replied: "I can not tell you at this time just exactly what has been done. This is a matter of the greatest delicacy. It concerns our relations with a foreign power. We must do these things with all due dignity and in accordance with the amenities that must prevail between two governments on friendly terms with each other. There can be no unseemly haste. I say the same thing to you that I told Gen. Collins. The people must be patient, and they must be assured that everything has been done that we consistently could do. I never yet have discussed matters of state with the outside public, nor can I do so now."

The president asked the reporter if "Murchison's" identity had been established. He was told that A. W. Bell, a Pomona, Cala, lawyer, was supposed to be the man. He smiled and it was evident that he entertained the same opinion.

The reporter asked the president his opinion of the propriety of the minister writing such a letter. The president did not care to express an opinion. He was asked what motive probably inspired the letter. He said: "I cannot comprehend how any one with the least intelligence could have failed to understand the full intent of the letter of inquiry."

"By the way," said the president, laughingly, "I have received an intimation that another campaign trick is being prepared with the intention of springing it on the voters of country at the eve of the election. While I did not give much credence to the rumor, yet it would be as well to head it off in advance. I have been informed that it is proposed that I shall receive, a day or two before election, a series of engrossed resolutions, or some other acknowledgment of the sort, purporting to come from some English club of the Cobden order. This testimonial is to come in the nature of a compliment to the administration for its course upon the tariff question."

The president appeared to keenly enjoy the ludicrous features of this rumor, and he went on to observe that unfortunately for the complete success of this enterprise the Sackville-Murchison correspondence would have the effect of rendering the public extremely suspicious of any further attempt to impose upon its credulity.

The president told the reporter that an interview Saturday with Messrs. Collins and O'Reilly was almost wholly in regard to the extradition treaty which was postponed by the action of the recent session of the senate. He added: "The letter of Lord Sackville was only briefly referred to. I brought the matter up myself, and took occasion to assure them that they would have no fault to find with what had been done and the future course to be pursued in the matter. I told Mr. Collins and Mr. O'Reilly that I thought the people hardly regarded me as a coward in these matters, and when the facts in the case should become known the people of this nation would feel satisfied with the course of the state department.

AT THE LONDON END.

British Officials Horrified at Sackville's Blunder—Current Comment.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—It is distinctly stated upon the highest authority that Minister West will at once apply to the foreign office to be relieved from his post at Washington for the purpose of attending urgent private affairs in England. This is an easy way out of the minister's dilemma, but nobody doubts that Lord Salisbury has suggested the remedy. The foreign office people, from Lord Salisbury downward, are horrified at West's breach of etiquette, and no concealment is made of the fact.

Several cablegrams from Lord Sackville have been forwarded to Hatfield house admitting and regretting his having written the obnoxious letter. Telegrams have also been forwarded to the premier from Secretary Bayard urging, in view of the approaching presidential election, the imperative necessity for a change in person of the British representative at Washington in order to calm the popular excitement. Minister Phelps and his wife proceeded to Hatfield house Saturday. Mr. Phelps and Lord Salisbury held a long conference in the library immediately after the former's arrival. Mr. Phelps enlarged upon the necessity of prompt action, and made a special point that by treating Murchison as a British subject entitled to his advice, despite the fact that he had stated that he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, Lord Sackville had disregarded and violated the understanding of 1871, when Secretary Fish obtained England's recognition of the American doctrine of naturalization. Lord Salisbury admitted that this was a most serious point of view of Lord Sackville's conduct.

Hatfield house is surrounded by English and American special newspaper reporters who persistently dog the movements of the premier and Minister Phelps. The visit of Mr. and Mrs. Phelps to Hatfield house was arranged long ago to take place somewhat later than the present time, but the Sackville incident having occurred Mr. Phelps took advantage of his engagement with the premier to enjoy his hospitality, and went almost immediately to Hatfield to announce the conduct of the British minister to Washington.

The Times says: "It seems certain that the Americans have taken a step to render it impossible for Lord Sackville to remain in Washington. We are not prepared to censure Lord Sackville. A British minister, whether in Washington or elsewhere, must be an English gentleman, and may be forgiven if he is not up to the tricks of American politicians."

The Standard says: "America has not asked the recall of Lord Sackville, but has taken a step little short of that."

The Telegraph says: "Nothing can excuse the incontinence of Lord Sackville's pen except his transparent good faith and candor. He cannot, however, be allowed to embroil the two nations," and adds: "It is not his business to guide American citizens, whether English born or otherwise, in their political acts. We ought to have suspected the trap and left the letter unanswered."

TAKE CARE.

Take care of the pennies.
For, know, they are seeds,
No matter how few they may be;
If prudently planted,
In time they will grow
To a thrifty and beautiful tree.

Take care of the minutes,
The jewels of time,
Life's sweet opportunities given;
The safer we keep them,
The brighter they will shine
Oh, waste not one gem of the seven.

Take care, as you journey
Along the highway,
Good care of your strength and your health;
Without them in vain
Are the beauties of earth,
In vain all the blessings of wealth.

Take care of your honor,
Your name and your fame.
Deal justly with men as you go,
And reach out your hand
To the poor and the sad,
Who suffer so much here below.

Take care of your footsteps
And which way they tend,
Press steadily on to the goal;
Take care that you live right
And strive for the best,
And God will take care of your soul.

OUR NEXT DOOR NEIGHBOR.

A Recent Writer's Good Word for the Mexicans.

In a book on Mexico, by Mary Elizabeth Blake and Margaret F. Sullivan, Mrs. Blake combats several beliefs regarding Mexicans.

The chief of these is as to the indolence of the common people. This she insists is an absolute mistake.

"They are not only ready for employment, but anxious to procure it. They work with an earnestness and honesty that shame our slovenly Northern laborers, whose chief anxiety seems to be to accomplish the smallest amount in a given time. Digging in the fields, carrying water, bearing burdens, the Mexicans work without ears, eyes or concern for aught save the object in hand; they spare themselves no more than if they were burros or horses."

Again she says:

"There is something at once inspiring and dreadful in the intensity with which these men work. Where or how the fallacy concerning their indolence has gained ground it is hard to understand. To see a Mozo climbing five or six flights of stairs, and traversing acres of corridors at a swift pace with a heavy Saratoga trunk on his back, or to meet four laborers rushing through the city streets with a Chickering piano on their shoulders, is a sight to which we are becoming so much used that familiarity robs it of its first painfulness."

Other notions Mrs. Blake endeavors to refute are that the Mexicans themselves are dirty and dishonest, and their towns filthy.

She admits that the standard of personal cleanliness is not high in towns where water has to be dipped with a gourd from a basin or a stone fountain with scores awaiting their turn, or bought from a carrier. But in places where water is plentiful, the population is constantly bathing or washing clothes.

The cities lack proper drainage and good sanitary administration. Yet every city, of any size, in the Republic, is swept each morning with whisk brooms and dust pans.

As for the honesty of the common people with whom travelers are brought into contact, the party had so many remarkable proofs of it, that Mrs. Blake declares with enthusiasm that "the lost art of honesty seems to have been found again in Mexico."

The Latest Tornado

The surprising manner in which the country is being swept by the great discovery of Dr. Miles for curing the many diseases that originate in the nerves is astonishing all who know the facts. The Restorative Nervine a brain and nerve food, sold by Baker & Hall cures weakness, want of appetite, exhaustion, debility from overwork, care, worry and dissipation. It takes the place of stimulates, opiates, chloral, etc., and cures all nervous troubles. It contains no morphine, opium or dangerous drugs.

The Population of Tecumseh.

We would advise all not to neglect the opportunity to call on us and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial size free. Respectfully. THE TARIFF AT HOME.

In the campaign of 1880, a few days before the election, Gen. Hancock wrote a letter to a friend who had solicited his views on the tariff question, stating that he considered the tariff a local issue. This letter was severely criticized at the time and many good judges attributed Gen. Hancock's defeat thereto. Horace Greeley, who was par excellence the ablest champion of protection in this country during the war period, took the same position in the Greeley campaign. In the light of recent events it must be conceded that there is much truth in this theory. Local interests to a great extent shape men's views on the tariff. It can also be said with equal truth that the tariff is more of a business than a political question. It was this sentiment entertained by party leaders on both sides, that led to the establishment of the tariff commission in 1882. The truth of it is, the tariff ought to be adjusted on business principles. It should not be kicked about like a football in the turmoil of a political campaign, but should be calmly and dispassionately considered in the committee rooms and halls of legislation, and then revised and adjusted on a business basis. Extreme and radical [illegible] business [illegible] on a cash and [illegible] trade basis [illegible] report. We may and should [illegible] business. This would [illegible] many lines of industry and [illegible] that. On the other hand to revise or [illegible] extravagantly [illegible] raise hard [illegible] point which would [illegible] share of [illegible] trade and produce national bankruptcy.

At the outbreak of the war the internal revenue system was established, the tariff was enlarged and the duties doubled up to raise the immense revenues made necessary by the rebellion. No one objected to excessive taxation then, because it was necessary to sustain the government. Two or three times during the war duties were raised, and in 1867 the tariff was adjusted practically upon its present basis. Since then a large portion of the internal revenue taxation has been remitted. The tax on manufactures, which yielded 125 millions in one year, has been wiped out. The tax on incomes that yielded 72 millions yearly has been abolished. The tax on receipts of railroad companies, taxes on express and insurance companies, taxes on bank capital, bank deposits and bank checks are all gone. And these taxes were paid by the rich. Internal revenue taxes to the amount of $320,717,187 have been abolished since 1867. But with a few trifling exceptions the war tariff duties, paid by the toiling millions, by the great army of consumers, still remain intact. The exorbitant taxes on clothing and fuel, furniture, crockery and glassware, carpets, hosiery and underclothing, dress goods for ladies wear, lumber and building materials, farm tools and implements of all kinds, are still taken from the pockets of the people beyond the needs of the government, thus glutting the treasury with idle capital, producing stagnation in business, robbing consumers of their earnings, plastering our farms with mortgages, curtailing the laborer's chances for work and reducing his wages, fostering monopolies and trusts and throttling legitimate trade. These are some of the evil effects of our present iniquitous war tariff system.

We purpose in this article to examine the effects of the present tariff in its local bearings. How does it effect our own citizens? Does it benefit or injure the voters of Tecumseh and the farmers of the adjoining towns? And this is the entire question which appeals to us. Neither patriotism nor good sense requires the voters of Tecumseh to sacrifice their own business interests at the dictation of some wealthy nabob in Lowell, or Pittsburg or Chicago. This tariff controversy is properly a local issue, it is properly a business issue. Let us examine it coolly and calmly as business men, and with reference to our own local welfare. In what follows we shall mention the names of several of our well-known residents, not to draw invidious comparisons against them, but simply to enable us to more clearly and forcibly illustrate our position.

The foundry and machine works of H. Brewer & Co. is the chief manufacturing industry of Tecumseh. How does the war tariff affect them? It increases the price of iron, the raw material of their business, and coal, their chief item of fuel, beyond all reasonable figures, thus increasing the price of every machine they sell. With free raw materials they could cheapen the retail price of their machines and largely increase their yearly output. They would make as much or more profit than now, and furnish more employment to laboring men. A revision of the tariff in the direction of free raw materials would be a positive business advantage to them, which would be far reaching and lasting in its effects.

The flouring mills of Wm. Hayden and Heck Bros. come next in importance. The war tariff does not help them a farthing. Flour is not protected by a tariff duty. They sell their flour across the Atlantic, in competition with the flouring mills of the whole world. The tariff adds to the cost of all lumber and machinery used in their mills, thus increasing their investment and running expenses, while it adds not a cent to the retail price of their product. The tariff largely increases their family expenses. It fixes the cost of their purchases, but the world's market pays the price of their flour. Notwithstanding this outrageous discrimination against them the flouring mill industry is one of the most prosperous in the country. Did you ever hear of a strike among the employees of a flouring mill? We never did. Did you ever hear of any trouble between the Knights of Labor and a flouring mill owner? We never did. How grossly unjust then is a tax policy which robs and plunders the flouring mill owners of the Northwest to enrich a few iron and steel men down in Pittsburg.

Temple, McClure & Co.'s lumber business would be benefitted beyond [illegible] by a proper revision of the tariff. Lumber, glass, paints and all other building materials are now [illegible] taxed. Place these raw products on the [illegible] and reduce the tariff tax fifty per cent, and it would stimulate the building trade all over the country. A building revival would add thousands of dollars yearly to their business and give employment to numbers of workmen in the building trades. The men. Agers of the lumber states would not accumulate as many mill logs annually, that is true, but can any sane man deny that the people at large would not be immeasurably happier and richer?

Henry Smith's paper mill occupies an anomalous position. Straw, the raw material of his business is untaxed, but the tariff gives him a protective duty on manufactured paper. If Mr. Smith took the usual superficial ten-year-old boy view of this question, he would be a high tariff man, but he is a warm advocate of Cleveland's re-election. He has been engaged in the business long enough to discover this fact—that any industry built up under an artificial stimulus is liable to grow too fast. There are too many straw paper mills in the country now. Excessive profits produce over-production, and this over-production when it comes neutralizes all the advantages of the tariff.—What he needs now is a tariff that will reduce the living expenses of himself and his workmen, and not stimulate the building of new paper mills, when the business is already overdone. Under a proper revenue tariff his business would soon adapt itself to the new order of things and settle down on a far healthier basis than now.

John R. Hialey's carriage industry is but little effected by the tariff, but that little is a positive injury. Free raw materials would cheapen his stock and a low tariff would reduce his family expenses.

A. J. Palmer and J. H. Potter both control a small furniture manufacturing business. The present high tariff hampers them continually. One of the greatest evils of our present tariff is the fact that it builds up big monopolies in large cities and freezes out small concerns in small villages.—What these two industries need is free raw materials and fair play. Under a decent revenue tariff they could increase their business four fold in four years time.

When we consider the interests of our retail merchants the situation becomes so plain as to hardly admit of serious discussion. Any policy which would relieve the farmers and village consumers of the burden of excessive taxation now resting upon them, would give a wonderful impetus to the trade of every business man on Chicago street. The dry goods merchant, the hardware dealer, the furniture seller, the grocer, the banker, the clothier, the printer, would all find their business booming. Money would be more plenty and customers would feel more liberal. The depression inflicted by the present outrageous war tariff would be lifted and the new, fresh blood of a business revival would course through all the arteries of retail trade.

Charles A. McNeil is a mechanic in Brewer's foundry. He is one of the most efficient hands in that shop, a skillful workman, and a steady, industrious man. He rises in the morning and puts on his flannel shirt taxed 55 per cent, his trousers taxed 57 per cent, his coat taxed 57 per cent, and his shoes taxed 30 per cent. He fills his stove taxed 30 per cent, with coal taxed 67 per cent, and kindles a fire for breakfast, that is, unless he permits his wife to get up and kindle the fire, which is not probable. He then washes his face and hands in a bucket taxed 55 per cent, with soap taxed 20 per cent, and wipes on a towel taxed 35 per cent. By this time his wife, who is a model housekeeper, has his breakfast ready. He eats his morning meal from a plate taxed 50 per cent, with a knife and fork taxed 30 per cent. His coffee is bought at a fair price, as coffee is now admitted duty free, costing about half what it did 15 years ago. But he sweetens it with sugar taxed 82 per cent, and seasons his potatoes with salt taxed 40 per cent. His flour, potatoes, vegetables, fruits, etc., are purchased at a fair price, for the farmers of Lenawee county sell their crops in the markets of the world, and the miller has no tariff duty for his "protection." After breakfast he draws on his dilapidated overcoat taxed 60 per cent, puts on his hat taxed 65 per cent, and goes to his "protected labor." His wife cannot indulge in the luxury of domestic help. She does her own housework, clad in a woolen dress taxed 60 per cent, stockings taxed 40 per cent, and shoes taxed 30 per cent, and when she goes down town shopping she wears a hat taxed 30 per cent. During the afternoon she works on a pair of pants for the boy, with a sewing machine taxed 45 per cent, using needles taxed 25 per cent, thread taxed 55 per cent, and scissors taxed 45 per cent. When the husband returns home at night he partakes of a frugal meal and sits down to enjoy a brief rest at the family fireside. He sits in a chair taxed 35 per cent, reads his copy of the HERALD printed on paper taxed 45 per cent, with ink taxed 30 per cent, from type taxed 35 per cent, on a press taxed 30 per cent, and before retiring peruses a chapter in the Bible which is taxed 25 per cent. He retires on an iron bed taxed 45 per cent and covers his body with a sheet taxed 42 per cent, and a blanket taxed 70 per cent, and drops to sleep dreaming of the great blessings which our beneficent war tariff confers on the laboring man. And when his days on earth are numbered, his loving wife, if she can pinch a few dollars from the luxuries which the war tariff has bestowed on the family, will mark his grave with a marble headstone taxed 50 per cent. She can have the satisfaction, however, of covering it with sod free of duty, for God's green grass is untaxed. Mr. McNeil is a fair type of at least one third of the inhabitants of Tecumseh. In the light of these figures, to maintain that the present iniquitous war tariff is the least benefit to a wage worker, directly or indirectly, is an insult to common sense and a libel upon intelligence.

Met Conklin owns a fine farm just outside of the village limits. Behold what manifold blessings this war tariff confers on him. On clothing and household articles he is taxed as liberally as our friend, Chas. McNeil. Like the rain from heaven, the tariff showers its blessings on both the just and the unjust. It serves the farmer and wage worker exactly alike. As farmers are always interested in the weather, Farmer Conklin will brush aside his 40 per cent taxed curtains and take an early look out of his 35 per cent taxed window sash and 93 per cent taxed window glass to see how the free air—and the only thing free that he can see—looks and promises for the day. If his digestion is a little unsettled he regulates it by a 40 per cent taxed draught of magnesia from a 40 per cent taxed glass; or he may prefer a dose of 189 per cent taxed castor oil, sweetened with 82 per cent taxed sugar, mixed with a 42 per cent taxed spoon. He then takes his 50 per cent taxed pocket knife to clean his finger nails, takes up his 54 per cent taxed wool hat and is ready for a survey of his manor. If he is a prudent observer, he takes a survey of his kitchen and inspects his 40 per cent taxed oilcloth, his 58 per cent taxed crockery, his 40 per cent taxed stove and pans, his 45 per cent taxed tinware, his 25 per cent taxed broom, his 35 per cent taxed buckets, his 45 per cent taxed jars containing his 113 per cent taxed rice, his 35 per cent taxed tables and chairs. The kitchen inspected as the fountain of the farmer's health, Farmer Conklin next steps out on his 17 per cent taxed porch floor, by opening his 26 per cent taxed door latch, airs himself under the protection of his 17 per cent taxed shingles, and if storm confronts him he wisely takes up his 59 per cent taxed umbrella and starts for a survey of the farm. He inspects his 35 per cent taxed wagons, looks to the 54 per cent taxed shoes on his horses, and the 76 per cent taxed nails in them, takes a peep at his 44 per cent taxed chorns, sees that his 40 per cent taxed saw, his 63 per cent taxed files and his 50 per cent taxed screws are all in place. He inquires about his 39 per cent taxed harness, puts his 35 per cent taxed wheelbarrow in place, and carefully examines his 45 per cent taxed reapers, his 47 per cent taxed plows, his 45 per cent taxed harrows, his 45 per cent taxed rakes, about which time he pulls out his 35 per cent taxed watch attached to a 60 per cent taxed guard, and discovers that it is supper time. The farmer's taxes never cease. He is literally taxed from the cradle to the grave, beginning with a 40 per cent taxed diaper and ending with a 35 per cent taxed coffin.

The advocates of a high tariff tell us it builds up a "home market" for the farmer. How in canopy does it help the home market of a Tecumseh farmer to saddle him with excessive taxes for the benefit of a manufacturer in Lowell, Mass.? The home market of a Tecumseh farmer is Tecumseh, not Chicago. The farms of Tecumseh cannot all be moved out into the suburbs of Chicago. This protective policy which kills small towns, and freezes out small lines of industry, is a double injury to the farmer. It taxes him to death on what he buys and ruins his home market on what he has to sell.

Is there a single voter in Tecumseh who is not positively injured, in a business and financial sense, by the present war tariff? NOT ONE.

GOOD WORDS FOR WILLARD STEARNS.

S. W. Beakes of Ann Arbor, the editor of the Argus, and the present mayor of that city who edited the Daily Record in Adrian for two years, pays the following compliment to Willard Stearns. People in Lenawee County who now Mr. Stearns intimately will say that this estimate of his character is not overdrawn in the least.

WILLARD STEARNS, our candidate for congress, is a man of whom we can speak from personal knowledge. For over two years the editor of the ARGUS had an office in the same building with Mr. Stearns and was thrown into almost hourly contact with him. Hence we can speak of what we know, when we say that Willard Stearns is in every way a fitting man to send to congress. He is a level headed man, an original thinker, who is quick to comprehend and one who can master details. He is an economist, such as the halls of congress stand greatly in need of. He is a reputable man, who stands well with his fellow citizens, a man of honor, a man of integrity, a man of undoubted ability, a man with great powers of physical endurance, and an aggressive man, who is apt to accomplish much for his district, a charitable man, who responds liberally according to his means to the needs of his fellow men. He is a man which no corporation can use as a tool, a man which no clique can hoodwink. Remember these words come from one who knows him intimately. No amount of mud slinging by political opponents who find their guns spiked, can sully in one particular, Mr. Stearns' reputation among those who know him. Mr. Stearns', if sent to congress will make his mark there. He will do honor to this congressional district, he will give its voice more weight than it has had. We hope that every man who reads these lines will cast a vote for Willard Stearns for congress.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 10, 1887.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co—Gentlemen:—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience, have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.

Yours Truly,

The annual catalogue of the Michigan Agricultural college is at hand. It shows an attendance of 312 students in all the classes, the freshman class alone numbering 106. This institution has gained wonderfully in popularity and strength since Pres. Willitts took the helm.

A decoy letter, similar to the trick played on Lord Sackville West, was sent by one John Hoover from Pomona, Cal., to Gen. Clinton B. Fisk. The General however was too old a bird to be caught with chaff. Chairman Dickey has now made the letter public, accompanied with a ringing rejoiner.

The following pupils have not been absent during the last half of fall term in dist. No. 9, Franklin, closing Oct. 20, '88. Emily Wisner, Estelle Wisner, Dewey Wisner, Roy Rundell, Artie Brighton, Thurza Larzelere, Lulu Witherell, Cora Swift, Alta Bradley, Lena Sayers, Harry Marshall, Clara Welch, Matie Welch.
M. Nell Parker, Teacher.

WEST FRANKLIN FARMERS' CLUB.

Quite a number assembled at the residence of Mr. F. E. Bradley, Oct. 19th.

As Secretary Wilson was absent, Willis Smith was chosen sec. pro tem. Owing to the absence of those who were to assist in the exercises, the following hastily prepared program was rendered:

Song—W. M. Crittenden.

A fine temperance piece which related how a wife attempted to rescue her drinking husband from ruin by visiting the saloon to which he was in the habit of going, was well delivered by Miss Nell Parker.

A recitation, entitled "Kate Ketchem," which showed the folly of flirting, by Blanche Crittenden.

Paper, "Raising of Small Fruits," by F. E. Bradley, who described well the planting, care and management of these luxuries.

After recess, Mr. Cooper opened the discussion by saying that fruit is delicious, healthful, entertaining and profitable. He thought that Spring planting of trees was the best.

Chas. Rexford then favored us with some fine mouth-organ solos Nellie Smith playing the accompaniment.

The meeting then adjourned to meet in four weeks at the residence of W. M. Crittenden, at which time the following program will be given:

Music—F. Grey.
Dec.—Elmer Wilson.
Dec.—C. D. Crittenden.
Charade—Gertie Wheaton.
Music—F. Grey.
Essay—F. M. Camburn.
Recess.
Discussion of above paper.
All are cordially invited.

About 60 of Mrs. Harding's friends made herself and family a very pleasant surprise last Monday evening. Instead of the usual custom of serving refreshments a pound party was substituted which was enjoyable to both giver and receiver. Thanks.

There will be a special train run to Adrian Monday night, Nov. 5. Train will leave Chicago st. 6 o'clock standard time, return at 11. Fare for round trip 40c. Tickets for sale at A. E. Kennedy's, Lilley House and of executive com. "Stearns will be there."

The young ladies' Missionary society of the Presbyterian church will meet Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The meeting will take form of a special thanksgiving service with exercises appropriate to such an occassion. A cordial invitation is extended to any who wish to be present.

All Democrats owning horses are requested to take part in the torchlight parade at Adrian next Monday evening. Let there be a full turnout to give Willard Stearns the biggist send off ever witnessed in Lenawee county. The horsemen will fall into line behind the Cleveland and Thurman club of Tecumseh. Every man having a torch lamp must take it along.

Uncle Tom's Cabin drew a full house Monday night as that play always does in Tecumseh. The company is a strong one all round, and the play as presented by them is replete with new features, while it is shorn of several old ones. The only improvement that we recommend is the cutting of about half of the original George Harris' speech.

Dr. Bennett will be at the Lilley House, Monday, Nov. 5th, and you have all proven he does what he claims. No man in Michigan gives such universal satisfaction as he in curing (not helping) chronic complaints, asthma, hay fever, dyspepsia, head and back aches. They go as the winds never more returning. Piles, fistula, no matter what complication, cures then without knife, ligature, or burning. Go and see him when here.

The battle will soon be over and we are glad of it.

Bert McNair arrived home from Washington last Monday and will remain until after election.

C. A. Slayton and wife have gone to Chicago this week, and will probably visit Minneapolis before their return.

Mrs. N. M. Sutton went to Detroit Monday for a two weeks' visit with her daughters, Mrs. Stoepel and Mrs. Wilson.

If you want to hear the finest oratorical effort of the campaign go and hear John E. Russell at the opera house Saturday evening.

The Republicans will hold their final rally next Monday evening at the opera house, when they will listen to an address from Gen. Geo. Spaulding of Monroe. The General is an entertaining speaker and will doubtless draw a good house.

A grand Republican pole raising took place at Evans lake last week. A band of seven little girls borrowed implements of the neighbors, cut a pole 35 feet long and dragged it half a mile to the school house, where they placed it in a perpendicular position. The little girls then hurraheed for Harrison and Morton. Hurrah for the little politicians.

In our last issue we called attention to the sweepstakes premium at the Vermont State Fair being given to butter colored with Thatcher's Orange butter Color. This is the case at hundreds of State and County fairs this year, and no butter maker can be sure of the highest standard without it. If you are not now using it try it at once.

The Democrats will hold their final rally at the opera house, Tecumseh, Saturday evening, Nov 3. Hon. Jno. E. Russell, the eloquent and logical farmer statesman, and M. C. from Massachusetts, will address the people of Tecumseh upon pending issues. As a wool grower and woolen manufacturer a discussion of the wool question in its relation to proposed tariff legislation will be given.

The Republicans will give their candidate for congress, Capt. E. P. Allen, a welcome next Saturday afternoon. The meeting will be held at the opera house at 2 o'clock. Voters cannot gain too much information on the tariff question, and we hope the Captain will be greeted with a good audience. People will hear a candid, gentlemanly speaker whether they agree with his sentiments or not.

The HERALD has endeavored to give in its news columns, a candid and faithful report of all political meetings that have been held here during the campaign. The Republicans will hold two more rallies and the Democrats one, before election day, but as election will intervene before our next issue we shall not attempt any extended report of these meetings. The contest will be decided before next Thursday.

The pupils of the 12th grade, in addition to the work in general English are expected to prepare two productions during the year and deliver them in the presence of the high school in connection with the morning exercises. The production may be an oration, essay or speech of five minutes duration and under certain circumstances a recitation. The appointments are as follows: Edyth Woodward, Oct. 5, Feb. 8; Royal DeWolf, Nov. 2, Feb. 15; Nellie Heesen, Nov. 9, Mar. 1; May Woodard, Nov. 16, Mar. 7; Mattie Hastings, Nov. 22, Mar. 15; Anna Hialey, Nov. 30, Mar. 22; Loana Davidson, Dec. 7, Mar. 29; Fred McNair, Dec. 14, Apr. 11; Fred Boyd, Dec. 20, Apr. 19; Anna Bailey, Jan. 11, Apr 26; May Morrison, Jan. 18, May 3; Herbert Baker, Jan. 25, May 9; Lelma Stewart, Jan. 31, May 17.

Tuesday afternoon about two o'clock class No. 1 of the Baptist S. S. might have been seen wending their way up VanBuren st. northwest to the residence of W. S. Morse, where without ceremony they entered. One of the foremost ladies being armed with a shingle, we were permitted to listen to the patter of the shingle not very warm while Mrs. Morse extended the hand of welcome to her friends as one after another with loaded hands they filed in. After the surprise and happy greetings were over and all were seated, a package containing mementos from the class was laid in Mrs. Morse's lap. The afternoon was spent in pleasant converse until the supper hour arrived, when all partook of a bountiful repast prepared by the ladies. It was an enjoyable surprise, being Mrs. Morse's birthday.

THE UNTERRIFIED DEMOCRACY.

A ROUSING WELCOME ACCORDED TO WILLARD STEARNS LAST THURSDAY EVENING.

Another Big Rally on Tuesday Evening—Grand Torch-light Parade and an Eloquent Address by Ex-Senator Jones.

The Tecumseh Democrats gave their candidate for congress, Willard Stearns, a generous and hearty welcome last Thursday evening. The Cadet Club came out early in the evening and made a beautiful display as they marched up and down Chicago street. The crowd then gathered in the Opera House filling the large auditorium completely. At exactly 8:15 o'clock Mr. Hayden, President of our club introduced Mr. Stearns and he gave an elaborate exposition of the issues now pending and held the audience until ten o'clock. He made a splendid impression. His speech was a plain statement of facts and figures appealing to the candid judgment and not to the prejudices of his hearers. It will make votes for him in this vicinity. After clearly explaining the difference existing between the internal revenue system and the tariff or tax levied on imports he gave a most lucid analysis of the latter system. Below we give a short synopsis of his speech:

It is admitted by all that we must have a reduction of revenue to eliminate the evil of a constantly increasing surplus. Accordingly the great question and the leading issue of to-day, and of this campaign is how shall we reduce it? Which class of our numerous revenues shall be cut off? I don't wish to be understood as saying that the Republican party is a whiskey party, but their platform says they will take the tax off from liquor before one iota of our protection system is touched. This does not prove that the party is a whiskey party, but that their policy would cheapen the price of whiskey and tobacco rather than the necessaries of life. Their policy would cut off an absolute revenue to our government, placed on pernicious luxuries, and favoring no class, and leave the same or higher taxes on manufactured goods through war and peace. The revenue resulting from duty on imports is about 225 millions a year on the necessaries of life. Can we cut this down with fairness and benefit to the people at large? The Mills bill puts the raw materials on the free list, that we may cheapen these commodities, in which there is comparatively little labor involved, and give our manufacturers the benefits enjoyed by all others of the world—free raw materials. It also reduces the duty on woolen goods; etc., making in all a reduction of about 55 millions. The Republicans call this free trade, and claim it will ruin our country. Why, then, have they been compelled to leave their platform and bring out a bill for larger reduction, but chiefly on luxuries?

A high tariff may not bring one cent of revenue to the government, if high enough to prevent importation. The manufacturer here has the opportunity to control prices by combination, and this tariff, and also the price put on by combines is paid by the consumer, not to the government. How often is this illustrated in buying the commodities of life. Even the Adrian Times discovered that the price of type was to be advanced by a trust and knowing that a prohibitive tariff allowed this, wondered who would be the farseeing statesman to remove the tariff on this article. But why free type and not a reduction on tools, on clothes and on the other necessaries as well?

He gave some interesting statistics on the wool question and in conclusion briefly alluded to the contemptible personal attacks upon him, which completely disarmed his critics. It is no flattery to say that the speech throughout was a fine effort and that he helped both himself and his party here in Tecumseh.

THE RALLY TUESDAY EVENING.

The meeting was one of the most yet held by any party during the campaign. The C. & T. Cadet Club were out in full force headed by the City Band and covered themselves with glory. The boys have been well drilled and keep step to the music like veteran soldiers. An extra train came up from Adrian with several hundred torch bearers and the Adrian band. The time-tormed at F. R. Kyes' blacksmith shop, marched down Potta watamie as far as Oneida street, up Chicago street to Union and thence countermarched down Chicago street. Red fire and Roman candles were sent forth in profusion. It was by all odds the finest torch light parade seen in Tecumseh since the Tilden campaign. The people were late in gathering at the Opera House on account of the parade, and it was after nine o'clock when Ex Senator Jones was introduced. The Senator is a man of powerful physique and a born orator. For nearly an hour and a half he held the audience, which packed the Opera House, with a beautiful and logical speech in favor of tariff reform and tax reduction. No abstract can do justice to the speech, but we will present a few of the points he made.

Two great parties to-day are before the American people claiming their suffrages. I have nothing to say in regard to the personal merits of the gentlemen who represents the Republican party, with whom I served in the Senate. We have a standard bearer in this great contest of whom we may be proud. There is one peculiarity that has distinguished the Democrat party over all other parties in this country, and that is it has always been in the habit of calling things by the right name. It has never lived by subterfuge or by fraud. It has never called taxation protection, and it is the only political organization that has ever existed on this continent for a hundred years that has never changed its name or personel. This contest on the part of the Democracy is to reduce the burdens of taxation. It costs more to support the government of this continent than it does Europe with its immense army and navy. Why should it be higher? It is because this country at the present time is honey-combed with monopolies. It is because there is in the United States certain classes eating the life-blood out of the people without their being conscious of it who silently run the government while the people imagine they control it. This government to-day, as it is demonstrated in many acts of Congress, does not represent the people or do justice to the United States. You have a president who has struggled most manfully for the people. You have seen now he has been defamed simply because he has exercised the great duties of his office for the benefit of the people, to preserve their rights and to protect their freedom. Because he seeks to regard the interests of the honest soldiers in the land, when he puts his signature to the pension bill, he has been misrepresented.

Now when it comes to this great question of taxation, in the exercise of his constitutional privilege he sent a message to Congress setting forth his views on taxation. He pointed to the surplus, to the hundred millions in the treasury, a standing temptation to fraud, because you know that when there is an extraordinary surplus in the treasury it is almost impossible to conduct an honest government. He recommended the process of reducing taxation upon the burdened mass of the people. Was that a great crime? Every article that is imported into the United States comes here either directly or indirectly in exchange for your commodities that are sent away. It has been ascertained beyond a shadow of doubt that the amount of trade during a series of years between two nations will no more than balance itself, and the goods that are shipped to the United States are paid for by the surplus of our farms. The proceeds of the goods you send out pay for the goods that come in. We can't consume more than one-third of our cotton crop. People are compelled to seek a foreign market for the other two thirds. Why don't they take it to New England and sell it? It is because the productive power of this country exceeds its consuming power. The productive power of the United States to-day, even under a protective tariff, exceeds the consumption annually one thousand million of dollars and you have to send the bulk of it to England. You want an economical government, you want to watch that treasury in Washington the same as you do in Lansing.

AN OPEN LETTER—FAIR PLAY.

EDITOR HERALD:—

Dear Sir—In your issue of Oct. 18th, you gave some valuable statistics concerning the tariff question and its relative effect upon the inhabitants of the second congressional district. This computation and statistical information was under the head of "The Congressional Contest," the contestants being Capt. Allen and Willard Stearns. In your summing up of the matter you state that the people of this district lose by the present rate of tariff taxation $4 per capita or $640,000 in the district. We are not prepared to dispute your statistics or refute your conclusions, so we assume they are correct.

Now will you please state to your readers that there is another candidate in this contest, upon an entirely different issue, which we consider of vastly more importance to the voters and inhabitants in this district than the tariff question. That issue is the temperance question. The loss to this district through the present or proposed tariff schedule dwindles into insignificance compared to the loss entailed by the liquor traffic. Will you ascertain if possible the number of gallons of intoxicants drank in this district, and the cost per gallon? Compute if you can the number of crimes committed by those who were under the influence of intoxicants with their cost of trial and punishment. Gather the statistics of pauperism and insanity caused by strong drink; compute, if you can, the loss of time and manhood spent in saloons, and sum up this table by giving each county's proportion of boys that must be furnished to fill up the ranks of the 75,000 drunkards that perish annually? We would ask you to tell us of the heart aches and misery of the helpless women and children, but these are never known only to Him who watcheth over his people. The contestants you mentioned in your late issue make no mention of this issue or the importance of suppression of the traffic. Mr. Allen ridicules the party which advocates these principles, yet courts Prohibition votes. Mr. Stearns thinks the matter of too little importance for his consideration.

There is a great difference of opinion as to the benefits to be derived to the inhabitants of our country by the adoption of a high protective tariff, low tariff or free trade, but there can be no difference of opinion as to the fact that the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is a curse to our country. Our people are agitated over the thought that $60,000,000 surplus has been collected, but they lose sight of the fact that $900,000,000 is paid out annually for drink and expense of this traffic, 12 65-100 gallons to every man, woman and child. High license or high tax only increases the sale as shown by statistics, for dealers must sell more to pay this tax. We ask the voters of this district to consider well before casting their ballot. "The first concern of all good government is the purity and sobriety of the home." The highest protection is the protection of our children. Protect the boys before you protect the sheep.
CHARLES M. FELLOWS.

HARRISON TALKS TO RAILROADERS.

Heavy Campaign Work Done by the Hoosier Statesman—Don Dickinson Makes a Bitter Personal Attack on Blaine—Disputing the Maine Man's Figures—The "Plumed Knight" Addresses Two Audiences—Notes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—It was announced that President and Mrs. Cleveland and party would leave Secretary Whitney's mansion on Fifth Avenue shortly after 2 Saturday to view the parade. Some thousands of people gathered half hour before that time around and about the place. About 1:45 the president, followed by Mrs. Cleveland, Secretary Whitney and Eugene Kelly, Charles M. Fry and James J. Wheeler appeared on the door step. Three cheers were immediately given by the crowd which were followed by three more and as they did so the party took seats in the carriage awaiting the president. The president lifted his hat in recognition, which was the signal for more cheering and amid plaudits of the crowd the carriages started on their way to the reviewing stand. The president's carriage was driven down Fifth Avenue closely followed by the carriages containing Mrs. Cleveland, Secretary Whitney, Col. Dan Lamont, Mrs. Secretary Whitney and others. The route was down Fifth Avenue to the Worth monument, where the reviewing stand was erected. The president was constantly cheered by the crowds. When the carriage reached the reviewing stand at the Madison Square plaza it was met by the chairman of the reception committee who escorted the president to his seat. The ladies with Col. Lamont and Secretary Whitney were driven in a closed carriage to the Albemarle hotel from which they viewed the parade.

The parade was a very great affair and was nearly two hours passing the reviewing stand. The rain fell steadily and a novel appearance was given the demonstration by the umbrellas of the marchers. As the line trampled past, the cheers were a continuous roar, and the president was kept busy bowing to the outbursts. Immediately after the parade had passed, the president and party were driven back to Secretary Whitney's house, where they had luncheon.

Shortly after luncheon, the president, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Folsom, Mrs. Harrison and Miss Ward re-entered carriages and were driven to the Debrosses street ferry and crossed to Jersey City. The private car was backed down to the station and the presidential party got aboard of it. After boarding the car the president stood for a few minutes on the rear platform looking at an all crowd which had gathered to witness his departure and there were no demonstrations. In less than five minutes after the party boarded the car the train moved out from the platform and the party were on their way to Washington.

RAILROADERS VISIT HARRISON.

A Fine Parade and Much Enthusiasm—The General's Campaign Work.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—The Republican railroad men of this city, Terre Haute, Richmond and Logansport made a demonstration Saturday night in honor of Gen. Harrison. The streets were thronged by people who assembled at available points to witness the parade, which was one of the best given here during the campaign. About the New-Denison, where Gen. Harrison reviewed the line, the crowd was dense and constantly cheered the men in line, who, in turn, responded with shouts for Harrison and Morton. At Tomlinson hall a meeting of 5,000 people was held, and here everything, as in the procession, had a railroad color about it, in the emblems, declarations and enthusiasm. When Gen. Harrison appeared he was greeted with tremendous cheering that continued for some minutes. He spoke briefly, referring to the topics that have made his speeches most noticeable in emphasizing his position on the economic questions of the day. Following the general's other speeches were made, noticeably by the Hon. Matt Broderick, of Louisville, Ky.

Since his nomination Gen. Harrison has made eighty speeches, shaken hands with over 100,000 people, representing delegations that comprised twice that number. Saturday eight young ladies from the Oxford, O., Female seminary called on him and Mrs. Harrison. The general made them a short speech of compliment and welcome.

DON DICKINSON'S INVECTIVE.

The Postmaster General Denounces Mr. Blaine Without Stint.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 29.—One of the largest political demonstrations ever held in this city occurred yesterday afternoon and evening. In the night parade there were 1,500 horsemen and 3,000 torch bearers, and the streets were literally packed with humanity. A large wagon loaded with fire works caught fire, and James Pelton was dangerously burned. The horses ran away and injured a dozen people, but no one seriously. Postmaster General Dickinson was the speaker of the evening, and was received by an audience that filled the biggest building in the city. His speech elicited uproarious applause.

He began by charging that the banking house of Morton, Rose & Co., of London, was distinguished for its assistance to Canadian capitalists organized to compete with those of this country, and criticized Hon. Levi P. Morton for being a member of such a house, and at the same time a candidate for vice president.

He then made a bitter and vigorous attack on Blaine, in which he revived the "Mulligan letters" and all the charges against the Maine statesman so widely circulated in 1884. He declared that Blaine's statements with reference to New England's trade with the west were false in every particular. Characterizing Blaine as the "unspeakable man from Maine," Dickinson proceeded to quote figures to disprove Blaine's statements. He declared that New England absorbed wealth, and gave nothing, to prove this gave figures showing that out of the thousands of millions of property in Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa New England owned $247,000,000; she raised more butter than she could use, and if Blaine's statements were correct it took several times as much to feed a man in New England as anywhere else. He said that Blaine's figures were fraudulent, while he (Dickinson) gave as his authority Blaine's book, "Twenty Years in Congress."

Mr. Dickinson's torrent of invective was marked by such remarks regarding Mr. Blaine as: "Down to his last record he has been the center and the light of slyness of falsifying, corruption, fraud and falsehood." "No other man has ever turned from the state department and his entire record in same reviled." "Whatever record Mr. Blaine has made upon his country's history that is still extant is foul, and whatever is not extant is doubtful." "He has attacked, maligned and slandered the pure public men of his own party." "It is true of Blaine, as of no other man, that where all the men around him are not his enemies, all dishonored public men have been his friends."

BLAINE SPEAKS AT NEWARK.

He Addresses Two Large Audiences and Eulogizes Gen. Harrison.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 29.—The First Presidential Voters' association of this city secured the Hon. James G. Blaine to speak at two places here Saturday night. Sanger hall and the Belleville Avenue rink. The drizzling rain which had been holding forth all day did not dampen the enthusiasm of local Republicans, for both halls were filled to overflowing. Mr. Blaine and party reached here from New York soon after 8 o'clock. He had been feeling unwell before he left New York and the inclement weather served largely to intensify his indisposition, so that the original plan had to be abandoned. Shortly before 7 o'clock he arrived at Sanger hall and was greeted with great enthusiasm. He said:

I am not here to make a speech, nor does this campaign at this time need argument. That has been made. What we want now is perfected organization and the result of that will be victory. (Applause.) I come to you from three great states of the west where I have been for a month past and I see in the east a great tidal wave of enthusiasm for Harrison and Morton. (Loud cheers.) I believe it is possible even in a greater degree in the west, and I am sure that with the east and west pulling together in a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together, the victory on the sixth day of November will be for a protective tariff and for Harrison and Morton. (Prolonged cheers.)

Mr. Blaine's somewhat abrupt termination disappointed the audience. They cheered and called for him, but he vanished out a side door and was driven away.

Mr. Blaine next spoke to the Republican First Presidential Voters' club at the Belleville Avenue rink, which was crowded. He said:

The hope of the Republican party is in the young men. The young men who are in business, who know the actual workings—the young men who are in factories and foundries and the machine shops, the great body of intelligent mechanics of the country—these are the men who support the policy of protection to American industry. (Applause.)

He then referred to the Sackville correspondence, and after stating that the Democrats first wanted to deny its authenticity, and then charged that it was a Republican plot, which by the way he said the Democratic candidate for vice president seemed to have heard of only four days after the matter was published, went on as follows:

But in the name of common sense what has that man to do with the British minister's letter? Suppose they prove the letter was gotten up to entrap him, as they say? that does not alter the character of Mr. West's letter. As well might a post office clerk, who is constantly stealing letters, complain of a decoy letter that was placed in his track. The decoy letter would not have hurt him if he had not opened it. And that letter of Mr. West's would never have hurt him if he had not answered it. (Applause.)

Mr. Blaine concluded as follows, referring first to President Cleveland:

I have spoken of his public acts freely, of himself personally nothing—nor have I anything to say. But I will speak for a moment of Mr. Harrison personally. (Applause.) There has been lately an attempt on the part of Democrats to call him the grandson of his grandfather. Well, if a man in the United States relies upon his ancestors to get him through life he has a pretty slender reed to lean upon. A man, after all, has to be judged by what he is himself. Benjamin Harrison went into the practice of the law a poor man—literally a poor man—and he fought his way up against obstacles with as much perseverance and industry as the poorest member of the Indiana bar, of which he now stands at the head. (Applause.) He acquitted himself with great gallantry on the field of battle, winning the applause of the great soldier whose praise was his selfmade title to greatness, Ulysses S. Grant. He has shown himself a wise statesman in the senate of the United States, and he has shown himself a wise candidate before the American people when he is running for the presidency. (Applause.) That is the man himself. Now these people who sneer about a great family name, many of them would turn a double somersault backward if they could stand before the American people and have it said of them as of this young man's efforts who has risen of his own merits.

The speaker then briefly gave the history of Gen. Harrison's ancestors, and said: "If there be any man who would not like that ancestry he is dead to the best impulses of human nature."

A REJECTED LOVER'S REVENGE.

He Tries to Poison Seven Persons with Rough on Rats—Two Bad Cases.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 26.—On the Bohemian flats last evening a wholesale poisoning case occurred by which seven people were poisoned, two of whom are not expected to live. A party were taking supper with a couple who were recently married and all partook heartily of dumplings, which had been amply seasoned with "Rough on Rats." It is supposed an old lover of the bride is the guilty party.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 27.—Light was yesterday thrown on the poisoning at a wedding feast Thursday night, by which seven persons were prostrated. Mrs. Victoria Martin, the bride, who excused herself just before the collation was served and went to a neighbor's, took a dose of rat poison yesterday afternoon and died. The theory is that she was instrumental in administering the poison.

Dragged a Quarter of a Mile.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 29.—William Bostwick, aged 10, went out riding yesterday with two companions named Van Zandt. His horse scared at some object and ran away. The boy's foot caught in the stirrup and he was dragged a quarter of a mile before the horse was stopped. Bostwick was killed. His body was horribly bruised.

Two Old Ladies Suffocated by Gas.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Henrietta Spiel, aged 75, and Mrs. Martha Becket, aged 65, inmates of the German Home for the Aged were found dead in their room yesterday morning. They were suffocated by gas.

LESSON V, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, NOV. 4.

Text of the Lesson, Josh. vii, 1-12—Commit Verses 10-12—Golden Text, Ps. cxix, 36—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The promises of God are generally conditioned upon obedience and separation from sin on our part. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life," was the promise to Joshua (i, 5), but the conditions were faith and obedience on his part (i, 6-9).

1. "The children of Israel committed a trespass in the accursed thing." The city and all in it had been accursed, or devoted to utter destruction (vi, 17, margin, compared with v. 24, where "utterly destroyed" is the same word, and see also I Sam. xv, 21; Zach. xiv, 11), and the people had been forbidden to take for themselves anything of the accursed or devoted city. How fearful is the sin of disobedience, and how far reaching the effects of sin. One man sees, covets and takes that which he had been forbidden to touch, (v. 21) and the result is that the whole nation suffers because of a broken law through his sin. In the Garden of Eden there was only one tree which Adam and Eve were forbidden to touch, but the tempter came, and Eve saw and coveted and took and did eat; and gave also unto her husband with her and he did eat; and to-day the result is manifest.

2. "At and Bethel." These names carry us back some five hundred years to the time when Abram first entered the land and having pitched his tent between Bethel and Ai, he builded an altar unto the Lord (Gen. xii, 8; xiii, 3), having Ai (the heap of ruins) behind him, and Bethel (the house of God) before him. At Bethel, as Jacob left his home, fleeing from Esau, God appeared to him in a vision, and there he erected and anointed a pillar; and twenty years later, as he returned with his wives and children, God appeared to him again at the same place, calling his name Israel, and confirming to him the covenant.

3. "Let not all the people go up; for they are but few." Such was the advice of the men sent to view the country, but they had not the mind of God, for his command was: "Take all the people of war with thee" (vi, 1). It was wretched self confidence, forgetfulness of God, and making light of difficulties. It will not do to make too much nor too little of the enemy; we must not be anxious nor discouraged, neither should we be careless or boastful; but having on the whole armor of God, we must ever be watchful, and especially when the occasion seems a little one. "Uzziah was marvelously helped till he was strong; but when he was strong his heart was lifted up to his destruction." (II Chr. xxvi, 15, 16).

4. "They fled before the men of Ai." This was not according to the promise that one should chase a thousand and two put ten thousand to flight (Deut. xxxii, 30), but the fault was their own; they were unmindful of their Rock, and puffed up by the victory at Jericho, as if their arm had done it.

5. "The hearts of the people melted, and became as water." And yet it was not a very great defeat; they had only lost thirty-six men, and there was an army of over 600,000 ready for war. Why was this trembling of heart and this great and seemingly uncalled for fear? It was all through failing to see the Lord and hear His voice. He sent a faintness into their hearts, and the sound of a shaken leaf chased them (Lev. xxvi, 21, 36); there was sin in the camp, and it was unconfessed; not only the sin of self confidence and lack of reliance upon the Lord, but the sin of Achan was troubling all Israel.

6. "Joshua rent his clothes and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark." This was a new experience to him as the leader of Israel, and to humble himself before God was the right thing to do; but who can tell what the result might have been if Joshua and the elders of Israel had done this before setting out to attack Ai? Where was the man with the drawn sword, the captain of the Lord's host, all this time? Had he made a mistake, or failed them, or been defeated? No, He was simply left out, and they had gone without him, and He had let them do it.

7. "Alas! O Lord God, wherefore hast thou?"— In this and the next two verses we have Joshua's prayer. He begins a little hastily and impatiently, for God had not brought them over Jordan to destroy them or to deliver them to the Amorites; but rather to deliver the Amorites unto them and give them all that good land. We are apt to say that God has brought us into this or that trial, when we have brought it upon ourselves by disobedience or by failing to follow Him. "Wisdom's ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." 8. "O, Lord, what shall I say when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies?" There is more of a right spirit in this utterance, and would to God that we were more troubled than we seem to be when Christians are overcome instead of being overcomers.

9. "What wilt Thou do unto Thy great name?" Joshua suggests the possibility of their name as a nation being cut off from the earth and identifying them with Him, he asks this question. God had chosen Israel to make Him a name. (I Chron. xvii, 21.) The queen of Sheba came to Solomon because she heard of his fame concerning the name of the Lord. (I Kings x, 1.) So we should remember that we are chosen to bear His name, and in all things glorify Him. (Acts ix, 15; I Peter ii, 9; iv, 11.)

10-11. "Get thee up: Israel hath sinned." There is a time to pray and a time to act, a time to confess sin, and a time to rise and search out and put away sin. Joshua knew not the cause of Israel's failure, he went in humiliation and prayer to Him who is perfect in knowledge, and now that God has revealed the matter to him, it is time for him to rise and put away the sin from Israel.

12. This then was the cause of Israel's failure and they could not stand before their enemies, much less subdue them, nor would the Lord be with them any more except the accursed thing be taken away and the accursed person be destroyed. So the tribes are brought before him, probably by their heads, and the lot falls upon Judah, the tribe of the families of Judah the Zarhites are taken, of the Zarhites, Zabdi is taken; and of the household of Zabdi, Achan is taken. O Achan, why did you sin? Having sinned why did you not come and confess it without waiting to be found out? Were you not sure that your sin would find you out? (Num. xxxii, 23.) Did you not know that "he that covereth his sins shall not prosper, but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy?" (Prov. xxviii, 13.) Why did you do it? For the sake of a little gold and silver and a goodly Babylonish garment. Tell me, dear reader, have you profited by the fall of Achan, or are you disgracing the name of Christ and proving a hindrance rather than a blessing in your home or church or Sunday school, because you have an inordinate desire for goodly raiment, or that silver and gold, the love of which is the root of all evil?

FEEING THE DOMINIE.

Some Sensible Suggestions with Regard to This Matter.

Those old questions concerning paying the minister for such special services as confirmations, baptisms, weddings and funeral services are again up for agitation and discussion.

People are to be found who think not only that a minister ought to work for almost nothing and find himself, but that he ought to include all these special services in the work he does for his regular salary.

It is hard on the ordinary minister. As to the few ministers who receive princely salaries, their fees are large in proportion. People who expect special services of them generally do the fair thing as to compensation.

Such special services as ought to be performed in church when the congregation is assembled are usually considered part of a minister's regular duty.

Should a minister be called to a private house to baptize a baby there is an evident propriety in making him a present of some kind in return for his kindness and as a compensation for his trouble. It may be in cash, or it may be some acceptable article for table use or for household decoration.

People who give books to ministers generally make the mistake of selecting some book which the minister does not want. Some good people who recently gave their pastor a copy of the Bible did not stop to think that he already had in his library about fifteen copies in various styles and languages.

In wedding fees it may safely be said that the man who gives none is a mean fellow, not worthy to have a good wife. He who pays only a dollar or two is not much better, unless his abject poverty is the cause of the smallness of the fee.

Why a minister should be expected to attend and conduct a funeral without charge is hard to guess. It is quite as hard work, both for mind and body, as to preach a sermon.

More attacks of clerical bronchitis and pneumonia have been suffered by going to funerals than from any other cause. The person who stands bareheaded on the cold ground or damp boards beside an open grave is apt to be reading his own death warrant while he pronounces the words of the funeral service.

In a word, the minister ought to be as squarely dealt with as any other man of any profession or calling who renders services of any kind.—New York Press.

IGNORANCE OF SANITARY LAWS.

The Work of the Engineer as Supplementary to That of the Architect.

In his census reports Dr. Billings estimates that in the United States 100,000 deaths occur ever year from strictly preventable diseases alone.

This is unquestionably a very moderate estimate, and, if there are reckoned also 12 cases of serious illness for every death, we see what a great amount of suffering results from ignorance of sanitary principles.

But how is this ignorance manifested? Are not our architects competent to deal with the problem of household sanitation?

It will be said, perhaps, that it is the province of the architect to direct the entire work of house building and to arrange every detail of the fittings.

But it should be considered that the science of sanitation is broad and comprehensive. Years of study and of experience in sanitary work are necessary for a proper understanding of the subject.

It is perhaps unfortunate that there is so little in the severe and unpleasant details of this work to commend it to those whose tastes have led them to the study of the more attractive principles of artistic construction and the science of æsthetics.

An architect should have the soul of an artist, but there are few men whose nature is so broad as to combine truly artistic tastes with a love for the details of difficult mechanical work, involving the necessity for undertaking comprehensive and scientific research.

It is the province of the engineer to engage in an occupation of this kind. His natural inclinations and his rigid training in scientific pursuits fit him especially for the direction of matters relating to drainage and sewage disposal.—The Popular Science Monthly.

A GOOD DETECTIVE STORY.

The Exceptional Cleverness of an Officer Illustrated.

A lady and a gentleman were traveling together on an English railway. They were perfect strangers to each other.

Suddenly the gentleman said:

"Madam, I will trouble you to look out of the window for a few minutes: I am going to make some changes in my wearing apparel."

"Certainly, sir," she replied, with politeness, rising and turning her back upon him. In a short time he said:

"Now, madam, my change is completed, and you may resume your seat."

When the lady turned she beheld her male companion transformed into a dashing lady with a heavy veil over her face.

"Now, sir, or madam, whichever you like," said the lady, "I must trouble you to look out of the window, for I also have some changes to make in my apparel."

"Certainly, madam," and the gentleman in lady's attire immediately complied.

"Now, sir, you may resume your seat."

To his great surprise, on resuming his seat, the gentleman in female attire found his lady companion transformed into a man. He then laughed and said:

"It appears that we are both anxious to avoid recognition. What have you done? I have robbed a bank."

"And I," said the whilom lady, as he dexterously fettered his wrists with a pair of handcuffs, "am Detective Jones of Scotland Yard, and in female apparel have shadowed you. Now," drawing a revolver, "keep still."

And he did.

Verdi's Irascibility.

The correspondent of a Boston newspaper sends this story of Verdi:

"When he arrived last summer at the house in Montecatini where he was to spend his vacation he found in his sitting room a fine grand piano, open, and on the rack the score of 'Trovatore,' all of which was to show the landlord's appreciation of his famous guest.

"The composer walked to the piano, jerked the book from the rack, closed the instrument, locked it, put the key in his pocket, started for a long walk and threw the key into a deep ravine."

The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—Seven years ago I contracted an exceedingly bad case of blood poison. I tried a physician, the best at command, but secured no benefit. My throat began to get sore, and my body covered with sores and ulcers. Going from bad to worse, I felt that my grave must be reached in the near future. I gave up the doctors' treatment, and with a despairing hope I commenced taking your medicine. I began to improve from the first bottle, and in a short time the ulcers healed, and my skin cleared off and was entirely well.

One year ago a case of catarrh developed in my system. The physician did his best, but could not cure me; but two bottles of Swift's Specific gave me permanent relief.

AN ELOQUENT TRIBUTE

Geo. R. Wendling, the eloquent platform orator, whose name is a household word in every Christian home, on account of his matchless reply to Ingersoll, is an ardent supporter of Cleveland. We take these burning words of eloquence from a recent speech of his: "I am for Grover Cleveland. I am for him, not because he is a Democrat, nor because he is the nominee of the St. Louis convention, but because I believe that he is as unselfish and devoted a patriot as Abraham Lincoln, as sagacious a politician as William H. Seward, as simple and unpretentious as Ulysses Grant, as incorruptible as Roscoe Conkling, and because he combined all those shining qualities with the iron will and the iron nerve of Andrew Jackson, took by the throat the greatest enemy to human labor and human freedom that the world has known since human slavery went down before the emancipation proclamation. I had rather Cleveland as the emancipator of labor from the shackles of a protected monopoly. I greet him as the name of millions of toilers—in mines and factories, on prairies and in forests, as their liberator from the subtle and cruel bondage of an insidious taxation which drains their resources and would keep them and their children a race of hewers. I believe such men as Cleveland are sent for a high and special purpose. I see Washington front undaunted the power of a British king. I see Jackson with the righteous rage and strength of Samson throttle the United States bank. I see Lincoln with divine compassion in his sad face strike down slavery. I see Cleveland starting with the power of a giant a giant to wrench the last relic of human chattelhood from our continent and then I see that God reigns in the history of human progress and that the Democratic party is the chosen instrument of his power."

Apple Buyers Form a Trust.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The World's Lockport (N. Y.) special says: The Niagara County Farmers' club, in session here Sunday, claimed that the apple buyers had formed a trust to keep the price of apples down, and passed a resolution denouncing such action. They claimed that they were losing money at [illegible], and advocated the pooling of their interests to protect themselves. A committee was appointed to devise and estimate the cost of the erection of a cold storage warehouse, where their fruit could be housed and kept for a good market.

Her name will appear as the principal conductor, and her assistants will be Mary J. Safford and Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker.

Ordered the Release of Asher.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 29.—The United States supreme court Monday reversed the judgment of the Texas court of appeals in the case of Asher against the state of Texas. This was the well known drummer's case, in which Asher resisted the state law taxing commercial travelers. The state court sustained the state law, but the United States court reverses this decision and orders the release of Asher, who has been in the custody of the sheriff for two years.

Beat the Type Setting Record.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Leo Monheimer, a compositor on The Herald, in six days of the past week, during which he worked forty-five and a half hours on straight copy, set a "string" of 101,000 ems, beating all previous records, the best of which was that made by Duguid, on The Cincinnati Enquirer—117,000 ems in seven days, 12,000 of which was a "pick up."

Failure in the Wool Business.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—The Berkshire Woolen company of Great Barrington, with a capital of $100,000, suspended Saturday afternoon and the works are shut down. Resources and liabilities are unknown. The suspension is probably permanent. In 1876 the company failed for $400,000. The mill employed 250 hands.

TO THE VOTERS.

To the Voters of the 2nd Cong. District:—

The Greenback Cong. Convention, held in the city of Adrian, passed the following resolution:

"That we unanimously endorse the nomination of Willard Stearns, and pledge ourselves to use all honorable means to secure his election."

The convention having become acquainted with the political record of the nominee were convinced that he was nearer the people and that his views upon tariff and financial reform were more in harmony with the principles of the Greenback, labor reform, and anti-monopoly voters, than any one else whom these voters could nominate with the possibility of electing. Therefore taking into consideration his political history and the action of the Greenback party of the 2nd district in relation thereto, and believing him to be the foe of trusts, pools, combines and monopolies, we appeal to every Greenbacker, labor reformer, and wage worker, to vote for and use all honorable means to secure the election of Willard Stearns, thereby sending to congress a faithful defender of the farmer, mechanic, tradesman and laborer. Our interests and our duty demand it.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Joe Cummins has been having a very serious time with inflammatory rheumatism but is now gaining some. His sister Mary is now caring for him.

Hugh Haney is quite indisposed, suffering from intermittent fever.

Notwithstanding his feeble condition Danforth Keyes occupied his position on the election board Tuesday, and apparently did him no harm.

Miss Laura Clark has been sick during the past week but is around again.

Bert Roff visited his parents one day the last of the week.

Mrs. Felton visited Adrian friends over Sunday.

Election passed off very quietly in Clinton, and for the first time in many years the republican ticket was elected. Fred Wood was the only one on the democratic ticket that received a majority; it was a fine compliment to Fred and well deserved.

Our community although in a measure prepared, were shocked when the news of Judge Stacy's death was received. Having resided so long in Tecumseh he was well known to all, the widow, sons and daughter have the deepest sympathy of the citizens of Clinton.

The young republican voters and boys celebrated the republican victory in this township Tuesday evening. They had a lively time.

A. F. Freeman and Matt D. Blosser of Manchester was in town Monday.

D. R. Gibson and Albert Ward came home from Kent county to vote.

Mrs. Gunnison of Jackson, came down to see Mrs. Nimocks the first of the week.

Mrs. Nimocks, who has been in feeble health for a long time, is very low and liable to drop away any moment. Her son, Harry, who is in Kalamazo, is failing very rapidly also.

Palmer, Rector & Amspoker shipped three car loads of very fine hogs Wednesday.

W. W. Hess arrived from Canada the last of the week, voted Tuesday like a man and returned Thursday.

Mrs. John H. Miller, after a very pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Codling and family, left Thursday for her home in Providence, Rhode Island.

J. S. Kies was away on a little trip last week.

Ed. A. Clark went to Elkhart, Ind., last week but returned in time to vote.

Mrs. Sel Demuth visited a brother and family at Napoleon, this week.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong of Hartford, Mich., occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. H. Wilcox and Mary started for their home in Middletown, Conn., Tuesday noon.

Ed. Rose came home Friday and remained until Wednesday morning. His principle errand was to deposit his ballot.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Rev. Mr. Wright has been prospecting in Nebraska. He returned last week.

Richard Adams, who was reported last week as somewhat better of his attack of illness, was again taken down and died Nov. 1st. He was buried on last Sunday, the funeral services were held in the Christian church and the exercises were conducted by the pastor of that church, Mr. Wright.

Mrs. Scott has got the plastering of her house done and it will soon be ready to occupy.

The walls of the new brick block are raised to the second floor and the joists are nearly all placed, but election day suspended work and all hands took a rest.

Will Osgood having married a wife, has rented a house and gone to housekeeping. Thus families are forming and houses are in demand, not a vacant house is to be found in Britton.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held next Thursday, Nov. 8th, at 2:30 P. M., with Mrs. Edgar Wells; a full attendance is greatly desired and all ladies favoring the temperance cause are kindly invited to attend.

Owing to the unfavorable condition of the weather on Monday evening the Democratic meeting was not very largely attended but Mr. Manly gave a very instructive address greatly to the profit of those present. And now ends the political campaign for the year 1888. Only one man can be the President of the United States after all the din of speeches and song, of pole raising and waving of flags and streamers. May the next four years bring peace and prosperity.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Election passed off very quietly.

A good many went to Adrian Tuesday night to hear the returns.

Those who heard Hon. Frank Hurd at Tecumseh Saturday night were well pleased with his discussion of the tariff issue.

Some may have forgotten the date of M. L. Jones, auction, that will be held at the farm of Mrs. J. Hall next week Wednesday afternoon. The wind has destroyed several bills that were posted up.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Last Friday evening a number of young men of this city and its suburbs took their best girl and went, some to Palmyra to a dance and some to Little Hope to a school exhibition. Those going to the dance were doomed to disappointment as the hall was not opened. They returned through the rain and inky darkness, but we have not heard of any accident.

Last Thursday fire broke out in Fred Kopke's woods, burning over 20 acres in a very short time, and doing considerable damage.

Halloween was observed here in the usual way by the overthrow of small buildings and transportation of any thing movable. One of our Republican friends had a Cleveland & Thurman banner tacked on his front porch. Cigars, Fred.

Nathan Spencer, who has been on the sick list for the past week is improving at present writing.

The best on earth can truly be said of Grigg's Glycerine Salve, which is a sure, safe and speedy cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds and all other sores. Will positively cure piles or money refunded. Only 25 cents. Sold by Dr. Geo. Furguson's.

Are You Taking It?

"Are you taking the F. E. C. Kidney Remedy?" is becoming a common inquiry. The F. E. C. is known to be an honest remedy and is doing a world of good. J. J. Orr sells it.

The combination of ingredients found in Ayer's Pills renders them tonic and curative as well as cathartic. For this reason they are the best medicine for people of costive habits, as they restore the natural action of the bowels, without debillitating.

CALIFORNIA.

MR. STACY—Thinking that many of your readers, and particularly those who remember me as one of the Tecumseh boys, would like to hear about California, I will try and write you a few letters as to how I found this section of country and what I have seen and learned about it, and what I shall write will relate to San Diego county and the bay region more particularly. California is a very large State and has over 700 miles of sea coast, and what may be said of this section may not apply to other sections with the same force.

San Diego county is the extreme south-west portion of Uncle Sam's possessions. In other letters I will give a more extensive discription of San Diego Bay and its surroundings in this letter I shall confine myself more particularly to the contrast between the seasons here and in the north and coast, and in showing the superior advantages it possesses, and I may repeat some of my former letter.

I have been here nearly a year, came expecting to make my home here, and though the boom has collapsed and left us with hard times, yet we are not discouraged, for though business has received a check yet the future of this section is assured, and the wild excitement and speculation of last year will never be repeated, but its advancement will be steady and permanent. The boom was one of wild speculation and many were led into injudicious investments with the assurance of quickly realizing large returns, without due consideration of the situation and that there might be a relapse, and the consequence has been that many have been badly crippled, but those with cool heads and good judgment made judicious investments and their future is assured. This bay region is bound to advance and wise investments are sure to bring good returns.

We do not see how, after a person has spent one season of winter and summer here, they can be satisfied to return to the east and endure the changeable seasons there again. We have watched the reports of the weather and the seasons back east with a great deal of interest and contrasted them with what we have experienced. This is not a paradise by any means, we have many annoyances and discomforts to endure, but the seasons though they are not to be compared to those endured by them back east. Here we have had no storms of rain wind, no extremes of heat or cold, a very equitable temperature, the thermometer has easily reached 80° or fallen to 60°; our nights have been good and delightful for sleep and rest, requiring more or less bed-covering every night; we have a cool sea breeze every day; it is true we have plenty of dust, and as we have no summer rains it lasts all the season. Yet it is no worse than in the sandy regions in the east and we have no such deep sandy roads as you have; ours are generally hard and good.

Our winters are mild and pleasant, frost injured vegetation but very little and many flowers that you are obliged to put in the house bloomed out of doors all winter, and garden truck can be had fresh from the gardens every day in the year, and there anchr here (every man here who works a piece of land is called a rancher,) unlike the farmer there, who has to suspend his operations for three or four months in the winter and house and feed his stock with extra care, can let his stock run on green pasture all winter, and is situated so he has water plenty, has green pastures the year round, and can carry on his farming operations the year around, and take his leisure in securing his crops without any fear of the elements interfering.

As to the healthfulness of the country, Southern California can be said to be an exceptionably healthy country. They have sickness here and the doctors and drug stores do a good business, yet the ailments are of a different nature and milder character than in the east. The death rate here is very low, most of the deaths of adults are of those that come here from the east with impaired health; many in feeble health come here and are cured or greatly benefitted. California has more mineral and medicated springs than any other State in the Union. Taking all these conditions into consideration, I had much rather live here and endure the unpleasent features we have than to live in the east and endure those there. We don't expect every body to like California and come here to live, and it is well they do not for we haven't room to accomodate all the eastern people, but our State will bear inspection and comparison with any other portion of the country and will not take a back seat.

THE ITALIAN WEAPON.

An Account of the Stiletto and the Sharp Substitutes for It.

The stiletto is a peculiar weapon. There is nothing of American manufacture like it.

In length it runs from six to fifteen inches. The blade is about twice the length of the handle, dagger edged, thick at the narrow guard, and tapering off to excessive thinness at the point. At the guard the diameter of the blade is diamond shaped, and the two extra edges run almost to the point.

The real edges, which are razor-sharp, make a wound which the auxiliary edges, more blunt than sharp, aggravate to a terrible degree.

So effective is it, and so murderous in the hands of a dexterous man, that the Italian Government has recently been experimenting with it as a weapon at close quarters, and in the Massowah campaign several companies were armed with shields and long stilettos.

Another knife, commonly carried and frequently used by criminal Italians, is what Professor Scannapieco, the Neapolitan fencing master calls the "molletta."

The molletta bears some resemblance to a razor, though considerably longer. There is only one edge, and the blade opens like a penknife.

It swings loose, however, and when drawn is opened by catching hold of the handle with the fingers and throwing the blade outward. This requires practice and dexterity.

A small spring catches the knife and holds it open. It is closed by pressure upon a tiny "button" on the handle.

Though not as effective a weapon as the stiletto, it makes an ugly wound when used by an expert, and can be opened almost as quickly as a stiletto can be drawn from its sheath.

The ease with which it can be concealed adds to the frequency of its use. The handle is hard wood or bone.

There is an up-town establishment that is said to import stilettos and other Italian weapons. A small stiletto can be bought for $3. The largest sizes cost $5 and $8. An imported molletta costs $4.

The price places the real Italian article out of the reach of many of the knife users who have failed to bring their cowardly weapons across the ocean, and they content themselves with a species of small dagger, crude but effective, and not infrequently made by themselves out of a well-worn table knife.—New York Graphic.

THE BEST WAY TO OBTAIN REST.

It Should Be Taken Prone on a Mattress with No Pillow.

"In the progressive tendencies of the American people," said a physician to a reporter, "the subject of proper rest plays a very small part.

"The idea seems to prevail among them that this matter is subservient to all else—that it may be taken at any time and in almost any manner, provided there is nothing more important to do.

"Only this morning a lady consulted me in regard to her health, complaining of a tired feeling, being scarcely able to attend to her duties, and all that.

"I diagnosed the case, but could discover no symptom of disease. She was simply suffering from want of proper rest.

"I told her what troubled her and no doubt she went away convinced that I did not understand her case.

"A man or woman, particularly the latter, will become tired, and being firmly convinced that everything will go wrong if she stops work, busies herself with some other occupation, or if exhausted, will throw herself in a chair or upon a lounge with a book or paper and try to restore strength in that way. This is not rest. It only creates a longing for it.

"The true way is to lie at full length upon a mattress, or any equally hard surface, using no pillow, with arms extended and eyes closed. Dismiss for the time all care and seek only rest.

"This will bring to an exhausted body the refreshment and contentment which no amount of medical advice or skill can produce."

HIS ILLITERATE DOG.

A Hint to the Wise Men Who Govern.

A Boston gentleman who makes a favored dog the companion of his walks, was taking a stroll the other day upon the Common, and as they came to the margin of the Frog Pond the dog seized the opportunity to enjoy a bath.

While the creature was disporting himself swimming about, a policeman approached and directed attention to a sign which bore a legend to the effect that dogs were not permitted to bathe in the pond.

Immediately the man whistled to his dog, and then turning to the policeman, by way of explanation and apology, said:

"You will have to forgive him, Mr. Officer, this time, he's a very illiterate little cuss, and can't read."—Boston Budget.

The Persuasive Advertisement.

Old Mr. Bently (who has just moved because he couldn't "even the flat any longer") "The agent has an advertisement in to-day's paper about that miserable flat we've just left. He says the rooms are large, airy, perfect steam heat, appurtenances first class, and the locality desirable in every way."

Old Mrs. Bently (half regretfully)—"Well, now, Josiah, I'm almost sorry we give it up."—Epoch.

Reasoning by Contraries.

"I tell you Hyde is as trustworthy a man as you can find anywhere."

"What! Jim Hyde a reliable man? Why, he is noted for never telling the truth."

"To be sure, that's the very reason you can always depend upon him; if he tells you a thing you know it isn't so."—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

OLD MEN OF THE MARRYING SORT.

Some Remarkable Instances of Patriarchs with Connubial Weaknesses.

"When is a man too old to marry?" is quite as interesting as the question, "When is a girl too young?"

I must leave to physiologists to discuss how far the chances of life are shortened when December weds May, and experts in May anything more than a nurse, though in passing, I may observe that I have noticed several such marriages in which the funeral followed suspiciously close to the wedding.

Without going back to the time when "Methuselah lived 969 years and begat Elias," there are several instances in record of modern Methuselahs who became proud and happy fathers at the time when they should be thinking about signifying of this mortal coil.

There was that stout Sidesman, old Parr, for example, who married at 80 and had to do penance in Addingley Church for an intrigue with Catherine Milton, when he was a sprightly master of 105 summers.

It Lord Lyndhurst is to be believed Parr had a rival in the Vicar of Freshwater in the person of an old Welsh farmer who when he died had 500 descendants, and whose youngest son was 41 years younger than his eldest.

I fancy this man must have been of the same family as a certain Alderman Hookes of Conway, who is described in his epitaph as the "forty first child of his father and himself the father of twenty seven children."

My own impression is that the Welsh border is the paradise of old men, the "Grand Old Man" being only the most conspicuous among many.

Some years ago I spent a Sunday in the very next parish to Hawarden. I dined with a middle aged man whose sons were fast growing to manhood and then walked over to his father's house to take tea.

The venerable old gentleman, who wore a headgear something like Oliver Goldsmith's, was nursing an infant 2 or 3 years old on his knee.

"Is that your youngest?" I asked of my middle aged friend.

"Oh dear no," he replied, "that is my little brother."—London Echo.

FIRE DRAWINGS

Amusing Scientific Experiment—It is Easy and Costs Next to Nothing.

A very amusing and scientific experiment may be performed by taking a saturated solution of nitrate of potash (saltpetre) and with a quill pen or the finish drawing any picture, design or words upon a piece of white absorbent paper. The lines should be kept away from each other, and the entire subject coarsely drawn in outline.

When dry the lines will be nearly invisible, but if one of them be touched with the glowing end of an extinguished match a spark of fire will run through the paper, following the lines already traced and cutting out the design as if with an invisible knife.

This experiment is explained by the chemical constitution of the saltpetre. This salt contains a large amount of oxygen, so loosely combined that it readily leaves the nitrogen and potash and unites with the carbon of the paper when heated to the point of ignition.

The heat developed by the combustion is not sufficient to ignite the paper except where it has been saturated with the oxygen giving salt, and so the spark of fire, which is really only an indication of a violent chemical reaction, follows the lines previously traced.

If an actual flame was brought in contact with the paper, of course the whole would be consumed; but the heat of the glowing charcoal is just sufficient to start the combustion, by the aid of the oxygen in the saltpetre.—Popular Science News.

CURIOUS EXPERIMENT.

One That Would Amuse the Family or a Domestic Party.

Take a water flask, or a wide-mouth decanter or bottle, hold it in a horizontal position, and place a small cork in the neck.

It will then seem an easy matter to show the cork into the bottle, but upon trial it will be found almost impossible to do so, as the harder one blows the more forcibly it is ejected out of the bottle and into the face of the experimenter.

The explanation of this peculiar behavior of the cork is very simple.

The bottle is already full of air, so that no more can be blown in, and the only effect produced by blowing is to compress the air already inside.

When the pressure is removed the air, being elastic, expands again at once and in so doing forces the cork out of the neck apparently in a reverse direction to the current from the lungs of the experimenter.

The neck of the bottle must be perfectly dry or the cork will adhere to it and interfere with the success of the experiment.

The Sea Giving Up Her Dead.

"Let me introduce you to the most famous diver in America," said my companion, as we sat in a little cafe in a small seaport town in Southern California.

A few moments later I was presented and in conversation with Romano Hernandez Garcia, the king of the divers. He was over 6 feet in height, tall for his race, well proportioned, with eyes deep in his head that blazed with a hidden fire when he became excited. Garcia told me a story, and I relate it as he gave it me:

"I was engaged some 10 years ago to examine a wreck of war that had sunk off a South American port, and had two assistants to help me. One backed out at the last moment, so two of us went down.

"The ship had, it was supposed, gone down with all on board, and we were expected to send up the bodies and make a thorough examination.

"The ship lay in about 50 feet of water as clear as a crystal, and before we went down we could see the fishes swimming about through the rigging. My partner went down the foremast and I the mainmast, reaching the deck about the same time.

"We found her lying at an angle of about 28 degrees. The sand had washed up against her port side even with the deck, so we could have walked off on to the bottom. This prevented our making an examination of her bottom, as it was supposed that she had been blown up by a torpedo, though I am sure she was lying at anchor under sail, with ports open, and was sprung by a squall. We found the ports open, and the anchor out with fifty fathoms of chain.

"I was in this when we struck her, and it was a sight not to be forgotten.

"We had to go [illegible] the forecastle, [illegible] we found a door [illegible] the wheel to keep it from swinging one way.

"Going forward, we found the hatches battened down, so we concluded there were dead men near at hand. We determined to try the cabin first, so began work at it with the bars, and shortly had it open.

"As we cleared the wreckage it sprang open like as if some one had pushed it, and immediately out there came an officer in full uniform, disfigured horribly. He rose up to us as quickly. Then came another, and four went sailing up toward the boat. You see, they had been drawing there and of course came out as soon as the hatch was raised.

"You may be sure that I was not anxious to go into such a place, but I had to. I locked around for my partner, he was sitting on the room with his head down, and if he hadn't been in armor I should have thought him sick, but he got up as I motioned, and we went down the ladder.

"Heaven deliver me from such another sight," said Garcia. "As I reached the floor the room seemed to be completely filled with dead people.

"They were floating overhead, some standing upright with hands outstretched some appeared to be swimming, others were grasped in each other's arms, while many more were strewn upon the floor. I began to pass them out of the door when they quickly rose upward to the surface.

"Even I, hardened as I was by many such scenes, was horrified.

"After we had cleared the cabin we went into the staterooms, but most of them were empty. The officers had evidently had some warning, and had made a rush for the cabin, but as the doors opened out and had become jammed, they were literally penned in.

"Things were just as they had left them. Light articles were floating about, but the tables and heavy chairs were in place.

"We made a thorough examination, and then went up and when they unscrewed the other man's helmet he was out of his head, and it was months before he got over it. I learned afterward that he was a green hand at it."

SOMETHING TO BE THANKFUL FOR.

A Deathbed Scene in a Military Hospital.

Nurses in hospitals are rather apt to lay too much stress on the advantages received by the patients and their duty of thankfulness, but still it is the poor soldier who suffers the most from always having his causes to be grateful flung in his teeth. Witness the following true story:

Chaplain—"So poor Hopkins is dead. I should have liked to speak to him once again and soothe his last moments; why didn't you call me?"

Hospital orderly—"I didn't think you ought to be disturbed for 'Opkins, sir, so I just soothed him as best I could myself."

Chaplain—"Why, what did you say to him?"

Orderly—"'Opkins,' sez I, 'You'r mortal bad.'

"'I am,' sez 'e.

"'Opkins,' sez I, 'I don't think you'll get better.'

"'No,' sez 'e.

"'Opkins,' sez I, 'you're going fast.'

"'Yes,' sez 'e.

"'Opkins,' sez I, 'I don't think you can open to go to heaven.'

"'I don't think I can,' sez 'e.

"'Well, then, Opkins,' sez I, 'you'll go to 'ell.'

"'I suppose so,' sez 'e.

"'Opkins,' sez I, 'you ought to be very grateful as there's a place perwided for you, and that you've got somewhere to go,' and I think I cheered 'im, sir, and then I left."—London Hospital.

A Philosophical Problem.

In a recent number of the Medical News appeared a note from a correspondent whose profession, one would think, is an unquestioned testimonial of the accuracy of his observations, in which he writes:

"I remember being jolted over the cobblestones in a baby wagon by a nurse, and resolving to tell of her as soon as I could speak."

In reading the above it occurred to us that it would not be amiss to ask the writer how he knew that there was such a thing as speech, and that he would ever be able to exercise that faculty.—Science.

PANIC IN A SEMINARY.

A Girls' School Burned and Its Occupants Badly Frightened.

GODERICH, Ont., Nov. 5.—The Montreal Seminary for Young Ladies was burned at Goderich yesterday morning. There were 125 girls, a staff of teachers and a dozen female servants in the building when the fire broke out, all of whom narrowly escaped death. Between 2 and 3 o'clock the girls on the fifth floor were awakened by a suffocating smoke and on opening their windows saw a red glare below them in the main building. The halls were filled with smoke, but the older students and the teachers braved the danger resolutely, and staggered, through the upper floors, arousing the girls and ordering them to run for the rear stairway. The girls leaped out of bed in their nightclothes, and without trying to save even their wearing apparel fled screaming through the halls and down the stairways. Many of them showed rare presence of mind, but the majority were in a frenzy bordering on insanity. The teachers proved equal to the crisis and bravely stood their ground until every student was rescued. Two servants, who could not be controlled, jumped from windows and were badly injured. They were carried to the nearest residence and given the best of medical attention.

The building was five stories high, built of gray stone overrun with ivy and flowers. Pretty summer houses dotted the grounds, and altogether it was one of the finest romantic spots in the state. The seminary was built in 1844 by Benjamin Goldtree, the founder and benefactor of the institution. Since then a number of additions have been made. The total loss is $25,000.

THE PERSISTENT PLAGUE.

It Continues to Do Its Work in Jacksonville and Vicinity—Money Needed.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 5.—Saturday's yellow fever report gave 26 new cases and 2 deaths—Juan Joyce and Joseph Vilmit. Yesterday there were eleven new cases and 8 deaths—Gustav Peterson, J. D. Dilworth and Stephen Bliss. Total cases to date, 4,277; deaths, 504.

Last week was the fourteenth week of the fever and although the beginning of November Saturday was as warm as June. In South Jacksonville, St. Nicholas and places across and down the river the fever is raging fiercely, and is fast spreading among the families of refugees in the woods, while there are few cases in the center of the city. Although every exertion has been made to reduce expenses in all departments, the expenses for the past week amount to $31,768. The receipts Saturday were only $800.

FERNANDINA, Fla., Nov. 5.—There were 10 new cases and 2 deaths yesterday. Two of the new cases are whites. One is Maud Boat, acting agent of the Florida Navigation company.

Miraculous Escape from Death.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 5.—The Camden ferry boats and other means of conveyance brought thousands of visitors to the city yesterday to see the Democratic torchlight parade. A hard wagon from Somerset, containing seventeen persons, while attempting to cross the tracks, was struck by the Oregon express train, as it rounded the curve and four horses drawing the wagon were killed, while all of the passengers miraculously escaped injury.

Late in the night, a train of empty passenger coaches was run into by the Alameda express, a head-on collision, the former being demolished.

BABY'S TOILET.

Some Excellent Counsel for Mothers.

Every mother knows how difficult it is to clean the baby's fingernails. By folding some tissue paper into a sharp point, and when using it, calling the attention of the baby to something else, this simple task can be easily performed. The paper is so soft that it does not hurt the tender flesh, yet it is sufficiently firm to remove every particle of dirt.

My children sometimes cry when taken out of the water, but never when they are put in. I think it is because they have such a good frolic in the bath that they dislike to leave it.

The tub should be but half full of water, and should be placed on two chairs or a low stand, for there is danger of draughts if it is put upon the floor. Set it before an open fire if possible, and see that all the baby's clothes are warm and well aired before putting them on.

In winter, when giving a very young infant a bath, it is best to wrap it in a large piece of old flannel, and then put the baby into the water gradually, without removing the flannel until it has been in the water for a minute or two. The water should be lukewarm.

Always wash the baby's head, face, mouth and tongue thoroughly before putting it into the tub, and give it a teaspoonful of cool water to drink. If possible, let the hour for feeding come directly after the bath, and then the baby is ready for the long morning nap.

When the child is old enough to sit up in the tub alone, it is always well to let it have some toy to take into the bath, such as a tiny rubber doll or animal, or a little wooden or paper boat.—Farmers' Review.

The Underlying Fact.

An Albany lady tells of an abnormally bright boy in Amsterdam who called at the house of an aunt, where he felt at liberty to do about as he pleased.

There were some beautiful oranges in sight. The lady had evidently forgotten that boys are always hungry and did not offer him one, perhaps she had forgotten that there were any in the house.

The young visitor concluded that something would have to be done and said:

"Auntie, please give me an orange."

She told him that she hadn't any oranges, to which he promptly replied:

"You lie!"

Frightened to think how it sounded he ran home and told his mother, who immediately sent him back to apologize.

The young man improved matters by saying:

"Auntie, I am very sorry for what I said to you, but—but, auntie, you did lie."—Albany Journal.

Take the Fair Standpoint.

A little girl asked her mother this question: "Mamma, what makes all the people we rent houses from so mean? Why don't you rent a house from a good man sometimes?"

Had she been the daughter of a landlord she probably would have asked:

"What makes the people you rent houses to so mean? Why don't you sometimes rent a house to a good man?"

People look at things in the light of their comfort and convenience, and not in the light of truth and right. As George Eliot says, "They translate their convenience into other people's duties."—Louisville Recorder.

TESTIMONIALS WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE.

My daughter Maud has used Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters, which you so strongly recommended her to try for inflammatory rheumatism. Her limbs were badly swollen, and the poor girl was in terrible agony. In the midst of the pain we wound the Plasters about her limbs, and, as a result the swelling was reduced and she became quiet and rested. The syrup corrected her indigestion, cleansed the rheumatic poison from her blood, and she is now able to be around the house. Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters are remedies of great merit. REV. "I WISH YOU HAD SOAP THAT WOULD FLOAT," a lady said to a clerk in a large grocery store. "You have no idea how ordinary soap is wasted. The servants let it remain in the bottoms of the wash-tubs, dish-pans, and scrubbing-pails, and when the water is poured off, the soap has the consistency of mush, and a new bar must be taken from the box. If the soap would only float, they would see it, and take it out of the water when they were through with it."

The "IVORY SOAP" floats, replied the clerk. Oil will float, and, as the "IVORY SOAP" is made of oils, and is $99\frac{44}{100}$ per cent. pure, as a matter of course it will float.

A WORD OF WARNING.

Treasury Figures Showing Some Interesting Facts—A New Rifle Proposed for the Army, and a New Powder Also Wanted—Washington Monument a Drawing Attraction—Nearly 10,000 People Go to the Top in a Month.

Constant thanksgiving and gratitude are due from the American people to Almighty God for His goodness and mercy, which have followed them since the day He made them a nation and vouchsafed to them a free government. With loving kindness He has constantly led us in the way of prosperity and greatness. He has not visited with swift punishment our shortcomings, but with gracious care He has watched as of our dependence upon His forbearance, and has taught us that obedience to His holy law is the price of a continuance of His precious gifts.

In acknowledgement of all that God has done for us as a nation, and to the end that with appointed day the united prayer and praise of a grateful country may reach the throne of grace, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 25th day of November, inst., as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be kept and observed throughout the land.

On that day let all our people suspend their ordinary work and occupations, and in their accustomed places of worship, with prayer and songs of praise, render thanks to God for all His mercies, for the abundant harvests which have rewarded the toil of the husbandman during the year that has passed, and for the rich rewards that have followed our people in their shops and their marts of trade and traffic. Let us give thanks for peace and for social order and contentment within our borders, and for our advancement in all that adds to national greatness.

And mindful of the afflictive dispensation with which a portion of our land has been visited, let us, while we humble ourselves before the power of God, acknowledge His mercy in setting bounds to the deadly march of pestilence, and let our hearts be chastened by sympathy with our fellow countrymen who have suffered and who mourn.

And as we return thanks for all the blessings which we have received from the hands of our Heavenly Father, let us not forget that He has enjoined upon us charity, and on this day of thanksgiving let us generously remember the poor and needy, so that our tribute of praise and gratitude may be acceptable in the sight of the Lord.

Done at the city of Washington on the first day of November, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, and in the year of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirteenth.

In withness whereof I have hereunto signed my name and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. GROVER CLEVELAND.

By the president,
T. F. BAYARD, Secretary of State.

RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 2.—The reduction in the public debt during October amounted to $4,585,619, and for the first four months of the fiscal year, $28,294,620. The net cash in the treasury is $74,491,969, against $96,444,845 on Oct. 1. The gold fund balance in the treasury has decreased about $8,000,000 during the past month, and amounts to $191,074,575, and the silver fund balance, exclusive of $6,000,000 trade-dollar bullion, is $24,566,259, or $10,000,000 less than a month ago. National bank depositories hold $54,480,279, or about $3,000,000 less than on October 1st.

Government receipts during October were $31,906,203, against $31,803,172 in October 1887. Customs receipted during the past month were $17,832,261, or nearly $1,000,000 less than in October a year ago; internal revenue receipts were $11,500,000, or about $1,000,000 more than in October, 1887; while the receipts from miscellaneous sources were $2,565,000, or $100,000 less than in October a year ago.

Receipts from all sources for the first four months of the present fiscal year reach $129,500,000, against $134,131,569 for the first four months of the preceding year, and as receipts in July, August, September and October are usually a little heavier than in any other four months of the year, this points to a revenue of about $375,000,000 for the year. Expenditures for the first four months of the current fiscal year amounted to $110,500,000, against $100,500,000 for the first four months of the preceding fiscal year.

During October, the past month, the department has purchased $28,650,000 bonds—$18,890,000 $4\frac{1}{2}$s and $9,760,000 4's—at a premium of $4,518,457.

New Small-Arms for the Army.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 2.—Gen. Benet, chief of ordnance, in his annual report, says that during the past year investigations have been completed relative to the determination of the charge, projectile and rifling for small arms, with a view to adopting an arm of smaller caliber than the present service piece. It is the intention to use compressed and perforated cartridges, but as yet the powder makers have not succeeded in producing a satisfactory powder, the desired velocity being accompanied by too great a pressure. This matter of a suitable powder is still under study and trial. The results obtained in France with the Lebel rifle, Gen. Benet says, seem to point to a radical innovation in the manufacture of powder for small arms.

Halloween Jokers Startle the Nuns.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 2.—When the sisters of the Academy of the Visitation, on Connecticut avenue, were saying their offices Wednesday night, just before retiring, they were startled by a loud explosion. Yesterday morning, when some of the pupils were walking in the grounds they made the discovery of a rudely-constructed bomb fractured by an explosion. Halloween jokers are supposed to be at the bottom of the affair.

Visitors to the Washington Monument.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 2.—The Washington monument continues to draw. During the time it was open in the month of October, beginning with the afternoon of Tuesday, the 9th, 7,482 persons were carried up in the elevator and 2,354 walked up, making a total of 9836 who ascended the shaft.

Been Looking at the Wheat.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—C. A. Pillsbury, F. C. Pillsbury, and C. M. Amsden, of this city, Robert Lindblom and Mr. Wurst, of Chicago, and E. W. Page, of New York, have returned from a tour through the northwest to personally investigate the condition of the spring wheat crop. The impression made on the Chicago gentlemen has not yet been made known, but C. A. Pillsbury saw enough to more fully than ever convince him of the correctness of his bullish views.

Had $60,000 in His Trunk.

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 6.—Thomas Little, aged about 65 years, of this city, died suddenly Sunday night of heart disease. He was a bachelor and lived a miser's life. Bonds and money to the amount of $60,000 was found concealed in his trunk.

The Work of an Egyptian Scribe Done Three Thousand Years Ago To Be Reproduced by the Press.

Among the oldest writings which have come down to us are the arrowheaded, or wedge-shaped writings used in Assyria and Media. These writings are either stamped on bricks, or chiselled into stone and rock. They date about 3,000 years B. C.

The letters are all formed by combinations of a stroke with a head to it, like a barb, or a wedge. By the labors of recent scholars the meaning of the tablets and inscriptions written in this way can be deciphered.

Then there are the papyri, or paper books of Egypt. Papyrus is a flowering reed growing luxuriantly in the still waters and marshes of the Nile. There are specimens of it to be seen in the basins of our park in New York.

The pith of this reed is taken out, flattened and gummed together so as to make long pages and rolls. The Greek for this natural paper is byblus, hence our Bible.

These rolls of papyrus are then filled with writing. The writing of Egypt was hieroglyphic, or produced by a series of pictures of different natural objects.

The trustees of the British Museum have recently obtained a roll of papyrus written out by an Egyptian scribe called Ani. He lived more than 1,300 years B. C., i. e., about 3,200 years ago.

Every chapter of the book is illustrated by vignettes of extraordinary beauty. In this respect it resembles one of the illuminated parchments of monkish times.

The colors laid on so carefully by the skillful brush of Ani, although most delicate, are apparently as fresh to-day as ever they were. A group of weeping women, which forms part of the first vignette, is particulary well done.

The book itself is a copy of the Book of the Dead, which contains prayers and devotions relating to the condition of the disembodied soul. For the Egyptians believed in the soul's immortality.

The trustees of the British Museum are going to have this old book reproduced by the press, with all its colors. There will be a full description of the vignettes, or translations and introductions.

Thus we shall be able to read of Ani's work 3,000 years after he wrote it. Homer is almost a modern author in comparison. Churchman.

BEFORE AND AFTER

The Engaged Girl and the Married Woman Compared

It is natural that a girl should wish to appear at her best before a man whom she loves. It is equally natural that a man should be careful to keep his shortcomings from the girl he is desirous of making his wife.

He is thoughtful for her comfort, spends all his spare time in her company, will not see that she has any of the faults his relations point out to him, and is not exacting except as regards the amount of affection bestowed on himself.

The engaged girl is a person of importance, petted by her friends and indulged by her family. Her plans and wishes often have the first consideration. Little is required from her, and much is yielded to her.

Finally, after nothing but consideration for self, the wedding day comes, and with it a gradual change in the order of things.

The husband is as fond of his wife as the lover was of his betrothed, but she is his, and he is no longer anxious. He has duties and social obligations, perhaps rather neglected during his courtship, which must be attended to.

He does not show his affection so much and is more exacting; while the wife, hitherto petted in her own home, and her lover's one thought, imagines him changed and inattentive. No longer seeing him through rose-colored spectacles, she perceives his failings and betrays her own.

This beginning, without any serious faults on either side, is often quite sufficient to lay the foundation of thoroughly unhappy life.

HOW THE WORLD IS FED

Over More Than Three Fifths of Its Inhabitants Work To Supply the Rest with Their Daily Food.

"Even the oldest and best informed man in the trade," said an experienced salesman in the grocery business, "cannot begin to tell you anything about the wonderful extent of the traffic in food. Figures don't seem to express the thing so that anybody can realize how enormous the business is.

"Now everybody knows that corn makes only a small part of what anybody eats. I mean by that, nobody eats enough corn to make it a principal article of diet. Yet there is one establishment in Maryland—a corn factory, they call it,—where there are 100,400,000 cans of corn a week put up and sold.

"Now consider that this is only one establishment out of hundreds in this country, and thousands in the world, where food is put up in cans. Then think that corn is only one small item of food even among the canned goods.

"And then remember the canned goods are merely a fraction of the food supply, and you will be ready to acknowledge that the food industries are too great to be readily grasped by the imagination.

"More than three-fifths of all the workers of the world are engaged wholly in raising or handling food."

SUBSTITUTED FOR GAS

A lady who went through the trying ordeal is responsible for saying that a dentist in New York has successfully introduced electricity as a substitute for gas.

She went to him to have a tooth filled, and as she feared to take gas anticipated martyrdom.

The dentist asked her if she would not try electricity, and his explanation satisfied her of its painlessness and safety. He had a small battery with which he charged her, and when he placed the forceps to the tooth to be pulled, the instrument acted as a conductor of the electric fluid, which flowed from the tooth.

When he pulled she felt no pain, the electricity seeming to neutralize it, and the operation was performed as easily as if gas had been administered. The patient besides felt exhilarated and strengthened by the operation.

There seems to be no longer any reason why the filling and pulling of teeth should be accompanied with such fearful dread and subsequent agony.

CATARRH.

Catarrhal Deafness, Hay Fever—A New Home Treatment.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membranes of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated by which these diseases are now frequently cured in from one to three applications made at home by the patient himself in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females, douches, this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment, with numerous testimonials, will be sent free on receipt of stamp by Dr. Sheridan & Son, 303 West King St., Toronto, Ont. Mention this paper.

WHAT IS IT? AND WHAT IT IS.

Pears' Soap (Clark's Gazette of this) Skin Cure, like many other institutions of a world-wide fame, was discovered by accident. The proprietor, engaged in the preparation of certain plasters from time to time noticed the effect of working in the pale fats on the skin. If there was present any cutaneous eruptions, warts, blemishes or scrofulous symptoms, all disappeared as if by magic. After experimenting ten years, it has become a scientific fact and a priceless boon to the human race. From giving away a few bottles the demand has increased until the sale for the past two years amounts to 1,032,000 bottles. Large bottles only $1.00.

"Those stockings are all wool, I presume," she said, as she requested the clerk to wrap her up a half dozen pairs.

Professional Ignorance

Nothing is more common, nor less true, than for physicans to tell patients in the first stages of heart disease that the trouble is only nervous, etc., and of no account. Justice Stanley Matthews Ill.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 5.—Judge Stanley Matthews of the supreme court, who has been ill for many weeks and quite unable to attend to his judicial duties, is beginning slowly to convalesce, and his friends think he is out of danger. He has been attended recently by Dr. Hopper, the eminent physician of Philadelphia, who attended Gen. Sheridan, and who states that he has no organic disease, and that no reason exists why he should not recover his former robust health. The trouble from which he has been suffering is abdominal catarrh. It will be many weeks, however, before he is able to appear on the bench of the supreme court, but he will doubtless be seen there before the end of the present term.

A 16-Year-Old Counterfeiter.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Capt. Porter and the secret service officers are engaged in a hunt for a 16-year-old counterfeiter who has thus far been successful in passing a number of poorly executed $5 bills. Wednesday evening the lad jumped on several State street cable cars, in each instance paying his fare with one of the bills. When he received the $4.95 in change he jumped off. The letter "t" in the line "payable to the bearer" was notched, and the letter "r" in "bearer" fell somewhat below the line. The bills had vignettes of Gen. Grant which were coarsely executed.

Mormons Going to the Northwest.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 5.—According to returns received by the department of agriculture, over 200 Mormons have emigrated from Utah to the Canadian northwest during the past season. They are devoting themselves to cattle raising.

Sarah Jane Was Plucky.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 5.—Sarah Jane McIlroy, a 12-year-old girl, saw two tramps assaulting a citizen a month ago. Instead of fainting, she laid her parcel on the sidewalk, screamed murder, grabbed one of the assailants by the neck and hurled him aside, and gave the victim an opportunity to handle his other foe. When she modestly told her tale to court Friday she was given round after round of applause.

Declared a Dividend of 40 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 5.—The comptroller of the currency has declared a second dividend of 40 per cent. in favor of the creditors of the insolvent Second National bank, of Xenia, Ohio, making in all 80 per cent. on claims amounting to $297,551 that has been paid to the creditors of the bank. FLYING LIKE THE WIND.

The Story of an Awful Leap—Georgia's Greatest Equestrian Feat.

It was in the sixties. Mitchell's bridge across Mulberry creek was the tallest in Harris county. A swell in the creek had misplaced an arch and a dozen men had assembled to repair the damage. The flooring for twelve feet had been removed. It was twenty-five feet to the water beneath.

Suddenly the hammers ceased and the men listened intently to the approaching patter of a horse's hoofs.

"It's Jess, he-gonny," said one.

"He's splittin' the wind, too," said another.

"That little filly knows how to pick up her feet, and she don't spoil about it, neither," said number three.

"Dang my buttons!"

This was said just as the rider appeared in sight, presenting a picture of robust manhood guiding with unerring hand the fleetest little mare in Western Georgia.

He was clad in a fine broadcloth suit, his feet in a pair of the best calf skin boots, and they armed and ornamented with neat, small spurs.

On he come.

The men were lost in admiration and stood with mouth and eyes open transfixed to the spot.

He neared the bridge.

As if by magic the crowd were awakened to the horrible death that awaited the unmanned he attempt to pass over the bridge.

"Stop! stop!" shouted the men.

"The floor's up!"

"You can't cross!"

The horse's hoofs struck the bridge.

"Head him off!"

"He'll be killed!"

"Stop his horse!"

And they all rushed to the middle of the bridge.

"Clear the track!" whooped the impetuous rider, and the way was cleared.

He reached the brink. The gallant mare paused—trembled. The men stood breathless. The rider planted himself firmly in the saddle, gathered the reins tighter and sank the spurs deep into the sides of the mare.

She squatted, leaped wildly into the air and landed safely beyond the awful gap.

With unslackening pace, and without a sound save the clattering of the horse's hoofs, both steed and rider disappeared over the hill having surpassed anything of the kind in the history of Georgia.—Hamilton, Ga., Journal.

A TURKISH DINNER.

Why One Should Accept a Pasha's Invitation To Dine.

By all means accept an invitation to dine with a Turkish Pasha.

I had the pleasure of taking a meal with the Governor of Drama, who is passing rich for a Turk, seeing that he rules over the plain where the chief tobacco farms are, and his opportunities for amassing wealth are many and varied.

The table preparations are few, but the dishes are many; olives, caviare, cheese, etc., are dotted about, and perhaps as many as ten dishes are handed round on covered brazen dishes, consisting of rice or barley, meat or boiled fish, cakes seasoned with vegetables, roast lamb, beans, a species of pickle wrapped up in vine leaves, the inevitable pilaf and fruits, and as wine is forbidden, an intoxicating substitute is found in liquors and brandy.

Each person has his glass of sherbet by him, and his piece of unleavened bread, for the Turks love half-baked dough.

It will comfort the European to see every one wash his hands before his meal, for forks are unknown and each is expected to dip his fingers into the savory morsel as it is handed to him.

During the whole of the feeding process scarcely four or five words will be uttered, and at the most your repast will last twenty minutes, but, then, afterwards with the coffee and the bubble-bubble conversation will flow freely.

To the Turk eating is a serious gastronomic exercise, which will not admit of any conversation being entered into during its progress.

SOMNAMBULISM EXTRAORDINARY.

What a Young Farmer Did in His Sleep.

A young Australian near Bochara, after an unusually hard day's work sheep shearing, went to sleep on the sitting-room couch after supper.

Soon he arose, walked out into the darkness, went through four gates, which he carefully closed, to the woodshed, and then hung up his coat and took down his sheep shears and sharpened them. Then he caught a sheep and had just finished shearing it when some of the household came with a lantern.

Then it turned out that he had been asleep all the time, and the light of the lantern awakened him.

The sheep was sheared as well as though it had been done in broad daylight.

Philosophy of Mother-in-Lawism.

It is rather curious that a fair young girl, full of healthful affection and sympathy and all that sort of thing, should grow up to be a tyrannizing old mother-in-law.

It does not seem natural, but if it weren't so would everybody have such a decided opinion about them? Is it that a woman when she gets married finds herself so domineered over by a man that her only revenge is to take it out of the man who marries her daughter? Are daughters after all only a kind of bait to catch a man that a mother-in-law can get even upon?—San Francisco Chronicle.

In a Bad Way.

Kind Citizen—"I reckon so. Are yoh an orphan, sonny?"

Boy—"I'm wuss nor an orphan. Me fadder an' mudder is both diworced an' married agin', an' I don't know whose boy I am, an' am slowly forgettin' me own name."—Epoch.

Weary of Well-Doing.

An England street 6-year old-miss, who has thus early evidently grown tired of working hard to be good, ended her little prayer thus the other night:

"Please, God, make me a good girl without my helping."—St. Albans Messenger.

A Nice Distinction.

AT THE PIC-NIC.

Monsieur Bourgeois Relates the Troubles of a Man on the Committee.

I veel go on two condections; first, zat I pay my share—in advance. Second, zat I am not on zee comeetee.

At zee last peek-neck vee vere gree on zee comeetee. zee proprietaire of my house, zee zentleman of zee newspaper, and mee.

Zee ladees brought peezeon pies, zey brought sandwreches, zey brought geenger beer. But I had to breeng lobsters, I had to breeng filets de bœuf. I had to breeng champagne—because I vaus on zee comeetee.

Omnebuses, noiseek, rowboats. Ah, pourboires everywhere.

I could not ask zee proprietaire and hees guests to pay—because he would not have repaired my veetclows.

I could not ask zee zentleman of zee newspaper and hees guests to pay—because he would have put everybodee's name in zee newspaper, except mine.

I could not ask my guests to pay.

Zee people ate my dreshes; and I had to eat of zeir dreshes—because I vaus on zee comeetee.

Zee proprietaire made zee lobster salade, and carved zee filets de bœuf. Zee zentleman of zee newspaper took zee cork-screw of my penknife, zere vaus no ozer anywhere—can you tell me vhere is zat deer leetle penknife with an ivory handle? Hee made zee corks fly, and poured my champagne full in zee beegest glasses.

Zey drank my health; I had to wash zee plates—because zey vere my plates.

Zee champagne vaus pleasant; zee dreenkers felt freesky. Zee proprietaire zrew some bread at zee fat ladee; shee zought it vaus zee judge; shee zrew some at hees eye. Hee zrew some at her, but heet zee colonel's vife. Shee zrew some at zee judge. Everybodee laughed, everybodee zrew bread.

Vhat an example for my daughter! I have brought her up for twentee years with economy. Eef shee leaves only as beeg as her leetle teenger of bread at dejeuner, shee finds it under her napkeen at diner, and shee must svallow it. I say to her:

Vhen zey had vaisted two loaves of good fresh bread, zey took zee ball of zee leetle girl of zee doctor, and, like beeg cheeldreen, zey played at tennees.

No; I veel go off two condeetions; first, zat I pay my share—in advance; second, zat I am not on zee comeetee.—Galignani's Messenger.

ADMIRING THE BABY.

What Is Said and What Is Thought.

For the benefit of those who are at a loss to know just what to say on seeing a new baby for the first time, and who naturally feel that they must say something, we give the following list of expressions, any and all of which are commonly used, there being no patent or copyright on them.

Whether you shall offer to kiss the infant depends somewhat on its age and appearance, and the extent to which you are willing to sacrifice yourself in order to please the baby's mamma. The baby itself doesn't care a picayune for your feelings or your kisses, but you are expected to say:

Bright-eyed little chap, isn't he?
Why, how large he is!
I don't think I ever saw so young a child look around so.
How much does it weigh?
What lovely, silky hair!
Looks ever so much like you!
What a rosebuddy of a mouth!
Do let me see his toes!
How very wise it seems!
Oh, what a dandy little girl she is!

Any of the above will please the ordinary mamma. It is at your own risk that you speak the truth and say:

Ugh! I suppose I must kiss it, but I hate to.—Time.

Johnny Was All Right.

"You don't eat a great deal, my little man," said the minister, who was taking dinner with Johnny's parents.

"No, sir; don't need to."

"Forty days ain't nothing."

"Johnny, don't talk nonsense," interposed his mother.

"Why, ma, it ain't anything at all." Then turning to the minister, "I've got an uncle who lived over a month on water."

"Why, Johnny," said his mother again, "if you don't stop telling stories—"

"But it isn't a story. It's my uncle Ned, who is captain of an ocean steamer, I guess, ma, he's lived on water more'n a month often."—Merchant Traveler.

The Old Man's Mistake.

Mrs. Hendricks was entertaining some ladies at a select little 5 o'clock tea, and Bobby, who had been exceptionally well behaved, was in high feather.

"Ma," he said politely, as refreshments were being served, "may I have some tongue, please?"

"There isn't any tongue, Bobby."

Professional Opinion.

Young Mother (whose baby has been weighed by the butcher)—"And how much does the dear little fellow weigh, Mr. Bullwinkle?"

Butcher—"Twenty pounds, mum."

Young Mother—"Isn't he a splendid specimen?"

THE FIELD OF SLAUGHTER.

Reminiscences by Two Officers of the Union Army.

General Henderson, of Iowa, was talking the other day of the little attention paid by men during the war to their wounds, when he said:

"At Corinth I was a lieutenant in the 13th Iowa. There was a man in my company whose gun had got clogged in some way or other and refused to work, and that fact utterly deprived this fellow of his nerve. I suppose he thought that if he had to face the enemy with a weapon worse than nothing he was a 'goner' sure.

"I saw what was the matter and so I said to him, and a man isn't apt to be very choice in his language at such times;

"'You infernal fool, why don't you pick the tube out with a pin like you used to when hunting prairie chickens?'

"The words 'prairie chickens' had a familiar sound and he accepted my advice and was soon all right again. A little later that man was badly wounded in the thigh but he dragged himself behind a tree and didn't give up until he had fired his last cartridge.

"I saw another instance of what excitement will do for wounded men.

"At Donelson I was wounded in the neck and was in the hospital with a good many other men suffering from bad wounds.

"The next day after the battle we heard the sounds of cheering and were told that a flag of truce had been sent out. We knew what that meant.

"Now, an hour before we heard that news we were all so badly wounded that we couldn't do the slightest thing without assistance, but which we knew that our army had won a great victory we forgot wounds and everything else and cheered and shouted like healthy men.

"The effect of the ebullition of enthusiasm was to reopen many a wound and in several cases cause relapses, but that was something we didn't consider, or didn't care for."

Congressman Laird, of Nebraska, was in the group listening to General Henderson:

"Fear," he said, "is a peculiar thing. I came to appreciate the horrors of war in a curious sort of way:

"After the battle of Hanover Court House, Virginia, on the 25th of May, 1862, I saw the dead piled upon the field. Their frightfully distorted faces, their gaping wounds, from which the blood still trickled in some cases, the shattered limbs and the general air of carnage was horrible to one not used to such scenes, as I was not at that time, and made a great and lasting impression on me.

"A few days later while watching some men drilling I fell asleep under a pine tree. And as I slept the horrors of what I had seen on the field rose before me, only more awful, if such a thing is possible. The agony on the contorted faces were so terrible that I could appreciate how those men had suffered, and all the hideousness of battle was brought so vividly before me that it was more horrible than even the real thing.

"While gazing on this picture in my dream I had this proposition presented to me, and it was put as plainly as if I had indulged in an argument: Something said to me:

"'You have seen what war means. Will you take the chances and perhaps end as these men have, or will you try and save yourself by playing the part of a coward?'

"That was the condition that confronted me, and I realized just exactly what it meant. I made up my mind to take my chances, and I believe I can fairly say without vanity that after that dream I had very little fear of the consequences."

A man who has practiced medicine forty years, ought to know salt from sand; read what he says.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 10, 1887.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co.—Gentlemen:—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience, have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as I can Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.

Yours Truly,
L. L. GORSUCH, M. D.,
Office, 215 Summit St.

We will give $100 for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured with Hall's Catarrh Cure. Taken internally.

The report of the East Blissfield school for the month of October shows the number of pupils enrolled as 144, with an average daily attendance of 119. Ten foreign pupils are getting educated there.

Last Tuesday Mort Acker walked in from Jackson, a distance of 52 miles in ten hours and twenty minutes. He performed this rapid pedestrian act on a wager that he could not walk that far in 15 hours.—Morenci Observer.

Had a regular walkover on that bet.

Wm. Curtis, senior member of the well known firm of Curtis & Sons, of Wheatland, Hillsdale county, died of heart difficulty at his residence Oct. 27, '88. He was born at Libertyville, Tompkins county, N. Y., Aug. 24, 1808.

A. H. Hotchkin is celebrating the 78th anniversary of his birthday today, and has lived 50 of those years in the Wolverine state, in Saline and vicinity. He voted twice for Harrison in '36 and '40, and says he will make it three times by voting for his grandson, next Tuesday.—Saline Observer.

Mrs. Clough, of the Brooklyn Exponent, says: "To-day is the 292d day of the year, leaving but 74 more days. Girls, you will not have a chance again for four years. Make good use of the remaining 74 days of leap-year." By the way, what has our dear sister editor been doing these more than three years? Will she allow the harvest to be past, and the summer ended, and thus neglect her own advice?—Adrian Press. It isn't our fault brother. The harvest is great, but the laborers are many, and a widow does not stand much of a show among so many fair damsels. Alas that this should be thus.—Exponent.

Work continues at the gas well without any delays though the progress is quite slow. The present depth is about 1300 feet, and the drill is working in a white rock, generally called marble—which was struck at the depth of 1150 feet. In the Nogar well the same layer was reached at 1350 feet, and with a variation of colors continued for about 400 feet, when the slate was reached. The drillings now drawn from the well are powdered and fine like flower. The contractors report the rock for past 300 feet the hardest encountered by them in any of their jobs of work, so hard that the drill bounds back with each stroke as it strikes the rock. The slate will probably be reached at the depth of about 1550 feet when the well will be cased and the water shut out, after which the Trenton rock and gas will be speedily reached. The small flow of gas obtained in the early part of the work still continues without diminishing. To-morrow the contractors will complete 45 day of drilling.—Dundee Reporter.

The Democrats of Tecumseh held their final rally last Saturday evening, when the eloquent revenue reformer, Frank Hurd of Toledo, addressed an audience that crowded the opera house to overflowing. He delivered a masterly speech one hour and a half in length, which held his hearers entranced to the very close.

Large numbers of Democrats boarded the special train for Adrian last Monday night, including the city band, to attend the rally in that city. The parade was the largest held in Adrian this campaign and the crowd was immense. Mr. Stearns addressed an audience at the opera house and also on the balcony of the Lawrence House.

The Republican torchlight parade last Monday night, was the largest and most brilliant demonstration of that kind seen in Tecumseh for years. About 600 marchers were in line including the Tecumseh fife club, which led the parade, and 140 horsemen. The Republican residences along the route were handsomely decorated and illuminated. Gen. Spaulding addressed a crowded house and made an able effort in discussing the tariff.

We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Inman's Perfect Cider Preservative, found on another page of this paper. This article has enjoyed a very large sale in the vicinity of its manufacture for the last eight or ten years, which is conclusive evidence of its merit; and coming from a firm who occupy so enviable a position in business, and especially in drug circles, as Inman Bros. do, we feel no hesitancy in recommending it to our subscribers for trial. It is guaranteed absolutely wholesome. Give it a trial.

The campaign supper proved a decided success in every particular. The dining room remained open Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, and netted a handsome sum to the Episcopal society, under whose auspices it was held. In view of the great importance of the photo-engraving process in book, magazine and newspaper illustration, and the excellent opportunity afforded young artists throughout the country to obtain at home immediate pecuniary returns for their work. The Art Amateur during 1889 will not only give particular attention to instructing them in pen drawing for reproduction, but will also show them how to make their own plates ready for actual newspaper use. The first of the series of articles on these processes by Mr. W. H. Burbank appears in the November number.

There is probably nothing that will make a more acceptable and useful present than one of the comfortable Luburg Adjustable Easy Chairs with its Fifty changes of position. This wonderful chair which sells from Seven Dollars and upwards is manufactured by the Luburg Manufacturing Co., 145 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., who are the largest manufacturers of Adjustable Reclining Chairs for family, liberary and invalid use, or Invalid Wheel Chairs for street use; also, makers of the finest and most complete line of Baby Coaches in the United States. They have discontinued wholesaling goods and have cut prices so low that other houses cannot compete with them. Catalogues will be mailed on application by enclosing stamp and stating kind of goods desired.

Another exquisite water-color! and we learn that it is only one of a series; so before Demorest's Monthly Magazine finishes this series we will have quite a collection. The one in the November number of this favorite Family Magazine just received is certainly very beautiful. It is called "Mine!" and is a study of the head of a child with a bunch of roses clasped to her breast. It looks like an original water-color worth many dollars. Besides the beautiful in the November number, the practical is very marked. The chapter on "Help" gives employers a point as to their rights, and tells the housewife just how to handle "Bridget" if she does not mind her P's and Q's. "Afternoon Teas and Receptions" answers all the questions that might be asked on this now most fashionable way of entertaining. "Dorothy's Window Garden" gives some novel ideas about this delightful mode of decoration. "The World's Progress" recounts the passing events of the month, and numerous other articles and stories furnish amusement and instruction for the family. This comprehensive Magazine should be found in every household. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East Fourteenth St., N. Y.

THE ELECTION IN TECUMSEH.

The Vote as Compared with that of Four Years Ago Shows a Republican Gain.

The result of Tuesday's election in this village proved very gratifying to the Republicans if not to Democrats and Prohibitionists. The number of ballots cast was below that of four years ago, but the Republicans polled their full strength and carried the day by a majority of 16. The Prohibitionists made a slight gain over '84, but their vote was below that of '86. In '84 the Democrats and Greenbackers polled 349 votes, and on last Tuesday 324, of which 297 were straight. The whole number of votes cast Tuesday was 749, divided for electors as follows:

Cleveland & Thurman—324.
Fisk & Brooks—85.

The Prohibs polled 66 straight tickets and the Republicans 279, most of the slips on the latter being for Capt. Fred E. Wood. He made a splendid run and the figures show that he ran 88 ahead of his ticket.

It was a busy day for the workers and they improved each golden opportunity from the opening to the close of the polls. Betting was about even and considerable money changed hands on the result in the county. The last wager come across was a load of wood against a turkey, and there is one Republican who will eat his Thanksgiving dinner without its costing him anything. The opera house was filled during the night by enthusiasts from all parties awaiting the returns. The dispatches as read decidedly favored the Republicans. Wednesday morning the Republicans turned out with smiling faces and money in their pockets, but the Democrats were not to be scared out, and one unterrified put up $25 on the general result, while several smaller sums were wagered.

The County Result.

We give below the result in the county on the electoral vote. The Republicans made a clean sweep, carrying the entire county ticket and all three members of the legislature. E. P. Allen has about 1,000 majority over Stearns for Congress in the district. Capt. Wood runs largely ahead of his ticket in this section of the county, but not enough to overcome the party majority. On the general result, Cleveland seems to have carried all the states he did four years ago except New York and Indiana, which have gone for Harrison. California and Connecticut are in doubt, but the chances favor the Republicans in both these states.

THE LATEST RETURNS.

The returns this morning change the situation somewhat, but there is no reasonable doubt of Harrison's election. Only partial returns are at hand from California and Wisconsin, and both parties claim these two states, but they will probably settle down in the Republican column where we have placed them. This club held their first evening meeting at the residence of James Updyke. After the program the transaction of miscellaneous business occupied a short time. THE FARMERS UNION.

The Farmers' Union met at Elias Brown's, Friday evening, Nov. 2. The President and Vice President being absent, a president pro tem was appointed to take charge of the meeting. Tecumseh Steam Mills.

Are prepared to grind Buckwheat, and anyone having Buckwheat can get a No. 1 Flour as we have a new process for making, and can make a much nicer quality of Flour than heretofore.
B. BURTCH.

Hollowe'en was duly observed by the young people of the village last evening. Things moyable were carried off and placed in outlandish positions. A barrel rack was found on the roof of Miss Ebbitt's building; Frank Muir's buggy was placed on top of Burton's building; a pile of cord wood at the Town Hall was used to construct a rail fence in front; signs, etc. were changed; Will Muir's butcher wagon was taken away and had not been found at last account; the rope on Frank Lancaster's pole was cut and other depredations committed. Some of our citizens are very indignant, yes, angry over the affair and threatened legal punishment in case they can ascertain who disturbed their property.—Clinton Local.

Consider A. Stacy departed this life at his residence in Tecumseh, last Monday night at fifteen minutes past eleven o'clock. He was stricken with a paralytic attack on Thursday, Oct. 25th, and continued to grow worse until death ensued. Several times last week he seemed to rally, but a reaction would set in that left him weaker than before. On Monday he failed very rapidly, and in the afternoon became unconscious. He passed away very peacefully, without suffering the least pain, with his wife and children at his bedside.

The funeral services will be held at the family residence, on Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, and will be under the supervision of the Lenawee Co. Bar Association. In addition to the usual religious exercises, a brief funeral oration will be delivered by Judge Thos. M. Cooley, of Ann Arbor. An opportunity will be accorded to all, who may so desire, to view the remains between the hours of eleven a. m. and one p. m. The services will begin promptly at the appointed hour, to give the visitors from Adrian ample time to return on the afternoon train.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Calhoun county board of supervisors have decided to patch up their old rookery of a poorhouse and make it last awhile longer. The $6,000 required to do the patching would make quite a start toward new buildings that would be more in keeping with modern civilization.

Some fellow burgled the Luther post office the other night and got away with $400 of Uncle Sam's and the postmaster's pocket change.

A black bear wandered down into Calhoun county but civilization was too much for him. He dressed nearly 200 pounds.

It is announced that Grand Rapids will have a new railway depot next year, one that will be an ornament to that enterprising city.

Lansing can now pay Mrs. Mary Dundas $5,000 for keeping holes in her sidewalks, into one of which Mary fell and hurt herself.

While China sends us tea for our tin, a Lansing firm sends the Chinese condensed milk to put into theirs. That's modern reciprocity.

An alcoholic breath and heavy sea gait characterized 33 of the 1,000 people who have been introduced to the Grand Rapids lasting during the past seven months.

Saginaw City Episcopalians are going to invest $[illegible] in new parish buildings. They ought to be slick enough for most anybody to live in.

Michigan railroads earned $6,594,800 in August, against $7,500,495 for August, '87, and $43,641,260 for the eight months from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1, against $40,[illegible] for the same period last year.

The Chicago & Grand Trunk railway has just paid Caroline Heath, of Battle Creek, $2,000 because Caroline hurt her knee while alighting from a passenger train of that company some months ago.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway company has given notice that it waives all claim to the disputed upper peninsula lands, and the homesteaders are happy.

W. H. Teller, a Bronson farmer, has lost five horses, valued at $1,000, within the past eighteen months. No one seems to have been able to diagnose the disease that carried 'em off.

Miss Sadie Owen, a young lady of Pontiac, broke a pair of fiery mustangs with her own hands, and then drove 'em over to Saginaw, a distance of sixty five miles, to visit a lady friend of that city. There's a girl who can do something besides bang the piano.

A Saginaw lady avers she lost a railway ticket and $17 in cash in a store of that town, and now brings suit against the proprietor to recover damages. If she wins there'll probably be a general stampede in business circles.

Macomb comes smilingly to the front as the only county in the state that pays its entire state tax.

Mrs. Catherine Clark, a Big Rapids lady of 89 years, has nearly a baker's dozen of living children, the oldest of whom is 63, twenty-one grandchildren and twenty-five great-grandchildren. Her father died in his 100th year, while two sisters are living at the age of 87 and 93 respectively.

While the East Saginaw police were napping the other night, burglars drilled a safe on Washington avenue and abstracted the cash contents therefrom. The climate of Muskegon seems to be favorable for the production of strawberries and sawdust. But that's not all. Michael Cowley, of that city, has taken the $150 prize, offered by a Philadelphia seedsman, for the largest cabbage grown in the United States. It weighed 62¾ pounds.

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence st., Lowell, Mass.

Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tereb, (of Fernandina, Fla.,) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For two months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 146 Chambers st., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time disorders of the stomach and liver increased the troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. CONQUEST OF CANAAN.

LESSON VI, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, NOV. 11.

Text of the Lesson, Josh xiv, 5-15—Commit Verses 10-11—Golden Text, Ps. xxxvii, 3—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

After the defeat of Israel at Ai because of the sin of Achan, then followed the discovery and conviction of the transgressor, and the putting to death by stoning of Achan and all his family, and the burning by fire of the stolen silver, gold and garment and all that belonged to him in the valley of Achor. Thus wrath was turned away from Israel, and then, at the Lord's command, all the men of war went up against Ai and took it, and the rest of the history is a succession of great victories, until thirty-one kings have been slain and their cities destroyed.

5. "As the Lord commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did, and they divided the land." Although there remained yet very much land to be possessed (xiii, 1), yet it had all been conquered and divided, and it only remained for each tribe now to fully possess its own territory which had been assigned to it. How slothful and disobedient they were in this matter is hinted at in ch. xviii, 3, and more fully described with its sad results in the book of Judges. Israel's failures in this respect are but pictures of our own, we who are believers in Jesus Christ have been made by virtue of His merits children of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ, and we ought to have perfect rest and peace and manifest in our lives that we have real fellowship, real joyous and soul satisfying, with the Father and the Son by the Holy Spirit. Now how many Christians do we know who seem to live as children of a King; restful, happy, peaceful, and having constant victory over all enemies, as if they really lived in Beulah land?

6. "The children of Judah came unto Joshua in Gilgal." It was from Gilgal, where the reproach of Egypt had been rolled away, that Joshua set out on all those victorious expeditions (v, 9; ix, 6; x, 7, 9, 15, 43) teaching us that if we would have constant victory we must ever go forth believing that there is no condemnation to them that are in Christ.

"Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, the Kenezite." We are first introduced to him in Numbers xiii, 6, as one of the twelve spies, and in that and the following chapter as the one who with Joshua brought a good report and encouraged the people to go right up and possess the land. The testimony of the Lord concerning him is "My servant, Caleb, who followed me fully." (Num. xiv, 24.)

7. "I brought him word, as it was in mine heart." Probably the ten also brought Moses word as it was in their hearts; the difference was in the hearts of the ten and the two. Joshua and Caleb believed God and were ready to obey Him; the other ten did not believe God and consequently disobeyed Him. We do well to remember that the Lord looketh upon the heart; He searcheth all hearts and understandeth all the imagination of the thoughts (1 Sam. xvi, 7.

8. "My brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt." Their report caused the people to faint and be discouraged, because they called their attention to the difficulties and thus shut out God.

"But I wholly followed the Lord my God," and thus the difficulties were not seen, for God is greater than all that can be against us.

9. In Heb. xii, 2, we are taught to run with patience looking unto Jesus, and the expression: "Looking unto Jesus" signifies a looking with such undivided attention that He shall fill all our soul's vision and we shall see "Jesus only." Thus we shall be strong in the Lord and help to make others strong.

9. "The land whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance." This was the promise on which he had lived for forty-five years, we find it referred to in Deut. i, 36; he was evidently fully persuaded that it would in due time be fulfilled. Thus all the worthies of Heb. xi believed God and waited patiently for the fulfillment of His promises; are waiting yet, for it is written that they died in faith, not having received the promises; and that they without us shall not be made perfect, and not until He that shall come will come, will the promised inheritance be theirs and ours. (Heb. x, 35-37, xi, 13, 39, 40.)

10. "The Lord hath kept me alive as He said." All power is His, who is the faithful promiser, and because of His faithfulness none of His redeemed can perish. Not one good thing shall fail of all that He has promised; all shall be fulfilled; and it shall all be as He says. Blessed are they that believe, for they shall be filled with joy and peace. (Josh. xxi, 45; Rom. xv, 13.)

11. "I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me." How grand to hear this old man of 85 thus talking about his strength for war, nothing daunted by the difficulties before him, but relying upon and rejoicing in the Lord, in whom he trusted, he feels as young and strong as he did forty-five years before.

12. "Give me this mountain—the Lord with me, I shall be able to drive them out." Although the cities were great and fenced, and there were giants there, he heeds it not, but believing that nothing was too hard for the Lord, in whom he trusted, and on whom he relied, he asks Joshua for this mountain. Oh, for a faith like this, which reckons not on one's own strength, but on the strength of an Almighty One who says: Lo, I am with you always, and all power is given unto me in heaven and on earth.

13. "Joshua blessed him." Confidence in God always brings a blessing, and one that is real and lasting. "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. He sent His angel and delivered His servants that trusted in Him. No manner of hart was found upon Him, because He believed in His God. Blessed is she that believed. Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." (Ps. xvii, 7; Dan. iii, 28; vi, 23; Lu. i, 45; John xx, 29.) "And gave unto Caleb Hebron for an inheritance." Hebron is one of the most interesting spots in all Palestine; it is about twenty miles south of Jerusalem, and about the same distance north of Beersheba. There Abram dwelt and built an altar unto the Lord after Lot was separated from Him; there Sarah died, and Abram bought the cave of Machpelah, in which to bury her; there Isaac sojourned and died, there in that cave he buried, Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah, Jacob and Leah, and at this very day the place is most sacredly guarded, so that a stranger cannot enter its precincts nor look into it. (Gen. xiii, 18; xxiii, 2, 19; xxxv, 27-29; xlix, 31; l, 13.)

14. "Because he wholly followed the Lord God of Israel." Not only in the world to come, but very often in this present world, is there a great reward to those who follow the Lord even in this dispensation; but we must wait for the next one before we can hope to inherit the earth, for it is still under the curse, an evil world, and not fit for a holy people; in it we are still to expect much tribulation. Notwithstanding the curse which abounds on every side and in every form, we may however have great peace and wonderful foretastes of glory if we will only, like Caleb, follow the Lord fully, and not afar off, as Peter did before he denied his Master. Study the following texts upon following Jesus: Matt. iv, 19; ix, 9; viii, 23; xvi, 24; xix, 21; John i, 43; vii, 36; xxi, 19, 22.

EIGHTY YEARS AGO.

A Girl's Life of That Period—Interesting Extracts from Her Correspondence.

Eliza Southgate, afterward Mrs. Walter Bowne, was born at Scarborough, Maine, on September 24, 1783, the third of the twelve children of a physician and judge in that seaport.

Her published letters begin when she was 14 and went to a boarding school at Medford. She was then in the solemn stage of letter writing:

"With pleasure I sit down to the best of parents to inform them of my situation, as doubtless they are anxious to hear—permit me to tell them something of my foolish heart," which turns out to mean that the poor girl had been crying at being left alone at school. However, she soon gets to practical details.

"There's four beds in the chamber and two persons in each bed. We have chocolate for breakfast and supper."

She misses "above all things our cheese and butter, which we have but very little of, but I am very contented."

She wants "a flannel waist and a petticoat," which shows how early "waist" became, in the American tongue, an article of dress. Also, "I have found the nubs and sent them to Portland."

Then she was sent to another school which she liked much better, kept by an English woman and an ex actress, Mrs. Rowson or Rawson, who "treats all her scholars with such a tenderness as would win the affection of the most savage brute."

Eliza seems to have left school before she was 16, and early in 1800 we find her continually engaged in "parties, plays, balls, etc. Last night was ball night," and "I had charming partners always."

"For mourning for Washington," who had died not quite two months previously, "the ladies dress much as if for a relation, some entirely in black, but now many wear only a ribbon with a line painted on it."

The next letter deserves quotation:

"Now, mamma, what do you think I am going to ask for—a wig. Eleanor has got a new one just like my hair and only $5, Mrs. Mayo one just like it. I must either cut my hair or have one; I cannot dress at all stylish.

"Mrs. Coffin bought Eleanor's and says that she will write to Mrs. Sumner to get me one just like it; how much time it will save—in one year we could save it in pins and paper, besides the trouble. At the assembly I was quite ashamed of my head, for nobody has long hair.

"If you will consent to my having one do send me over a $5 bill by the post immediately after you receive this, for I am in hopes to have it for the next assembly. Do send me word immediately if you can let me have one."

Eliza was made happy with her wig, and seems to have thought it rather a good joke when she accidentally pulled it off with her bonnet. This was one of many adventures and misadventures described in one of the best of her early letters.

ONE VERY YOUNG CRANK.

A One-Year-Old Boy Makes His Troubles Known to the World.

Tommy Cute, aged 1, having suffered as long as he can stand it, writes to me in order that his grievances, being known to the public, may immediately be cured.

I object, he says, in the first place, to being forced to adopt Farmer Jones' brindle cow for a foster mother.

I object also to the existence of a like relationship between myself and the condensed milk factory or the corn-starch mill.

I object to having my stomach stuffed as a remedy for a mosquito bite on my little toe or a nasty pin in my back.

I object to personating a churn. I prefer to take my butter after the churning process is completed.

I object to being kissed by all the women, old and young, who come near me. I prefer to wait a few years, or at least until I shall be old enough to make my own selections.

I object to having people ask about my age. It is an impertinence. Besides, grown people sometimes remember, and of ages they are apt in keeping a record.

I object to going hungry until company is served. For my part, I don't see what people want company for. Company is a nuisance. Mamma and papa have said so hundreds of times in my hearing.

I object to being obliged to go about with my neck and arms bare. When it is hot the flies and mosquitoes bother me awfully, and when the air is chilly I feel as though I were freezing to death.

I object, when I go out to ride in my perambulator, to having myself left alone in the sun while my maid sports with that long-legged chap with the yellow mustache and ready-made clothing.

I object to being sent to bed when I am not sleepy, and to having a nasty rubber tube stuck into my mouth every time I turn over in the night.

I object to having strangers make faces at me. They give me an awful start sometimes when they think they are amusing me.

I object to being spoken to by people with whom I am not acquainted. Why don't they wait for an introduction?

I object to being the only child in the family. It's awful lonesome not to have any brothers or sisters. I wish I had been born when it was fashionable to have large families.

I object to being called Tom, just because my papa was called Tom when he was a boy. Because his papa gave him a name he didn't like was no reason for giving me a name I detest. I should think a boy ought to be allowed to choose his own name.

I object to wearing dresses and having my hair curled. Half the folks think I'm a girl.

I object to being bossed by women. A man ought to be his own master. I'm just sick of petticoat government.

I object to being taught baby talk. What good does it do me? After I have become proficient in it I have to go to work and unlearn it and learn grown folks' language. Why don't they teach me that in the first place?

I object to having folks bore me with their silly stories which I have heard so many times that they are veritable chestnuts.

I object to having people humbug me all the time. They tell me what I should do and what I should not do. I notice that they are not given to taking their own medicine. What dunces they are not to know that I learn more from what I see than from what they tell me.

There's lots of other things to which I object, but this will do for a starter.—Boston Transcript.

The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—I can cheerfully and truthfully say that S. S. S. is the greatest blood purifier on earth. In 1884 I contracted blood poison. Physicians treated me with no good results. I took a half dozen different kinds of blood medicines, but, without receiving any permanent relief. I was induced to try S. S. S. I began the first bottle with the gravest doubts of success. I had been so often deceived. But improvement came, and I continued its use until perfectly well. I have since married, and have a healthy family. No trace of the disease is seen. Swift's Specific did all this for me, and I am grateful. Yours truly, J. S. STRADER.

GRAPES AND GRAPE JUICE.

The art of preserving Grape Juice without fermentation and the art of fermenting the Oporto Grape into wine in this country has been brought to a greater degree of perfection by Mr. Alfred Speer, of New Jersey, than by any other person. The Claret and Burgundy are very popular as dinner wine and the Port and Unfermented Juice as evening wines as well as for the communion table and for invalids. For sale by druggists.

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently entirely destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure.

CAUGHT BY A PRAIRIE FIRE.

Five Persons and Much Property Burned in Minnesota.

JACKSON, Minn., Nov. 2.—A courier arrived here yesterday with the news that on Thursday afternoon a prairie fire swept over Sioux Valley township, Jackson county, and destroyed thousands of dollars worth of property and five lives. The fire originated in the southern part of the township, and fanned by a strong gale, burned over a strip of country over two miles wide and four miles long. Henry Ray, a young farmer who, with a number of others, was engaged in fighting the fire, was burned so seriously that he died yesterday morning. His hair and beard were burned off, and the flesh on his hands literally cooked, a portion of it dropping off and exposing the bones.

Mrs. Mollie O'Conner, with her babe 4 weeks old, and a Mrs. Murray and her 10-year-old son, who were visiting at the O'Connors, in attempting to reach a place of safety, got into the track of the flames. They ran for a considerable distance and then fell down exhausted and were burned to death. Nothing remained of the babe but a few bones, and the bodies of the others presented a sickening sight.

It is reported that another family of three persons, living on the northwest border of the township, were burned to death, and parties have gone from here to investigate. The value of the property destroyed, including hay and grain in stack, etc., will not fall short of $50,000.

PRISONER AND SHERIFF GONE.

A Michigan Official Disappears While in Charge of a Bad Man.

HARRISVILLE, Mich., Nov. 3.—For several years Martin McNearney has kept at some point in Alcona or Oscoda counties an infamous den of the worst kind known in the lower peninsula. Many attempts were made to root it out, but all of them failed, as McNearney had influential friends who saved him at critical moments. Recently, however, the true character of his place was exposed in a Detroit paper, and publicity spurred the Alcona county authorities to renew the attempt to stamp the den out of existence. This was finally done at a cost to the county of over $600, and McNearney was sentenced to the state prison at Jackson for a term of years. He was put into Sheriff Sterritt's hands to be taken to Jackson. Sterritt and McNearney left together, but Sterritt did not return, and inquiry being made it was learned that McNearney had not been delivered at Jackson at all, and that Sterritt had fled. The information creates great excitement in this county, and much indignation is expressed.

Mighty Rough on the Settlers.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 3.—Judge Brewer has just handed down a decision in the famous Allen county case in which certain alternate sections of land granted by the government to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway were claimed by the settlers thereon. Judge Brewer holds that the land in question legally belongs to the railroad, and the settlers will therefore be compelled to give up possession to the company. The land embraces a large amount of the most fertile farming lands in the county, and this adverse decision will be a blow to the settlers whose homes are thus taken from them. About 500 settlers are thrown out of their homes by the decision. Many of them have occupied the lands for ten or fifteen years and have made extensive improvements.

A Chicago Ex-Striker Shot.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Last night about 10 o'clock John Miller, an ex-striker on the south side railway, threw a stone at a new man on a Garfield avenue car, striking the man on the arm. A policeman on the car pursued the assailant, calling on him stop, and as he would not, shot at him. The man fell and was found in a hole in the sidewalk with his neck broken and a bullet wound in the hip. There was great excitement among the dead man's friends for awhile, but no violence took place.

"Iowa—Condition good in forty-seven counties, poor in two, fair in eight, some cholera in five counties, movement slow in twenty-seven counties, free in thirteen.

"Kansas—Condition good in twenty-two counties, fair in seven, some cholera in one county, movement slow in sixteen counties, free in nine."

Engineer and Fireman Fatally Hurt.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 3.—A Hazleton express on the North & West Branch railroad, running without engine, at Nescopeck last evening. The engine was backing out of a siding when the passenger train came along. Engineer Samuel Dalrick and his fireman, George Steltz, of the passenger train, were probably fatally injured. The baggage master also sustained serious injuries. Five engines were wrecked. The passengers were shaken up and bruised, but not seriously injured.

Dairy Column.

For the encouragement of improved methods of Dairying. Information upon all matters relating to the manufacture of butter and cheese and handling of milk will be given in answer to questions mailed to the Bureau at above address.

The Best Horse Wins the Race

In every country the farmers are more and more looking to the dairy as their only salvation, and no wonder, as intelligent dairying has always responded freely to the call for financial help, and this is proved by the fact that such communities are always well-to-do.

When fairying was pushed to the front twenty years ago in Denmark, croakers said: "What is to become of our wheat production when we reduce the wheat fields?"—and the fact is, more wheat is produced on a smaller area, thanks to the higher culture and heavier manuring entailed by dairy farming. Croakers have also been heard in America for several years: "If we build more creameries, more cheese factories, what is to become of the surplus? There will surely be a glut in the market!" they keep on saying, and nevertheless—in spite of all the new factories that are being built yearly—we have been exporting less butter, less cheese in the last year. The home consumption is increasing just in proportion as we produce real fine butter, real fine cheese, and it is only the poor butter and cheese that has and will have to go a-begging for a market.

Denmark has long enjoyed the reputation of being at the head of all dairy countries for butter production, but it is only by eternal vigilance, it is only by continual watching for every nice improvement, it is only by never slackening the reins that she will keep ahead in the race.

Ireland and Germany, France and even Italy are erecting dairy schools, and in London I saw a tub of Irish butter that was very nearly "neck and neck" with fine Danish butter. At Munster dairy-school the manager told me that 500 girls had been trained there, and the officials at Cork butter market acknowledged the good effect on the market caused by this training. At London dairy show last week 48 girls competed for the championship in butter making. At the Glasgow and Copenhagen exhibitions, working dairies have been running for four months. So the course is clear and open to all communities for a fair race, and "the foremost horse will win it."

But if this is the case with communities, it is no less so with the individual dairymen. In each community, the farmer that produces the finest butter, the cheese factory that produces the finest cheese, will find a ready sale for the products, will win the race.

But to win a race, it is not enough to have a good horse (cow) and train it well, feed her well, but the rider (maker) must also be well trained, and he must be given a good saddle (the best of dairy utensils), and he must be allowed both spurs and whip (authority) to push her to the front, to win the race.

Whether you are making your own butter, or selling your milk or cream, remember this: "The best horse will win the race." In either case, do not neglect the small things. My observations on a trip through several European countries has strengthened my conviction that it is on the "little details" that it hinges whether a dairyman wins the race or not; and one matter I have reason to believe we have been too inclined to consider as one of the less important details, and that is the keeping of the cows, and especially their bags and teats, perfectly clean. In fact we have been too out to think that straining the milk should redeem any neglect in this direction. Yet, what a straining! Through a fine wire sieve, or, at most, through a linen or cotton cloth. This is not at all enough, and I again remind of the simple use of a piece of flannel as a step ahead. But even if we adopted the newest system used by the Copenhagen Milk Supply Co., that is filtering through sponges, even then I say "one ounce of prevention is better than ten pounds of remedies."

ADOLPHUS LE CLARE.

There isn't much in him, 'tis true,
But his eyes they are porcelain blue,
And his hands—oh, such loves!
With their delicate gloves,
That are always an exquisite hue.

But one thing about this Le Clare,
With the perfumed ambrosial hair,
That makes him the pride
Of his sex, far and wide,
Is his witching society air!

He lacks a man's inches in height,
But his linen is faultlessly white;
And the grace of his "tie"
As he goes mincing by,
It would put a mere artist to flight!

His soft little heart knows no care,
He is fond, he is sweet, he is fair;
His voice has a squeak,
For his timbre is weak,
But, oh, my! his society air!

As he journeys through fashion's gay street,
So small are his dear little feet,
With his footmin—"three-ess"
Which he wears with such ease,
That his walking is something complete!

The charming Adolphus Le Clare,
Who parts in the middle his hair,
Ne'er racks his poor brains
With deep thought, yet sustains
His witching society air!

VERY HARD TIMES.

Pins Twelve Dollars a Paper!

In August, 1864, in the Confederacy, a private citizen's coat and vest, made of five yards of homespun cloth, cost $230, exclusive of the price paid for the making. The trimmings consisted of old cravats, and for the cutting and putting together a country tailor charged $50.

It is safe to say that the private citizen looked a veritable guy in his new suit in spite of its heavy drain upon his pocket-book.

In January, 1865, the material for a lady's dress, which, before the war would have cost $10, could not be bought for less than $500.

The masculine mind is unequal to the task of guessing how great a sum might have been had for bonnets "brought through the lines;" for, in spite of patient self sacrificing and unfaltering devotion at the bedsides of the wounded in the hospitals, or in ministering to the needs of relatives and dependents at home, the Southern women of those days are credited with as keen an interest in the fashions as women everywhere in civilized lands are apt to be in times of peace.

It was natural that they should be so interested, even though that interest could in the main not reach beyond theory. Without it they often would have had a charm the less and a pang the more.

Any feminine garment in the shape of cloak or bonnet or dress which chanced to come from the North was readily awarded its meed of praise, and reproduced by sharp-eyed observers, so far as the scarcity of materials would admit.

But fashion's rules were necessarily much relaxed in the Southern Confederacy, so far as practice went, when even such articles as pins brought through the blockade sold for $12 a paper and needles for $10, with not enough of either.—Century.

SPINSTERS AND BACHELORS.

They are Creatures Suffering from Mutilated Natures.

As for the "Glorified Spinster," we decline to think her glorified at all.

She is simply a woman who lives a more or less unnatural life of self-dependence—the degree of the unnaturalness depending on the degree of her self-dependence and the completeness of the disappearance of that religious devoutness which prevents loneliness from degenerating into self-dependence—just as a glorified bachelor, if there be such a being, is simply a man who lives a more or less unnatural life of anxiety for himself, instead of for others on behalf of whom his nature craves to act.

There is no glorification in any kind of mutilation, and it is as much a mutilation of the feminine nature to live the self-dependent life without the power of constantly entering into the feelings and wants of others, as it is a mutilation of the masculine nature to live a life of self-dependence in which there is no large element of constant responsibility for the external necessities of fellow-creatures.—London Spectator.

Four Negroes Drowned.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 5.—At 8 o'clock Sunday night William Brazeton accompanied by five other colored persons entered a boat to cross the Arkansas river at a point in Faulkner county about thirty miles from here. Midway in the stream the boat ran on a log and was capsized, throwing all the occupants into the water. Brazeton and a 13-year-old boy were rescued, the other four being drowned. Two of the ladies were recovered Monday morning.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Thanks to a gracious Providence for the rains of last week. The wet weather somewhat interfered with the workmen on the new brick block, but the good to the country is great.

And now it would seem that some sort of hobgobblings are getting into Britton. A lady called on your correspondent with the information that on Wednesday evening, Nov. 21st., there will be a "Ghost Social" in the G. A. R. hall; and tickets for the supper will be sold at 25 cts. for a couple. Gentlemen choosing a Ghost will need take it with him to the supper. Messrs. Loose & Underwood, stock-buyers and shippers, sent off last Tuesday a whole car load of, fat hogs, and on Wednesday Sleeper & Prindle shipped a car load of the same kind of animals. This is becoming quite a shipping point, for all kinds of stock and grain. The place greatly needs a flouring mill and machine works. Let some capitalists note this fact and survey the prospects. Britton is becoming a town of importance. Now that election is past, Harrison declared to be the President elect, the storm over and the weather delightful, our citizens are all at work with a will, determined to make the best of all that comes.

The Prohibitionists hereabout show good pluck. They have already begun measures for carrying forward the fight against the liquor traffic. Their motto is, "Push things." There must be no let up in this war. Is it not a good time for the Democrats to prepare to take the general election in four years on Prohibition principles? Let the wise think of it.

The mother of two sons, twins, met one of the brothers in the field one morning.

"Which of you two boys am I speaking to?" asked the mother, "is it you or your brother?"

"Why do you ask?" inquired the lad, prudently.

"Because if it is your brother I will box his ears."

"It is not my brother; it is I."

"Then your brother is wearing your coat, for yours had a hole in it."

"No, mother, I am wearing my own coat."

"Good heavens!" shrieked the mother, looking at him intently, "you are your brother after all."

TOURISTS IN RUSSIA.

The Discouraging Experiences Which They Are Sure To Have.

The tourist, and especially the American tourist of the cheapest kind, has at last penetrated into Russia, and for the comfort of these travelers certain arrangements have been made.

In some hotels at St. Petersburg and in one at Moscow the porter speaks English, and some of the waiters comprehend more or less. French and German are more widely understood and spoken, but it is useless to disguise the fact that the language of Russia is Russian, and without, at least, a little Russian the tourist must have a guide attached to his person.

St. Petersburg and Moscow are both vast towns; the distances from point to point are enormous; the squares are so broad that one can hardly think of walking across them; the streets measure miles in length and furlongs in width.

The consequence is that in Russia nobody walks; even the kitchen-maid who goes to market to buy a cabbage or a water-melon rides in a swift droshka. Now, these droshkas are subject to no fixed tariff; in real Oriental fashion you must bargain each time you hire one. How can you bargain without knowing something of the language?

In the museums, the churches, the public monuments and the shops, this same difficulty of language stands very much in the way of the tourist's comfort.

Such being the case in the capitals, what must be the state of affairs in minor towns? How delightful is the situation of the tourist who starts on a seventy-hour railway journey, in the course of which he may have to change trains four or five times, drive across towns from one station to another, explain to porters, ask information from station-masters or train-conductors, who understand nothing but the language of Gogol and Pouchkine!

Remember, too, that the tourist who arrives unprepared in the country cannot read even the names of the stations, which are inscribed in Slavonic letters only. In the hotels the bill of fare is unintelligible, and communication with the waiter can only take place through pantomime.

On the other hand it must be stated that in a first-class carriage on a Russian railroad you never fail to find some passenger who speaks French, and the educated Russians never seem to tire of showing kindness and courtesy to foreigners, and piloting them through traveling difficulties.

LADY HAMILTON.

The Mistress of Lord Nelson in Connection with the History of Advertising.

Lady Hamilton, whose name is preserved to posterity in association with that of Lord Nelson, is also curiously connected with the history of advertising.

In 1779, one Dr. Graham, a graduate of the University of Edinburgh and a man of elegant person, manners and address, after a charlatanish career in America, Scotland and England, opened in London a gorgeously furnished and decorated "Temple of Health," for the promotion of longevity, beauty, intellect and morals by means of electricity, magnetism, ozone and music.

His advertisements, in points of rhetorical construction and mastery of the art of playing upon human credulity, curiosity, and love of the mysterious and the forbidden, have rarely been equalled and probably have never been surpassed.

What his advertisements lacked in drawing power, the fame of his lectures within the Temple supplied. But the real "magnetism" within this crystal palace of humbug was to be found in the extraordinary charm and beauty of "Vestina, the Rosy Goddess of Health," who as "Priestess of the Temple" and seated on the "Celestial Throne," recited a lecture composed by the Doctor on the "means of preserving health, beauty and personal loveliness, and serene mental brilliancy, even to the extremest old age," serving likewise to "exhibit, in her own person, a proof of the all-blessing effects of virtue, temperance, regularity, simplicity and moderation."

This matchless divinity, whose "warm lecture" was to be had in print for half a crown, was Emma Hart, originally a nursemaid, afterwards successively a lady's maid; painters' model; courtesan; priestess of the temple, as already narrated; wife of the British ambassador at Naples and imperious mistress of the great Admiral.

For some years the Doctor and the fair but frail Emma grew in fame and fortune and impudence, and then they parted; he to sink to ultimate obscurity and penury and she to reach in time the "bad eminence" which for many generations yet to come her memory is destined to occupy. —Printers' Ink.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, NOV. 15

For President in '92. David B. Hill. Platform—The people want no reform and I'm going to give 'em what they want.

Willard Stearns made a vigorous, manly run and takes his defeat like a man. There is no "snivel" service in his make up.

"Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation."—The result of the election can not change this fact. What will Harrison's administration do about it?

General Harrison is disposed to enjoy his popularity while it lasts. After the 4th of March when there are a dozen pegs for every hoop, then his troubles will begin.

Here's to your health, Grover Cleveland. You went down like a hero with your colors nailed to the mast. We had rather be in your shoes to-day, than in Gen. Harrison's.

What doth it profit a man to cry over "spilled milk?" Let us take our defeat with composure and reform the lines for the next engagement. The man has been defeated but the issue still remains.

The Mail & Express says New Yorkers may well feel proud of the part that their most conspicuous representative in the next administration, Mr. Levi P. Morton, has played during the whole campaign.

Yes, he has kept his mouth shut and handed out the dineats.

Will Gen. Harrison possess the statesmanship and moral courage to repudiate the free-whiskey high tariff Chicago platform, respect the civil service law and heed the wishes of the people for tax reduction? On this point the success or failure of his administration will turn.

The prohibition vote shows a decided falling off in this county. The prohibition democrats stood by their colors while the prohibition republicans slid out and voted for Harrison. That tells the whole story. How long will sensible temperance democrats allow themselves to be sold out in this fashion?

New York, Nov. 10. The anti-saloon republican national committee will meet at No. 2 Broadway, on Wednesday, Nov. 21, at 10 A. M., to decide on the policy to be pursued hereafter.

Having helped to elect a President on a free-whi-key platform, the anti saloon men will now begin a new campaign—on paper.

Sam Smyth, who lived in Tecumseh five or six years ago, now resides in Philadelphia. Last Monday, we received from him a copy of the Times, with the following item encircled in a heavy black line. It shows how Sam regards the situation.

Four months more, and then look out for a clean sweep. Gen Harrison will have no sentimental delay in turning the rascals out. He will take the civil service out of politics by making it unanimously republican.

Later returns show that the next Congress will be very close. The Senate will be Republican by two majority. In the House, the Republicans have elected 162 members and the Democrats 160, with three districts—the 1st Cal., the 4th Con. and the 10th Mich.—still in doubt. Should the Republicans carry all of these, they would have five majority. Should the Democrats carry them all, they will have one majority.

The Detroit Tribune laments the defeat of Warner Miller for Governor of New York but consoles itself with the reflection. "We all know how it was done. Confession is good for the soul and we are glad to see the Tribune on the inside track yet. Yes, we all know how it was done. The liquor interests of both parties went solemn and pounded their votes for Hill and the Harrison electors. In New York city, the machine Republicans and the machine Democrats went to school and plumped their votes for the Tammany candidate for Mayor and also for the Harrison electors. These elements defeated Cleveland because he had made a good President, defeated Hewitt because he had made a good mayor, and defeated Miller because they disliked his temperance record. "Yes, we all know how it was done."

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT IT.

Among the columns of comments which we have perused on the result of the late election, we cull a few representative extracts from eastern and western papers which show the general feeling of the defeated Democracy. Those Republicans who flatter themselves that the tariff battle is ended will be sorely disappointed. A great issue of this kind is never settled until it is settled right. The free soilers of 1850-60 were not dispersed or disheartened by election of Pierce and Buchanan on a pro slavery platform. They collected their scattered forces, reorganized their lines, kept up the fight and elected Lincoln in 1860. The friends of low taxes and tariff revision are on the right side of this issue, and it is folly to suppose that they will surrender after the first Bull Run.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is the leading Democratic organ in the South. It says: "It is as discouraging as it is useless to recur to the general plan and tenor of the republican campaign. In argument and oratory it was weak enough. But in the solid and working machineries of party organization, in material resources and in veteran skill, it was admirable. All its accidents made for the Democrats. All its signs and portents presaged a Democratic victory. But at the right time and in the right quarter, the money devil, so efficiently served by the genius and so vividly typified in the person of that prince among the robber barons, Senate Matthew Stanley Quay, fixed and pointed his heaviest guns, and there was no resisting the volley of boodle they belched forth. This is the most ominous feature of the political situation. It intimates that we have reached a period in our career as a nation when corrupt engineries are more than a match for public opinion unsupported by the like appliances. "Gov. Hill says well that President Cleveland deserved better of the people. He did, indeed. An honester, braver man never occupied the White House, nor yet one who rendered the country greater, purer service. The kinghood of party leadership was denied him. The gifts of magnetism and grace were not given him by the fairy that bent over his cradle in the hour of his birth. But loyalty, courage, integrity, devotion to duty, a rugged, self reliant spirit, and a stern, unflagging faith in truth were his, and he, surely, can afford to step down and out, with the sense that however fallingly, he was true to his convictions and made no concession to party claims or selfish interests of any kind. He will not carry with him into his retirement many plaudits. But no one who has ever encountered him will refuse him the respect which his conscientious and fearless discharge of public obligations challenges of all men, friend and foe alike.

But to turn from the personal to the political aspects of the contest, the only states in the north which we carry are the manufacturing states of Connecticut and New Jersey, where the tariff issue was expected to cut the most figure, whereas, the Republicans make gains in all the agricultural states of the northwest, which are plastered over with eastern mortgages, and compelled by the tariff to pay protection prices for whatever they have to buy, though getting free trade prices for whatever they have to sell. This anoma ous outcome would be inexplanable if the tariff were alone involved. But it was complicated by the sectional issue and the old soldier issue appealing to the ignorance and cupidity of organized masses of the people. Moreover, revenue reform was denied its full representation on account of the Democratic lack of the needful munitions of war. We were poor in purse and poor in leaders. We had not the resources to stretch out along the whole line. We had to concentrate on New York and Indiana. In consequence, such states as Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota were left to take care of themselves as best they might, and, thus abandoned, their brave Democracy sank beneath an overwelming array of money and men thrown in from without by the Republican managers. In the northwest we fear the war is not yet over."

"Well, the first battle has been lost by a narrow vote. What follows? The world moves, either forward or backwards; it does not stand still. The voters in Tuesday's contest can no more stand still than the vanquished. The responsibility for the national finances will after the 4th of March rest with the Republican party. The surplus will stare Mr. Harrison in the face, just as it now stares Mr. Cleveland. It must be got rid of, either by reduced taxation or by extravagant appropriations. The small loss of the Republican majority for this that the latter policy should be adopted. It will not be safe to inaugurate a system of national profligacy in order to empty the Treasury. As little will it be safe to repeal the whiskey tax in order to maintain imposts on the necessaries of life. The masses have got an inkling for the first time that the tariff is a tax on consumption, and therefore an undue and unjust burden upon labor. They are not likely to forget anything that they have learned in this campaign of education.

The Republican leaders, those who in former years have denounced the present exorbitant tariff and tried to bring it within the measure of decency, will now be put to it to stem the rising tide which calls for reform in our system of national taxation—a tide whose impulses are not unfelt in their own ranks. We will not anticipate the outbreak of tariff reform in Republican councils but we do not see how it can be avoided. But whether it comes in that quarter sooner or later, this great battle, on an entirely new issue, which so narrowly escaped being a victory, will go on. An audience has been secured at last for the principle that every man has a right to the fruits of his own labor without deduction for the recompense of the labor or capitol of others. Nobody who took part in this first skirmish will lay down his arms till victory is won."

Abraham Hare, druggist, Boiville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years experience, is Electric Bitters." PROPER BIBLE WINE.

Alfred Speer, who has large vineyards near Passaic, N. The following is from Dr. John Ellis, who has written several works of Bible wine: "The writer obtained from Mr. Speer a bottle of his Unfermented Wine and found it a very pleasant and nutritious wine. A chemist put a portion of this wine into a retort. The distilled had neither the smell nor the taste of alcohol, nor did chemical tests indicate any trace of alcohol."

CHINESE RESPECT FOR THE BODY.

Some Curious Customs Practiced by the Celestials in Their Own Country.

The Pekin Gazette recently contained an imperial rescript severely censuring a number of officials concerned in the execution of a criminal who was sentenced to death by strangulation, but who, "by a stupid piece of reckless and unpardonable bungling," was decapitated instead.

Commenting on this incident, the North China Herald says that the Emperor only reflected Chinese sentiment in attaching great importance to the difference between the two, decapitation being regarded as a much more dishonorable death than strangulation.

The Chinese feel the utmost repugnance to any mutilation of the body, not on account of the pain or the fear of death, but because of the sentiment that it is a man's duty to keep in tact as far as he can, the body which his parents have bequeathed to him. It forms part of that system of filial piety which is the orthodox religion of China, and has had its share in producing the Chinese dislike of war and revolutions.

Patiently and uncomplainingly as most Chinese will go through a surgical operation, it is well known that they strongly object to amputation, and it is often difficult to induce them to submit to it. They invariably ask for the severed limb, which they either keep in a box, to be buried with the original owner on his death, or they eat it. This latter method has the countenance of antiquity; what is severed from the body by accident or necessity is returned to it.

A work which has been called the Chinese prose "Iliad" records of a certain hero, that when drawing out a stray arrow which entered his eye in battle, the eye came with the weapon; whereupon he swallowed the former with great sang froid, observing that father's flesh and mother's blood should not be thrown away.

Some commentators on the work say that as a temporary expedient this was quite allowable, and even commendable, but that the regular course would be to wrap up the eye and keep it until death.

Teeth are treated in much the same way. Milk teeth are regarded as a mere makeshift of nature, and therefore not possessed of the dignity of adult teeth. The latter are carefully kept when they come out, or they are ground to powder and swallowed in water, for they are part of the parent's bequest.

Another phase of this subject is the practice, so frequently commended by the Emperor, of making broth for a sick parent out of flesh cut from the body of the child. The efficacy of the practice is that it restores to the parent a portion of his own essence.

Viceroys are constantly begging for special rewards to be bestowed on children who have mutilated themselves for this purpose. The mother of a late Governor of Yunnan, who was then 87 years old, was commended not long since in these terms:

"She obtained a reputation for the filial piety she displayed towards her husband's parents, mutilating herself to mix her flesh with his medicine when her father-in-law was ill."

A few years ago the Viceroy of Szechuen reported a case in which a dutiful son, who was too poor to satisfy a sudden craving on the part of his sick mother for meat, cut a piece of flesh off his arm and made soup for her. He felt, the report says, no pain from the mutilation, and the wound healed at once.

THE AMERICAN WIFE.

An English Mother's Wise Decision.

Traveled English Dame (in London)—"My dear, these reports from the Young Ladies' College are very discouraging."

Lovely Daughter—"I know they must be, mother. The dean said my schooling was money thrown away; he added that there was no learn in me, and that I never had an idea on any subject whatever."

"I should judge so from these records; absolute failure everywhere. You did not succeed even in the cooking department."

"No, I spoiled everything I attempted and burnt my fingers and nearly set myself on fire. I'll never go near a kitchen so long as I live; I'll starve first."

"I know it."

"What is to become of you? Are you good for anything at all?"

"No, mother; nothing."

"Well, I'll just give up our London house and we'll emigrate to the United States. You are not fit for anything but to be an American wife."—Omaha World.

A WEDDING RING OF BAD OMEN.

The Tragic Events That Followed Its Use.

When he should have been at church, Colin Lindsey, the young Earl of Balcarres, was quietly eating his breakfast in nightgown and slippers.

When reminded that Mauritia of Nassau was waiting for him at the altar, he hurried to church but forgot the ring. A friend present gave him one which he, without looking at it, placed on the bride's finger.

After the ceremony was over the countess glanced at her hand, and beheld a grinning death's head on her ring. She fainted away, and the omen made such an impression on her that on her recovery she declared that she was destined to die within a year, a presentiment that probably brought about its own fulfillment, for in a few months the careless Colin was a widower.

W.—"Where were you——?"

H.—"I shay you have the most beautiful hair I ever saw. And it just matches your face. For you have the most beautiful face—hic—I ever saw—so there."

W. (smiling)—"Do you think my face beautiful?"

W. (lovingly)—"You darling John, you are a sad flatterer. Let me unbutton your collar for you."—Boston Courier.

INTERRUPTED.

"Ah, Genevieve, have you divined,
That as this silken skein you wind,
You wind around my heart as well,
The thread of love's entangling spell?
Those smooth, soft hands, so dainty white—"
"I wash them morning, noon and night,
As you do yours, young man, I hope,
In lather made of IVORY SOAP."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

American Voters Declare Their Will at the Polls.

HARRISON THE SUCCESSFUL MAN.

The States of New York and Indiana Both Sure for the Statesman from the Hoosier State.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The Times says: "Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana has been elected president of the United States," but, while the doubt is past the final figures are not yet determinable. California and West Virginia may not yet be placed with certainty, but Harrison safely has 235 electoral votes where 201 would be enough, and the public can patiently await the final outcome of now doubtful, but no longer important districts.

FOR HARRISON		FOR CLEVELAND
Colorado	4	Alabama	10
Illinois	22	Arkansas	7
Indiana	15	Connecticut	6
Iowa	13	Delaware	1
Kansas	9	Florida	4
Maine	6	Georgia	12
Massachusetts	14	Kentucky	13
Michigan	14	Louisiana	8
Minnesota	7	Maryland	8
New York	36	Missouri	17
Nebraska	5	Mississippi	9
Nevada	3	New Jersey	9
New Hampshire	4	North Carolina	11
Ohio	23	South Carolina	9

Harrison's Plurality in New York—Republicans Claim West Virginia.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Returns from all the sixty counties of the state are at hand, with only a few election districts missing. These show that outside of New York and Kings counties Harrison carried forty-nine counties and Cleveland eleven. In 1884 Cleveland carried fourteen counties.

Outside New York and Kings Harrison got 91,418 plurality, Cleveland 10,406 plurality. In New York county Cleveland received 57,213 plurality. In Kings county Cleveland received 12,037 plurality. These figures make Harrison's plurality 11,762.

Miller carried forty-five and Hill fifteen counties. Erie, Niagara, Rensselaer, and Sullivan went for Hill and against Cleveland. More complete returns show that Hill's plurality is much larger than was expected, and instead of being 5,000, as some people figured, it will reach 18,000. Jones, Dem., candidate for lieutenant governor, is elected, and so is Gray, Dem., candidate for court of appeals. Jones and Gray ran far ahead of Hill in this city, which more than compensates for losses in the interior.

West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 9.—Dispatches just received from the capital of the state announces that Democratic State Treasurer Thompson concedes the state to the Republicans by from 400 to 700 majority. This is simply a confirmation of the steady Republican gains that have been coming in. The Republican state committee here claims the the state. They claim to have at least three and probably a solid delegation of four congressmen. They claim a majority for the electoral ticket and a majority in the legislature. The scene of the Republican enthusiasm in this city is unprecedented. On every hand is heard the cry that the "solid south" is broken at last by the vote of this state.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 10.—A special dispatch to The Chronicle-Telegraph from Wheeling, W. Va., timed 3 p. m. Saturday says: The latest returns show that the state has gone for Harrison by 1,000 votes. Goff is elected governor by 1,500.

THE SUNSET STATE.

San Francisco Democratic and the Victory Claimed by Both Parties.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—Returns come in slowly, and there are no complete figures yet on cities and counties. Both sides claim the state. This city gives the Democratic city, state and national tickets a majority estimated by the Democrats at 8,000, and by the Republicans at 5,000. The question is whether the Republican plurality outside the city can overcome this.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—The count in 775 out of the 1,500 precincts outside the city, taken with the 43,773 votes so far counted out of the 55,370 cast in this city, give Harrison 93,112; Cleveland, 85,041; Fisk, 3,847; Curtis, 755.

The count has been completed in 140 of the 176 precincts of this city, and the following result is shown: Cleveland, 26,986; Harrison, 26,116.

The latest returns leave the Democrats no hope of the state or a majority of the congressional delegation. The Republican majority in California will be fully 10,000, and four of the congressmen will be Republicans.

Returns so far from Nevada give Harrison 4,443; Cleveland, 3,132.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—There have thus far been canvassed 222,281 votes, including all but nine precincts in this city 1,123 out of 1,599 outside precincts, the net gains being: Harrison, 112,576; Cleveland, 104,615; Fisk, 4,059; Curtis, 1,032. McKenna and Vandever, Republicans, are elected in the Third and Sixth congressional districts; Morrow, Rep., in the Fourth and Biggs, Dem., in the Second. The First and Fifth are uncertain, the chances seeming in favor of Dehaven, Rep. in the First and Clunie, Dem., in the Fifth. Cleveland's plurality in this city is over 2,700, but the Republicans elect the sheriff, tax collector, county clerk, and probably one supervisor and three school directors.

THE CLOSE VOTE IN CONNECTICUT.

Only 334 Democratic Plurality—Two Congressmen Gained.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 8.—This state gives Cleveland a plurality of nearly 400, elects two Republican and two Democratic congressmen, and a Republican legislature, which will name the state officers, as the Democratic nominees, although having a plurality over the Republicans, fail of a majority of the whole vote.

For Governor, Morris, Dem., 74,944; Bulkeley, Rep., 73,425; Camp, Prohibition, 4,130. The legislature is Republican on joint ballot by 49.

LATER.—Every town in the Fourth congressional district is now heard from and the figures elect Miles, Republican, by eight plurality in a vote of 41,904. Previous returns gave the district to Seymour, the present member. If Miles is elected there will be a gain of two Republican congressmen from Connecticut instead of one. Those elected, according to The Courant's figures are Simonds, Russell, Miles, Republicans; Wilcox, Democrat. From The Courant's returns Cleveland's plurality is only 334. A change of 193 votes would have given the state to Harrison.

JEWETT CONCEDES INDIANA

Democrats Get the Legislature and Gain Three Congressmen.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 9.—The Journal has returns from 81 counties showing net Republican gain of 7,025 and a net Republican majority on national and state tickets. Democrats gain congressmen in the First, Eleventh and Twelfth districts and elect majority in both branches of the legislature. Last night the chairman of the Democratic state committee conceded the state to the Republicans by about 2,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 9.—The returns show 29 Democrats and 21 Republicans to the state senate, and 54 Democrats and 46 Republicans to the house, with five members still in doubt. This gives the Democrats a majority of 8 in the senate and 13 in the house, or a majority of 21 on joint ballot, but a Republican lieutenant governor will preside over the senate, and it is a satisfaction to the Republicans to know this legislature will not be called upon to elect a United States senator.

Michigan.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 9.—Harrison's plurality in Michigan will reach 22,000, against 3,308 for Blaine in 1884. This surprisingly large gain is undoubtedly due to the return of the Greenbackers to the old party lines. Four years ago the fusion vote of the state was 189,561, the straight Democratic vote being 149,835, and the Greenback vote 40,404. The combined Greenback and Union-Labor vote of last Tuesday will not exceed 8,000. Lucas was opposed by the liquor men, and will have about 13,500. The St. John vote is decreased one-half.

Democratic Gains in Virginia.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov. 8.—Full returns from the Sixth congressional district give Cleveland 4,030 majority, a gain over 1884 of nearly 400. Edmunds, Democrats, for congress runs close to Cleveland. Hopkins, present representative, receives about 100 votes in the district as independent candidate for re-election. Reports from the Ninth district give Buchanan, Democrat, a majority of about 500. Tucker, Democrat, carries the Tenth district by 500. All of these are Democratic gains.

Francis Carries Missouri.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—Official and semi-official returns have been received from 90 of the 114 counties in the state, and, with advices from the remaining 24, show that Cleveland's plurality will exceed 25,000. Francis, Democrat, governor, will have a plurality over Kimball of about 12,000. The Republican committee now concede the election of Francis, but by a very small plurality.

Ohio.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 8.—The total vote of Hamilton county on the presidential ticket was: Harrison, 41,741; Cleveland, 38,215. The entire Republican ticket was elected except Cox, candidate for county clerk, who was defeated by 2,480 votes. The Republicans carry the state by 25,000; and the Democrats concede 10,000.

Colorado.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 8.—Returns are slow. Partial returns received up to last evening indicate a good majority for Harrison. The assembly will probably stand: Senate—19 Republicans, 6 Democrats; house—39 Republicans, 10 Democrats. Returns from 23 out of 38 counties give Cleveland 5,041, Harrison 7,594.

Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The state (two towns missing) gives Harrison 183,447; Cleveland, 151,990; Fisk, 8,641. Same in 1884 gave Blaine 144,613; Cleveland, 122,294; Butler, 24,379; St. John, 9,916.

Returns from Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Nov. 13.—The official vote for governor in the eighty-six counties thus far heard from is as follows: Fifer, 211,961; Palmer, 198,994; Fifer's plurality, 11,967. This indicates that the complete official returns of the state will show Fifer's plurality to be about 12,500 or 13,000.

Oregon and Washington.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 8.—Returns come in slowly, but sufficient are received to show that Harrison's majority in the state is over 7,500.

Allen, Dem., is elected as delegate to congress from Washington territory by about 2,500 majority over Voorhees.

Maine.

LEWISTON, Me., Nov. 7.—The Evening Journal has returns from 300 towns which foot up Harrison 60,205, Cleveland 39,639, Fisk 1,989, Streeter 920. The same towns voted in September: Burleigh 63,004, Putnam 47,336, Cushing 2,876, Simmons 1,290.

Weaver Defeated in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 8.—Harrison's plurality in Iowa will probably exceed 30,000. Weaver in the Sixth district and Anderson in the Eighth are beaten, giving the Republicans every congressman in the state but one.

Delaware.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 7.—The city of Wilmington complete gives Cleveland 4,867; Harrison, 3,244; Cleveland's majority, 1,593. The state is Democratic for president, but the legislature is probably Republican.

New Jersey.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 8.—The Democrats have the state by about 5,000. They also carry the legislature for the first time in ten years. It is very close, but probably gives them a United States senator.

Minnesota Reporting Slowly.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 8.—There is nothing new to report from Minnesota. Merriam's majority for governor is about 7,000. Four Republican congressmen have been elected.

Keystone State Returns.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—Pennsylvania elects 31 Republican congressman out of 28, and gives Harrison about 60,000 plurality.

The Snow Storm in the West.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 12.—Considerable damage was done by the snow storm which raged on Friday and Friday night. The storm was accompanied by a high wind which prostrated telegraph wires in Missouri, Kansas and Colorado. Railroad travel is also impeded on most of the roads entering this city.

Great Storm in Iowa and Nebraska.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—A severe snow and rain storm is raging in western Iowa, eastern Nebraska and northwestern Missouri. All wires are prostrated and Omaha, Neb., is completely cut off from telegraphic communication with Chicago.

Husband (on his way to church)—"I'll just skip on ahead, my dear, and get some change. I've nothing less than $1, and that's too much to give."

Husband—"Yes."

Wife—"You will contribute half a dollar, John?"

Husband—"I can't very well now. I happened to meet three or four friends, and I've only got a quarter left."—New York Sun.

Its wonderful cures in all stomach, kidney and liver troubles has brought out many imitations. It restores debilitated nerve tissues, restoring the force lost by sickness, mental work or excessive use of liquor, opium and tobacco. Dr. Geo. Ferguson will supply the genuine at 50 cents a bottle.

Nervous Diseases.

There are more nervous than blood diseases. Thus, a weakness of the nerves of the brain causes headache, fits, dizziness, sleeplessness, etc.; a weakness of the nerves of the stomach causes dyspepsia, pain, wind, etc.; of the lungs, makes "weak lungs;" of the liver produces biliousness, constipation, etc.; of the womb induces irregularities, sterility, pains, etc.; of the sexual organs, impotency, etc. For all weaknesses Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine surpasses all other remedies. DEATH OF CONSIDER A. STACY.

One by one the old pioneers of Tecumseh are crossing the boundary line which separates Time from Eternity. The Angel of Death is ever sharpening his sickel and no man knoweth on what day and at what hour the summons may call him. Judge Stacy is the last one to be added to the long roll of those who have gone before. His family have noticed with anxiety for several months past that his hand was unsteady and his footstep uncertain, that his body was becoming infirm and his intellectual grip weakening, but until the final stroke came, no one dreamed that the end was so near at hand. On Thursday morning, Oct. 25, he came down to the office as usual, but returned about ten o'clock in a semi-dazed condition. He was unable to reach the house and his room without assistance. Medical aid was summoned at once, and the attack was pronounced a slight paralytic stroke. He failed each day till Monday morning, Oct. 29, when his symptoms were so favorable that his friends took new encouragement and had hopes of his recovery. Each day that week he would revive and brighten during the morning hours, but the setting of each day's sun found him a little weaker than before. On Monday, Nov. 5, he failed rapidly; he became unconscious in the afternoon; in the evening, as the hand on the dial noted the lapse of each hour, his body was slowly but surely relinquishing its hold on life; at fifteen minutes past eleven he dropped into the arms of death as peacefully as a babe falling to sleep in its mother's arms.

The funeral services were held last Friday afternoon at the family residence. They were under the division of the Lenawee County Bar Association. Nearly the entire membership of the County Bar was present. Many old acquaintances were in attendance from Adrian and other towns. The Judge's Tecumseh friends and neighbors turned out en masse, although a dreary rain storm bade them stay in doors, to pay their respects to his memory. The Post office was closed two hours during the funeral by order of the Postmaster General and the business houses on Chicago street were also closed during the same hours. Col. N. B. Eldridge acted as marshall assisted by Fred B. Wood. The pall bearers were Judge Geddes, Judge Lane, A. L. Millard, C. E. Weaver, C. R. Miller, Seth Bean, D. B. Morgan, R. A. Watts, Mr. J. S. Strong assisted by Prof. E. A. Wilson, Mrs. Chas Morley and Mrs. L. I. Bidwell, furnished two selections of vocal music. The services, besides music, consisted of a brief scriptural reading, a funeral oration by Judge Thomas M. Cooley, of Ann Arbor, and a personal eulogy by the pastor of the deceased, Rev. J. M. Getchell. A few beautiful and appropriate floral emblems adorned the casket. The remains were viewed before the services began, and at their close the bearers took the casket immediately in charge, the hearse received its burden, and the procession wended its way through a drenching rain to the burial lot in the cemetary. Oh, what a dreary, dismal afternoon it was!

We have no heart to write further details. Judge Cooley's noble address, Bro. Getchell's sympathetic words, and the resolutions of Lenawee and Monroe County bars are hereto appended.

JUDGE COOLEY'S ADDRESS.

Fifty-two years ago Consider Alphonzo Stacy left his father's house in Madison county, New York, to seek his fortune in the wilds of Michigan. He came with the tide which was then flooding the state, and he came full of hope and confidence. In all Michigan there was not at that time a town of greater promise than Tecumseh. It was sufficiently distant from Detroit and Toledo to constitute a center of large trade; it was in the midst of a very fertile country, it had that first need of the pioneers in the line of manufacture—good flouring mills—it was on the route of a great thoroughfare across the state, it was the county seat, it was selected as the location for a branch of the University, and it had a number of very enterprising and capable public and business men. It might therefore very well look forward to a great destiny. Only one circumstance seemed threatening to what otherwise were very favorable prospects. The village of Adrian had secured a railroad to a lake port and might become a dangerous rival. But nobody then even faintly imagined the power the railroad was to develope, to build up and to destroy towns. Moreover Tecumseh was expecting its railroad also, and the Palmyra & Jacksonburg road was already under charter. When, therefore this young man, then but 19 years of age, decided to take up his abode in Tecumseh, the decision was to all appearance fortunate and wise. It was six years after this that, coming to the State at near the same age with that of Mr. Stacy when he came, I saw him. Meantime the prospects of the town he had settled in had very considerably changed. It was no longer the county seat; it had lost its direct connection with the University; its expected railroad had not been built; the State had provided for a great line of railroad, through Adrian to Lake Michigan, and to any extent that this would be beneficial to Adrian it would be injurious to Tecumseh. The rival town had evidently gained a permanent ascendency. Mr. Stacy however had cast his fortunes with the town; his home was here, his friends were here, and here he remained. He had entered upon the practice of the law, and soon displayed qualities admirably adapted for success at that day. He had remarkable quickness of perception, a great fund of humor, unusual versatility, his oratorical powers were good, and he had a facility in making use of legal principles and precedents that was not surpassed among those to whom my early acquaintance extended. He was besides a man of most generous impulses; he naturally took the side of those least able to defend themselves, and the poor went to him for counsel freely. Soon after entering upon practice he associated with himself Fernando C. Beaman, who was then one of the most painstaking and accurate of our lawyers, and already giving proofs of the eminence he was to attain, and the two made very formidable competitors for any lawyer they ever encountered. But the partnership had been dissolved and Mr. Beaman had taken up his residence in Adrian just before I came.

Mr. Stacy remained in Tecumseh. There are commonly no great legal prizes in small towns, except as one may perhaps obtain control of what may be called the gleanings after some great commercial disaster. There was a considerable harvest of that description in Michigan for a few men after the great revulsion of 1836 8, but Mr. Stacy was not one of those to reap it. His practice was mainly in contested cases. In such cases he held his own with the best and the strongest, but the number was small, and the fees then paid in the country as compared to what they were, and especially with what they have since become in cities, were insignificant. Had he cast his fortunes with the builders of some flourishing city the pecuniary results would no doubt have been widely different. Mr. Stacy was made Judge of Probate in 1844, and held the office for twelve years. But the returns from the office were not large. He had to pay for his own clerical service, which was considerable, and the office did not add very much to his income. He lived very prudently, as the people of Michigan generally did in those days and he had the esteem of all who knew him. He was a party man always, and from first to last adhered in victory and in defeat to the party of Jackson and Cass and Tilden and Cleveland. But no man could be farther than he was from being a party bigot. The mantle of his charity covered all political differences. We all know too that in the great crisis when the existence of the nation was threatened his patriotism was of that intense sort that admitted of no question and no hesitation. And we all remember that he was at all times one of the most active and efficient supporters of the public schools and of the higher institutions of learning.

It would be appropriate, did time admit of it, to take some notice here of prominent citizens of Tecumseh who were his early associates, but who, before he passed over the boundary which limits our life, had preceded him: Musgrove Evans, Joseph W. Brown, Levi Baxter, Selleck C. Boughton, Stillman Blanchard, Peter Morey, William H. Hoeg, Andrew Backus, John J. Adam, Serril G. Jo-Baron, Michael A. Patterson, Daniel G. Quackenboss, Perley Bills, Olmsted Hough, Alonzo B. Palmer, Charles Hewitt, George, Charles and Sumner F. Spafford, Charles DeMott, Joseph W. Gray, Ezra F. Blood, Samuel Satterthwaite, Aaron Comfort, Wm. Baldwin, Simeon Davidson.—William Richards, Thomas Lovett, Peter R. Adams — I hardly know where to stop the list when I begin, and it might easily be very considerably increased with names only of persons widely and favorably known. Most of those named were warm friends of Judge Stacy, and the attachment of some of them to him was peculiarly close and intimate.

But if we were to give our thoughts to historical reminiscences, the most conspicuous and striking fact demanding attention would be the State itself, which indeed when Mr. Stacy came here was scarcely yet a State, and was engaged in what seemed to be a dangerous and was certainly a doubtful struggle to maintain as against Ohio the integrity of its territory. It was a State almost lost in its woods. Its largest town was a straggling hamlet whose people were content with carts for carriages and with clay for pavements. But the magic touch of industry plied by vigorous hands, worthy of New England ancestry speedily transformed the scene; the woods opened to the building of many beautiful and prosperous towns, and the territory has now become a mighty commonwealth, the home of two million of sturdy, vigorous and intelligent people, and as full of resources and probably as prosperous as any commonwealth, which the sun in his diurnal journey looks down upon. And all this wonderful transformation took place in one man's business lifetime, and was so continuous and steady that the change went on from day to day unnoticed.

But in the face of death family considerations engross the thoughts. Doubtless we are all aware that Judge Stacy was of New England descent, the American ancestors having emigrated from England and settled at an early day at Cape Ann, Massachusetts. His father, Consider H. Stacy, removed to Madison County, New York, in 1814. His grandfather had been a soldier of the Revolution, and had fought under Stark at Bennington, and in Hamilton's command at Yorktown. It was of the best blood of the land, and it is an interesting fact, illustrative of the tenacity of Puritan habits that the eldest son had for several generations been named Consider. The father was a physician of high repute, having a large family, to whom he gave such education as was then available. But this scarcely went beyond what could be obtained in the common schools. Young Stacy was early taken into his father's office, but his aspirations selected another profession, and at eighteen years of age he began the study of law with Peter Morey. Two years later he followed his preceptor to the west, and in 1837 he was admitted to the bar. As soon as he became of age he was made Justice of the Peace, a fact I mention as indicative of the fact that he at once took strong hold on the public favor. Elsewhere I have mentioned his having been made Judge of Probate; he was also in 1844 appointed Prosecuting Attorney for the County, and for one term afterwards served the State on the Board of Education. He was also at one time the candidate of his party for a seat in Congress. Judge Stacy's first business association was with Mr. Morey, his second with Mr. Beaman. After that he had for partners Thomas M. Cooley, Edwin P. Wood, William A. Underwood, and his own sons, Scovel and James. At the time of his death he was Postmaster of Tecumseh.

The marriage of Mr. Stacy to Mary M. Walker took place in 1838. Three children survive the father; the parents followed four to the grave. Two of them were daughters who died in infancy; two of them were sons who came to manhood, and demonstrated the possession of unusual abilities. We all remember how sad were the circumstances attending the accidental death of one of these.

In August last we were sending our congratulations to Judge Stacy on the fiftieth anniversary of his marriage to the companion from whom he had then no expectation of being so very soon rudely separated. It was a golden wedding in more senses than one; the union had been protracted far beyond the average of human life, and the attachment which doubtless began in romance had ripened year by year, but had never weakened, for it was not dependent on rosy cheeks, or golden locks, or on other charms so attractive in youth, but which long before we reach our three score years and ten are present only to a fading though perhaps a still fondly cherishing memory. Time, the iconoclast, respects very few things; but it is a pleasing reflection that there is sometimes a union of hearts and of hands on which time sets the highest sanction, crowning it daily with continuous approval. We have seen that Judge Stacy has had his full share of family griefs. When in the loss of sons we feel the prop of our age breaking under us, we sometimes incline to say "Let us also depart and be at rest." But reason bids us summon the energies to new efforts, and take on courage for what may be still before us. We can penetrate the veil that conceals the future but slightly, but we discover on all sides the evidences of a goodness on which we feel that we may securely rely. In our afflictions, therefore, we turn to the duties that still demand our attention, knowing well that in the faithful performance of these we must look for the blessings of content.

The grave closes now over our friend and our associate. We shall not again clasp his hand or hear his cheery greeting, but to the last day of our lives his genial qualities, his wit, his humor, his kind heart, his strong attachments, and that charity that inclined rather to excuse than to exaggerate the faults and foibles of others will come fresh to the memory whenever his name is spoken, and the heart will not fail to respond with tender emotions. And the bar will especially miss him, for his has been a prominent personality among its members for half a century; fifty years of hard work with competitors whose acquirements and reputation would put the ablest practitioner on his guard; fifty years during which he saw many a strong man bow his head to the conquoror, Death. Greenly and Tiffany and Baker and Beaman and Crosswell; but I must not stop to name them now; their names load our memories and remind us that there is one battle we may wage long but must be overcome at last though even this we shall have won if we still live in the grateful recollections of those who, because of what we have been or have done, are themselves the better and the happier.

REV. GETCHELL'S EULOGY.

Several years ago I stepped over the threshold into this home as a stranger.

My visit of a week was one I never shall forget while memory has power to recall, and for awhile, in feeling, the soul basks in the happy sunshine of the past. The evenings were mostly spent in yonder room, he who has gone and myself conversing upon religious themes. Thought kindled or awakened thought, and many books were briefly considered. I found him then to be a lover of the Twenty-third Psalm, and several passages in the New Testament. But again and again as we conversed, he would turn to a book, and read from its printed page, entitled; 'An Excursion Among the Poets.' I can see his face brighten now as he read verse after verse, as if their beauty had touched his soul. One poem particularly appeared to be the joy of his heart, for each verse ends with these words, given in italics:

"There's Sunshine in the Sky."

I make no attempt at eulogy. You who know him, love him best, need none at my hands. I am here to speak tenderly to you, because I somewhat know how deep your grief and how many are your tears. This wife and mother-heart; this daughter and the two sons; the other relatives and friends, are forming no entirely new acquaintance now with sorrow. Death's angel has lingered here before this visit, for to-day among the older of this home, one-half dwell on earth the other half in heaven. It is a trio of love, the husband and father and the two sons! Oh beautiful, soul sustaining faith, that sits by us when we are in tears and sings from out the doorway above:

"There's Sunshine in the Sky."

I give at this hour no biographic sketch of his life. This will elsewhere appear. I must not trespass in telling you as members of the Lenawee County Bar, citizens of the county seat, and of our own beautiful village, how in friendship and memory you revere the one who has gone. Others have told you this better than I can possibly do, and for this reason I pass all such silently by.

I must not parade my views of the hereafter in any over drawn doctrinal display. He held and advocated the faith I cherish; the one chief theme of the church to which we both belong, "The brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God." He reverenced his uncle, one deeply loved in all western New York, Pennsylvania and certain sections of Michigan, wherever our denominational name is mentioned, and whose name is a tender, household one to all who knew him when he abided on the earth in earthly form. He was among the first to advocate in this land of ours, the Gospel News of God's unchanging love, known as Rev. Nathaniel Stacy, or by a more

FOR CHILDREN OF ALL AGES.

St. Nicholas for 1889.

PEOPLE who have the idea that St. Nicholas Magazine is only for little children should look over the prospectus of that magazine for 1889, and they will discover that it is for children of all ages, "from five to eighty-five," as some one recently said of it. Indeed, while St. Nicholas is designed for girls and boys, it might almost be called a "family magazine," for the grown-up members of a household will find much to interest them in every number.

The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls the next volume an "all-round-the-world year," because it is to contain so many illustrated papers about the world in general—not dry geographical papers, but stories and sketches and tales of travel and adventure by land and sea—and all illustrated by the best artists. The features will include a serial story, "How We Made the Farthest North," by Gen. A. W. Greely, the well-known commander of the Greely Expedition; a serial about Canada, by Mrs. Catherwood, who is writing a serial story for The Century this year; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton. There are many papers about Europe, including a Christmas story of life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; articles on Holland and the Dutch, by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. Harrison Smith, R. N., with illustrations of many of England's finest war ships; "The Winchester School," illustrated by Joseph Pennell; "English Railway Trains," by Wm. H. Rideing, etc., etc. The French papers include "Ferdinand de Lesseps and his two Ship Canals," and there are several interesting contributions on German, Italian and Russian subjects.

Under "Asia," comes "Boys and Girls in China," by Yan Phou Lee (a recent graduate of Yale); "Home Life in the East," by Mrs. Holman Hunt, and a number of papers about Japan. Under "Africa" there is a sketch of Henry M. Stanley, by Noah Brooks, and several stories about Egypt. Australia is not forgotten, nor the islands of the sea, and there are even to be stories of under the sea.

Of course the bulk of the contents will relate to American subjects, as usual. Mrs. Burnett, the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," contributes a story of New York called "Little Saint Elizabeth;" there will be papers describing how the government offices are conducted, papers about athletics, amateur photography, etc. The full prospectus will be sent to any one who wishes to see it by the publishers, The Century Co., of New York.

The Graphic recently said of St. Nicholas, "the family without it is only half-blessed."

The lady Godiva must have had exceptionally long hair since it completely covered her lovely person. Since Ayer's Hair Vigor came into use such examples are not so rare as formerly. It not only promotes the growth of the hair, but gives it a rich silken texture.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 10, 1887.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co—Gentlemen:—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience, have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as I can Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.

Yours Truly,

Dud Macham experienced the luxury of a wheelbarrow ride Tuesday morning. It was the result of an election bet and the man at the end of the handles was Frank Davidson. A trip to Spayde Bros. corner and return to the barber shop was the extent of the ride, but what made Frank sweat the most was his lusty hurrah for H. & M. every few steps. It went agin' the grain. Wonder how Dud would have managed it if the result had been different.

THEY RATIFIED.

The Republicans ratified Tuesday night. Anyone within two miles of Tecumseh that evening would have been aware of the fact. The noise was deafening and the air was laden with the aroma of burnt powder, while everything had taken on a lurid hue which grew brighter and brighter as the evening grew old. Everything that could produce a noise was brought into requisition, the tin horn predominating. The streets were crowded with people, many coming in from the surrounding towns. Beside a large number who came down to see the show, Clinton sent about 50 horsemen to participate in it. No extensive preparations were made for a parade, and it was intended more for noise than show.

About 7:30 the procession formed at J. D. Shull's residence, headed by the city band. Following came a wagon handsomely decorated with chinese lanterns and flags, filled with little girls representing the states of the Union, with Liberty in the center; next came the Republican cadets in costume and provided with the irrepressible tin horn, cow bells, tin pans, cans, etc., followed by nearly 100 horsemen. They marched up Chicago st. to Union and back to the opera house where the speaking was to take place. All along the line of march the street was ablaze with colored light, rockets, Roman candles, and fire crackers, and later on bonfires were lighted "outside the fire limits."

An uncertain and flickering light was cast on two banners labeled "protection" and "free trade," hung high up over the street from the Lilley House to Bidwell's block. The size and shape were very suggestive and excited much comment.

The opera house was well filled to hear the address, and the speaker, John K. Boies, of Hudson, made one of his best efforts. The audience was interested throughout.

DEATH OF CONSIDER A. STACY.

endearing title, far and near, Father Stacy. I think, yea more, I feel it, and thus believe, they have greeted each other once more in everlasting friendship in that realm termed above. And thus death, of which the poet sings, making the grave but the "Outer portal of Eternity." The helping ange by which "the outer covering is thrown by," and the so called moment "Of darkness in the pathway of man's life, the passing shadow of God's providence." The closing of the book of time, by which "Eternity begins."

I must not detain you long with my word, but let me say this before I add my closing sentences. That of late I have been studying and learning lessons from the faded and fallen leaves which now cover the ground. That all summer long have been as the angels of God doing an infinite work removing from the atmosphere that decomposing it, and parting its poison into vital air on one side and fuel and fruit on the other, and so turning death itself into the very breath of life and into bread for humanity. I mentioned this somewhat to him who has gone, as only a few mornings ago we walked together down yonder well known street. And he assured me it was in a measure a new thought to him, but beautiful, and thanked me for thus speaking, and then endeavored to repeat some poetic words which I cannot now recall. Oh, what beauty I might bring to human vision now, if I could assure the human, that Love and Sympathy and Friendship are the higher forms of life, and they consume as nothing else this side of stars. And that this waste, so-called, this self sacrifice and our sorrows; this fading, falling, dying, only lifts to larger life, to bless with new powers to the higher happiness, to the angel's joy and the soul's immortal perpetuity. Jesus embraces that truth in those words which assure if one seek to save his life he losses it, and loosing his life preserves it eternally.

My closing words to you who are bound to him—not this outer form, this vase of clay—but by love ties death can never sever, I have no heart to talk in any public way at much length. We will visit together, and then commune with heaven, and by our experience, trial, grief and tears, bind up these wounds we so deeply feel, and be thereby the better, stronger and more divine to minister to the heart hurts and soul sorrows of mankind. If I do not speak many words now to comfort, bless and console, do not think I lack in sympathy, but have it for you all the more, even unto prayer and tears. Yea, that sympathy never really spoken aloud, but whispered to hearts that ache and are grieved, and sent out on noiseless wings in their behalf to more than golden thrones in Heaven. Jesus says something, you remember, about the expedience of His going away. Feel thus, so far as in you lie, and so turn this going of him you love into an expedience eternally beautiful, and out of which will come at last, for ashes the immortal beauty, for mourning the oil of joy, and for heaviness the very garment of praise. You have been in your fortitude, amid it all, like those who have found something of God's answer to their prayer. It is the beauty of your faith. It is the comforter the Father sends. And by it human souls stricken with sorrow for awhile, rise up to kiss His loving hand for all in blessing sent, and which we realize when He wipes all tears away from our eyes.

This, this will sing to you the words he loved, "though I walk thro' the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for God is with me still, and assures, whatever betide,

"There's Sunshine in the Sky."

ACTION OF THE LENAWEE BAR.

At an adjourned meeting of the Lenawee county bar association, held at circuit court room last Friday morning, Judge Geddes, in behalf of the committee appointed at a meeting of the bar held Thursday, presented the following:

Coming to the then territory of Michigan, in 1836, and admitted to the bar in March, 1837, our deceased brother, Judge Consider A. Stacy, has been a resident of this county for more than fifty two years, and an active and honored member of this bar for more than half a century.

Almost immediately upon his admission, he took rank among the leading lawyers and advocates of the state, and during that long and eventful period has maintained his high position, filling as large a space in the public eye as has any of his compeers. For more than half a century past a term of court held in this county without Judge Stacy's presence and active participation, would have been like the play of Hamlet with the principal character omitted. Indeed, it would be difficult for the oldest practitioner to recall such a term, unless he was prevented from attending by illness.

Judge Stacy was pre-eminently a lawyer. His name appears with remarkable frequency as counsel, on one side or the other, in many of the most important cases which have been argued and decided by our supreme court in the Michigan reports. But brilliant and able as was the Judge as a lawyer, and while his presentation of his views of the law and his arguments before the court always commanded the attention and highest respect of the court, yet it was as an advocate before a jury that he achieved his most signal successes. For half a century have the people of Southern Michigan been wont to listen, with ever increasing delight, to the masterly oratory of that voice now stilled in death.

As a companion and friend, Judge Stacy was delightful. His conversational powers were remarkable, in all his intercourse with the bar, he was most kind and genial. His knowledge of men and of books was varied, extensive and accurate. He seemed to intuitively grasp and comprehend whatever he read or attempted to investigate. No man at the bar of Lenawee county would be missed more than he will be, to whose memory we have this day met to do honor.

Realizing this, we, the members of the bar of Lenawee, desiring to place upon record our high appreciation of his character, and our loss in his death.

Resolve, That in the death of Judge Stacy, this bar has lost one of its most brilliant, learned, and distinguished members—his family, a devoted husband and affectionate father; that we extend to his family our heartfelt sympathy in this their great affliction; that we will attend his funeral in a body, and in accordance with the request of his family, so far as practicable, take charge thereof, and we direct that a copy of this memorial be presented to the circuit court, at its present session, with a request that it be entered on the journal of the court, and that a copy signed by the chairman and secretary of the bar association and the judge and clerk of the circuit court, under the seal thereof, be sent to his family, and that it be furnished to the newspapers of the county for publication.

A. L. MILLARD,
NORMAN GEDDES,
N. B. ELDREDGE,
Committee.

Feeling and appropriate remarks were made by the chairman, A. L. Millard, and Messrs C. R. Miller, J. C. Winnie, C. E. Weaver, L. R. Pierson, Orsamus Lamb, Seth Bean and others, and the memorial and resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Subsequently, at a session of the circuit court, Judge V. H. Lane presiding, the memorial and resolutions were presented to the court in behalf of the bar by Judge Geddes and were ordered to be entered upon the journal of the court.

ACTION OF MONROE COUNTY BAR.

At the opening of the November term of court, Col. Ira R. Grosvenor announced the death of Consider A. Stacy, and, as president of the Monroe county bar association, called a meeting of the association to take fitting action thereupon; at which meeting after fitting remarks by Col. Grosvenor and others, a committee was appointed to draft appropriate resolutions. Said committee reported the following, which were adopted and by the Court ordered spread at large upon the journal.

Your committee, to whom was referred the matter of resolutions on the death of Hon. Consider A. Stacy, would respectfully report the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, divine Providence has removed from our midst the Hon. Consider A. Stacy, whose death occured at his residence at Tecumseh, Michigan on the 5th instant;

Resolved: That this bar recognize with regret the passing away of the last of the prominent members of the old bar of Southern Michigan, and desire to place upon record a declaration of the high regard we have entertained for Judge Stacy as a lawyer and as a man. His courtesy to his brother practitioners, his geniality as a companion, his strict integrity and his legal ability render him a fitting example for imitation by the younger members of our bar.

Resolved, further, that this bar attend his funeral in a body and that this preamble and resolutions be spread at length upon the journal of the court, and that a copy be, by the clerk, transmitted to the family of the deceased.

GOUV. MORRIS,
J. R. RAUCH,
Committee.

Of father's legal acquirements, of his record on the bench and at the bar, of his business relations with the outside world, others have spoken. We hope we may be pardoned for adding a farewell word in honor of his memory. No one beyond his family circle can fully know the loss which that little circle has sustained by his death. The endearing word, "Father," expresses, in its fullest measure, the tie which bound him to his home. At his own hearthstone and fireside his traits of character shone with their brightest luster. His iron will, his tenacity of purpose, his wit and humor, his unswerving devotion to wife and children, through good report and evil report, were exemplified daily in his domestic life. "Toil on, toil ever," was the guiding star of his ambition, and he sank by the wayside with the harness on. The antagonisms which every man of strong intellect and will encounters, in the warfare of business and the arena of politics, never entered the sacred precincts of his domicile. The prattle of childhood, the wifely admonition and advice, tempered by his own cool judgment, reigned supreme in the household. No man lived, who loved his home and kindred with a truer devotion, for he sacrificed health and comfort and all else to promote their happiness. The pillar which held the key stone of the family arch has been broken in twain. The fatherly counsel is gone, the cherry voice is hushed, the strong right arm is still. Henceforth we must stem the tide of life and buffet the waves of fate or fortune alone. No, not alone! For hath it not been written that the Good Father in Heaven will protect the widow and the fatherless! We reverently bow to His will and trust that He may sanctify this bereavement to our welfare and His own glory.

DEATH OF MR. F. C. KING.

Mr. F. C. King expired at his residence on Indiana ave, Tuesday morning, Nov. 6th, at four o'clock. Mr. King had been in ill health for some time, but his death was wholly unexpected at the time it occurred. The disease took a sudden turn, his demise resulting from neuralgia of the heart. Mr. King had long been a resident of LaPorte, and was one of its most successful business men. As one of the proprietors of the King & Fildes Co's woolen mill he had built up a large manufacturing interest. He was enterprising and liberal and was one of our most respected citizens. The sympathy of the community will go out to the afflicted family. The deceased was born in Onondaga county, N. Y., Nov. 23, 1815. He came to the west in 1836, and was engaged in the mercantile trade in Fairfield county, Ohio, and Tecumseh, Mich. In 1842 he returned East, and followed the mercantile business in Springfield, Mass., until 1846, in which year he returned West and sold goods in La Grange, Ind. In 1866 he removed to this city, and in the same year engaged in business as one of the proprietors of the Clear Lake woolen mill, now conducted by the King & Fildes Co. He was married in 1849 to a daughter of Robert Cummings, a native of Ohio. Mr. K. was a member of the Presbyterian church. He was one of LaPorte's most enterprising and substantial business men, and was an honored and esteemed citizen.

The above notice is taken from the LaPorte (Ind.) Chronicle. Mr. King was an uncle of George and Charles Spafford, and had many friends in Tecumseh. Since his residence here he has been a frequent visitor and has kept up his acquaintance. "Uncle Fred," as we have always known him, will greet us no more. Kind and affectionate in disposition, generous to a fault, the soul of integrity and honesty in business affairs, to know him was to respect and love him. He has gone to his final reward, mourned by a host of friends who will remember his genial qualities and profit by his noble example.

OBITUARY.

Died, of muscular rheumatism, Oct. 12, 1888, Mrs. Lois Morton, at her home in Cambridge. The deceased was born at Lodi, Seneca co., N. Y., Dec. 10, 1830, and moved to Michigan with her parents, Peter P. and Lois VanVleet, who settled at Ridgeway, Lenawee co., May 12, 1832. Her childhood and schooldays were spent surrounded by such circumstances as usually fall to the lot of the pioneer and his family. At the early age of fourteen years she began teaching district schools and continued in this chosen work until her marriage to Miles P. Morton, of Cambridge, Oct. 23, 1870. Thus separated from relatives and former friends, new responsibilities and opportunities opened before her, and were met by the same energy and ability that characterized her work as a successful teacher. On Jan. 24, '84, her husband died leaving an adopted son, Fred, who remained with her until her death. Sincere sorrow is felt at many a hearthstone over the loss of the friend and teacher of other days; while eleven brothers and sisters mourn her loss, and feel that a second link from the family chain has been broken. Father, mother, brother and sister have gone before, while each day nearer brings the time when one by one the family circle shall be gathered to their rest.

Sensation at Grand Rapids, Mich.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 10.—A local newspaper created something of a sensation Friday afternoon by an expose of the Emerson, a reformatory institution for fallen women. About a year ago Georgia Young, a leader among the local demimonde, professed to have seen the error of her ways, and was taken in hand by several charitably disposed church ladies. The house occupied by Miss Young was rented and turned into a Magdalen institution, with the former proprietress as matron. It is now alleged that while the upper floors of the house are devoted to reformatory purposes the lower story of the building is given up to nightly revels by Miss Young and two or three chosen companions. The matter will be thoroughly investigated.

LYNCHING IN MICHIGAN.

The Brutal Assailant of Two Women Hung by a Mob.

GRAYLING, Mich., Nov. 8.—Archibald Pelon, a dissolute character, was taken from the sheriff early yesterday morning by thirty masked men and hanged to a tree. Last Monday Pelon brutally assaulted an aged widow, who lived alone on the outskirts of the village and, while an angry mob was searching for him, entered another house and repeated his crime. The second victim was a young married woman, whose husband was absent in pursuit of Pelon at the time. The men who did the lynching are known, but it is hardly probable that any legal measures will be taken against them.

Threats of Lynching in Michigan.

MIO, Mich., Nov. 10.—There are two men now in jail here who may be taken out and lynched if the townspeople do not cool down. They are Joseph Rossi, a woodsman who pounded John Fowler, of Fairview so that he may die, and Albert Beadle, also a woodsman, who committed an assault on Pauline Burcleff, a German girl. She had been to Potts, and was followed from there over the Au Sable river bridge by Beadle, where he attacked her. The girl fought furiously and succeeded in defending herself, but in revenge he mutilated her terribly and pounded and kicked her into insensibility. She is still alive, but her recovery is doubtful.

End of a Wrecked Life.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Nov. 10.—Mary Canfield committed suicide Friday night at the residence of D. R. Griswold, for whom she had clerked in a dry goods store for ten years. She was the divorced wife of John Rice, who was sent to state prison fifteen years ago for robbing the money order department of the postoffice here. She has been at Romeo lately, but was called here Wednesday by a mysterious telegram. Her life has been a sad one.

COLLISION AT SEA.

The Umbria Crashes into the Steamer Iberia—No Lives Lost.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Cunard steamer Umbria collided with and sunk the Fabre steamer Iberia off Long Beach hotel Saturday at 10 o'clock. The accident was due to a dense fog. When the collision occurred the crew of the Iberia became panic-stricken. With one accord they rushed to the side of the vessel and prepared to leap into the small boats. Capt. Sangloes shouted to them to resume their places. Frenzied and shrieking with fear they paid no heed to him. Seeing in a moment that desperate measures were necessary, the captain seized a belaying-pin, drawing his revolver at the same time, and leaped over the rail where some of the crew were struggling among themselves, and, at the point of the revolver forced them back.

The vessel sunk slowly, and when the Umbria hove to and began to take the passengers on board order was restored. All were taken safely and transported to the deck, where the Umbria now lies awaiting repairs.

The Iberia sailed from the Persian gulf in September. She was a first-class vessel and was owned in Marseilles, France. No blame is attached to the officers of either vessel.

A Race War Threatened.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The Herald's Norfolk, Va., special says: All the Winchester rifles that could be purchased here Saturday were sent up to Southampton county, where the white people are greatly excited and alarmed over the threatened violence of the blacks. A collision is said to have occurred there Saturday. Southampton is the scene of the famous Nat Turner insurrection.

Serious Railway Washout.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 10.—A serious washout occurred on the Erie railroad about two miles this side of Tonawanda, Saturday morning early. A section of about 100 feet of the road-bed and track was washed out. A Lehigh Valley freight train ran into the washout, derailing fourteen cars. Passengers were transferred over the wreck after a delay of a couple of hours.

Mr. Dana Sails for Europe.

Graver, Mrs. Daniel, Mrs. Ferrine, Miss Fannie Sparks and Miss Lucy Sullivan, who are bound for India as missionaries.

Died for Want of Nourishment.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Nov. 10.—August Falk, a German, aged 50, was found dead in bed by his wife Friday morning. Dr. Corbett, who was called, says the man died for lack of nourishment. Falk worked for 50 cents a day in a coffin factory, and the family lived in one room. Only a crust of bread was found in the larder.

Switchmen Win a Strike.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 10.—The striking New York switchmen have received the advance in wages which they demanded, and the threatened freight blockade is being rapidly raised. It is believed the fear that the freight brakemen and conductors would go out influenced the company in deciding the matter.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. $22 TO $900. The Cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861, other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments but the Mason & Hamlin organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogue free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the assertion that they claim for their pianos that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year '82, and now known as the "Mason & Hamlin Piano Stringer," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with great increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant. Pianos and organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

HELPING ONE ANOTHER.

LESSON VII, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, NOV. 18.

Text of the Lesson, Josh. xxi, 43-45, and xxii, 1-9 (Commit Verses 1-4). Golden Text, Gal. vi, 2. Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The principal incident in today's lesson is the return of the two tribes and a half to their possessions on the east of Jordan with the charge of Joshua to them. Between last week's lesson and this one we find three leading events: The removal of the Tabernacle from Gilgal to Shiloh, the division of the remainder of the land among the seven tribes which had not received their portion, and the appointing of six cities of Refuge, three upon each side of Jordan.

43. "And the Lord gave unto Israel all the land which he sware to give unto their fathers." If the ten spies who discouraged the people and all the thousands who perished in the wilderness could rise from their graves and see their brethren and children in actual possession of the good land which they had refused to possess because of the giants and walled cities, and Caleb possessing and enjoying the very center and stronghold of the giants, they would surely be greatly surprised, and perhaps ashamed of their unbelief, which had shut them out from this inheritance, and if they should ask the dwellers therein how they ever overcame the difficulties, what answer could be given but simply this: "Our God fought for us, and we relied upon Him and obeyed Him."

44. "The Lord gave them rest, according to all that He sware unto their fathers." It is as difficult for many Christians to learn to rest, not in idleness but in activity, as it is for some swimmers to learn to float; but as surely as the latter finds that the water does bear him on its bosom when he quietly rests upon it, so surely does the Christian find that "we who have believed do enter into rest" (Heb. iv, 3) when in confidence we commit ourselves and all our affairs to the love and faithfulness of our covenant keeping God.

45. "There failed not ought of any good thing: all came to pass." The same glorious fact is stated in ch. xxiii, 14; I Ki. viii, 56; and no true believer shall ever be able to say that any one thing has failed of all that God has promised.

Ch. xxii, 1, 2. "Ye have kept all that Moses, the servant of the Lord, commanded you, and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you." When these two tribes and a half asked Moses for their inheritance on the east of Jordan, he was afraid they meant to enjoy immediately their possessions and thus discourage and cause discontent among the other tribes; but when they assured him that they would only build cities for their families and folds for their sheep, and that they themselves would pass over armed with the other tribes, and not return to their homes until all the children of Israel had inherited ever man his inheritance, then Moses was content to let them possess the land on the east of Jordan. (Num. xxxii.) So 40,000 of them prepared for war, passed through the Jordan with the other tribes. (Josh. iv, 12, 13.) Now that they have faithfully kept their promise during these years of fighting and subduing, Joshua is about to dismiss them to their homes with his blessing, and he first commends their obedience to Moses and to himself. Notice God's commendation of the obedience of Abram and of the Rechabites in Gen. xxii, 18; xxvi, 5; Jer. xxxv, 8-18; and the awful end of the disobedient in II Thes. i, 8. "Willing and obedient" are the two conditions of peace and prosperity.

3. "Ye have not left your brethren these many days unto this day." Every delay on the part of their brethren to go up quickly and possess the land must have been a great trial to them, as their hearts would naturally long to return to their homes and to their families; thus their patience was manifested, and their faith in God that the time of their rest and return would come.

4. "Now return ye unto the land of your possession." Let those who have been for a long time separated from home and friends and then permitted to return, describe the feelings of these obedient ones now released from their promise, that they might return to their families; let some one who was a soldier from one to four years, in our great civil war, and is now a teacher in some Sunday school, tell his scholars how he felt when permitted to set his face homewards.

5. "Take diligent heed to do, to love, to walk, to keep, to cleave unto, and to serve." Here are topics for a series of seven most instructive Bible readings. Let me suggest a few texts on the first two: Take heed—Heb. iii, 12; II Pet. i, 19; Mk. iv, 24; Lu. viii, 18; Josh. xxii, 5; II Chr. xix, 6; I Cor. iii, 10. To do—Ezek. xxxiii, 31, 32; Matt. vii, 21; Lu. viii, 21; Jas. i, 22; Matt. vi, 1; Col. iii, 23, 24; I John iii, 18. Thus you may with great profit search out the others and use them if time permit.

6, 7. "So Joshua blessed them." As the representative of God he blessed them; thus David the King blessed the people in the name of the Lord of Hosts (2 Sam. vi, 18); thus Moses the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death (Deut. xxxiii, 1); and when Jesus was parted from the disciples at His ascension it was while He blessed them. (Luke xxiv, 50, 51.) When God created man He blessed them (Gen. i, 22, 28); when he called Abram He said, "I will bless thee" (Gen. xii, 2, 3); when he commanded Israel to let the land rest every seventh year, and promised them that it would produce enough in the sixth year to last them three years, He gave as the simple reason for this extraordinary fruitfulness, "I will command my blessing." (Lev. xxv, 21.) The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and He addeth no sorrow with it.

8. "Return with much riches unto your tents." Besides the conscious approval of God in their hearts, they return home with much temporal riches; cattle, silver, gold, brass, iron and raiment; they have not lost anything by helping their brethren, and serving the Lord with much self denial. God will not allow those who serve Him to do it unrewarded. If we serve Him for so much, and have an eye chiefly to the wages, He may give us just so much, like the penny a day laborers who bargained with Him, but if we serve Him cheerfully, with grateful hearts because of His mercies to us, His love constraining us, then He will do for us exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think.

9. "They departed from Shiloh to go unto the land of their possession." That is equal to saying that they started on their journey from the place of the Tabernacle, from the presence of the Lord. Let us always go forth on our journeys from the presence of Him who has taught us to acknowledge Him in all our ways, and we cannot fail to prosper, for His blessing shall go with us. While the land was being subdued the headquarters of the Ark and Tabernacle were at Gilgal; but in ch. xviii, 1, we find them removed to Shiloh, and there they continued for about three hundred years, until the time of Samuel. (1 Sam. iv.) Shiloh signifies peace, and in Genesis xlix. 10, where it is first used, it refers to Israel's Messiah, who is the Prince of Peace." Let us abide in Him.

THE NUMBER OF THE STARS.

About Six Thousand May Be Seen by the Naked Eye.

The total number of stars one can see will depend very largely upon the clearness of the atmosphere and the keenness of the eye.

There are in the whole celestial sphere about six thousand stars visible to an ordinarily good eye. Of these, however, we can never see more than a fraction at any one time, because a half of the sphere is always below the horizon.

If we could see a star in the horizon as easily as in the zenith a half of the whole number, or 3,000, would be visible on any clear night.

But stars near the horizon are seen through so great a thickness of atmosphere as greatly to obscure their light, and only the brightest ones can there be seen.

As a result of this obscuration it is not likely that more than 2,000 stars can ever be taken in at a single view by any ordinary eye. About 2,000 other stars are so near the south pole that they never rise in our latitudes. Hence, out of 6,000 supposed to be visible, only 4,000 ever come within the range of our vision, unless we make a journey toward the equator.

As telescopic power is increased, we still find stars of fainter and fainter light. But the number cannot go on increasing forever in the same ratio as with the brighter magnitudes, because if it did the whole sky would be a blaze of starlight.

If telescopes with powers far exceeding our present ones were made, they would no doubt show new stars of the twentieth, twenty-first, etc., magnitudes. But it is highly probable that the number of such successive orders of stars would not increase in the same ratio as is observed in the eighth, ninth and tenth magnitudes, for example.

The enormous labor of estimating the number of stars of such classes will long prevent the accumulation of statistics on this question; but this much is certain, that in special regions of the sky, which have been searchingly examined by various telescopes of successively increasing apertures, the number of new stars found is by no means in proportion to the increased instrumental power.

If this is found to be true elsewhere, the conclusion may be that, after all, the stellar system can be experimentally shown to be of finite extent, and to contain only a finite number of stars.

In the whole sky an eye of average power will see about 6,000 stars, as I have just said. With a telescope this number is greatly increased, and the most powerful telescopes of modern times will show more than 60,000,000 stars. Of this number not one out of 100 has ever been catalogued at all.

In all, 314,926 stars, from the first to the ninth and one-half magnitudes, are contained in the Northern sky, or about 600,000 in both hemispheres. All of these can be seen with a three-inch object glass.—Century.

PRESERVING THE DEAD.

Frequent Failure of Embalming—Value of Ice in Post-Mortem Treatment.

Abraham Lincoln's remains were despoiled of their naturalness by a crude process of embalming. Gen. Grant's features were swollen and distorted when on exhibition in City Hall, and the same results seem to come from this "science of preservation of the dead" wherever practiced.

Lincoln looked as if his skin had been tanned black, and the excuse was that all who are shot to death look that way. It seems a pity that the hundreds of thousands who had a glance at the immortal Lincoln in his casket should have been shocked by what they saw.

Ice is the best preserver, after all. It leaves color in the face, and restores the appearance of health even where sickness resulted in emaciation.

Some people object to ice upon the ground that if the dead be not dead, but merely in a trance, the ice would kill them surely. To be sure if in a trance the ice would settle the whole business, but trances are like miracles. They have occurred, but don't occur any more.

There was a widespread, impressive, and painful rumor years ago that the body of a distinguished politician, who died in his bathtub, had been found turned over in the coffin when his relatives were about to take his remains from the receiving vault of Greenwood for burial.

It was not verified, and is now pinned up alongside of the legend that a body of a man that looked just like him was, for a consideration, furnished to the relatives of John C. Colt, the murderer of Adams, the printer, and put into his cell by bribed keepers and passed off as that of the suicide and homicide, who had escaped.—New York World.

ONE PENNY A SEAT.

The Chair-Letting Industry in Hyde Park.

There are thousands of chairs in Hyde Park, London, which can be hired for a penny each, and their history is an interesting one.

It dates back to shortly after the battle of Waterloo, when an English general, who had done good service, found himself reduced to extreme poverty. The government of that day acknowledged his past services by granting him and his heirs forever the right of letting on hire chairs at Hyde Park.

The general gathered his resources and started with a hundred chairs. There are now over 27,000 chairs, the income from them amounting to over $50,000 a year.

Slim Diet.

"Maria," demanded Mr. Plunkett, who had brought his friend Wagstaff unexpectedly home to take supper with him, "I wan' know (hic) 'f this all you ze got to eat—bredden warret?"

"Bread and water is all there is in the house, Mr. Plunkett, and it's good enough for a drunken wretch that won't look after his own family," said the high-spirited woman. "In the last ten days you have given me just 50 cents to supply the table with, sir."

"Wagstaff," said Mr. Plunkett, solemnly, after a pause, "ain't she (hic) ain't she a mercenary wretch?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Dismal Time.

"If I should die, dear," said a not very sick wife, "would you marry again?"

"Don't talk in that way, my love; you make me dismal."

"Does it really make you dismal, John, to think that I may possibly be called away?"

"It makes me feel dismal, my dear, to think that I may marry again."—Epoch.

TATE SPRINGS, TENN., July 4, 1888, The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

During the spring of 1871, while working in the field at my home in Morgan county, Ga., I pulled off my shoes to give my feet a rest. Unfortunately, I walked into a clump of poison oak, and in a few days my feet were in a terrible condition, and I could not put on a shoe because of the soreness and swelling. I was treated as poison oak cases usually are, and everything was healed up. About the same time the following spring, 1872, my feet became sore again, as at first, and every succeeding spring for five years brought back the same condition of the disease, only each time it became more distressing, because I began to think it was a lifetime trouble. Finally, I was induced to try Swift's Specific. I took six bottles, and to-day am entirely well. My improvement was gradual from the first, and no evidence of the disease remains. I shall take pleasure in testifying as to its curative properties. It is the greatest blood purifier in existence. Yours truly, J. L. MORGAN.

The foregoing certificate is taken at random from thousands of letters in possession of the Swift Specific Co., and presented simply as a sample. It is a voluntary statement, giving facts and results of the case. Its accuracy and genuineness are beyond question.

A Mystery Explained.

A sensible mother reads a child's story paper regularly to her little daughter, and most of the tales are continued from week to week.

The other day the little one heard the expression "writer's cramp," and asked what it meant.

"It is a stiffening or cramping of the fingers, my dear," was the reply. "People who write a great deal often get it and have to stop writing for a while."

"Oh!" said the little miss, as a great light broke upon her perceptive faculties, "that's it, is it? I've often wondered why the writers of those nice stories always stop in such interesting places."

We have sold Ely's Cream Balm about three years, and have recommended its use in more than a hundred special cases of catarrh. The unanimous answer to our inquiries is, "It is the best remedy that I have ever used." Our experience is, that where parties continue its use, it never fails to cure.—J. H. Montgomery & Co., Druggists, Decorah, Iowa.

I have used Ely's Cream Balm for dry catarrh to which Eastern persons are subject who come to live here. It has proved a cure. B. F. M. Weeks, Denver, Col.

The most serious diseases of the heart, says Prof. Da Costa, may occur without any symptoms. Prof. Trousseau, of Paris, states that death from heart disease is usually caused by congestion of the lungs, liver, stomach or kidneys, from imperfect circulation of the blood. Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart is the latest and most reliable remedy for this little understood but grave disease. It has cured thousands of cases. Don't fail to try it. Ask for testimonials. Dreadful Disasters.

An Awful Record of Human Life Sacrificed.

UNDERGROUND HORROR IN KANSAS

Of 160 Miners All but Two Killed by an Explosion That Shook the Ground Like an Earthquake.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Nov. 10.—A special from Pittsburg, Kan., says:

"The most dreadful disaster in the history of Kansas occurred at 5 o'clock last evening when the men were preparing to leave their work at shaft No. 2 at Frontenac, a suburb of Pittsburg, a terrific explosion occurred that shook the earth for a great distance. Upon investigation it was found that 160 men were in the mine at the time, 112 feet below the surface, and undoubtedly all of them are dead. Two men, who were in the car coming up, and were near the top, were the only men who escaped.

Big fires were built near the mouth of the pit, and beside those blazing piles the women placed their children while they themselves cried by all kinds of entreaties to induce the miners from the other shafts to enter the pit and rescue their relatives. One rescuing party started down the shaft at 7 o'clock, but was forced to turn back owing to the foul air. Another attempt was made at 9 o'clock, but the plucky rescuers were again forced to abandon their work. They could hear no sound from the chambers below, and this leads old miners to believe that all the men in the shaft have perished. Other attempts will be made to reach the entombed men.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Nov. 12.—The accounts of the mine disaster at Frontenac have been so largely overdrawn that it is deemed proper for the information of the public that at least one true statement of the facts should be officially given. There had been up to Sunday evening at 6 o'clock thirty-nine dead bodies recovered and about twenty wounded or injured. Of the latter, not to exceed five will die, and probably not that many. Experts and volunteers are still thoroughly searching the entries and rooms of these underground workings to say positively which may be possibly left there, but it is thought they are all now discovered, and included in the list of killed and wounded. There were originally about 160 men in the mine at the time of the explosion, those alive and above that number of killed and wounded having escaped soon after the explosion by way of the air and escape shafts.

HOLOCAUST AT ROCHESTER.

Fire in a Factory Results in a Panic and Great Loss of Life.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The most disastrous and fatal fire that has happened in this city for many years occurred last evening, and the loss of life is expected to reach between fifty and sixty persons. A general alarm was sounded at 7 o'clock on fire being discovered in the packing room of the Rochester Steam Gauge and Lantern works, a factory employing a large number of men. So busy has the factory been lately that the men have been working night and day to catch up on orders. The country where the fire occurred is regarded as somewhat dangerous, and when the report got abroad that the lantern works and the cotton factory in its vicinity were on fire there was intense excitement, and over the city which was increased when at 8 o'clock the rumor got abroad that a large number of men had been killed.

The following is a list of the casualties so far as obtained up to midnight: Killed—John Wise, foreman; Joseph Danzer, jumped from seventh floor and picked up dead; Henry Schneider, crushed internally; Frank A. Ochs and Joseph Webber.

The injured are—Frank Schlegel, both legs and back broken, will probably die; Jacob Gerling, night watchman, burned internally and prostrated by shock; John Devlin, left leg and wrist injured and these more or less burned and bruised; Richard Pierce, John Gerstenacker, William Devlin, Frank Froedlin, S. Burkhard, Oscar Knotts, Joseph Burkhardt, Charles Diehl, G. Rippert, Stephen Roches, John Greenauer, second by that name, Con Holleran, John Ball.

Those known to be missing are—Thomas Marrian, S. Robbins, Charles Weber, John Miller, Barnes Cosgrove, Richard Connor, G. Watters, Charles Smith, Robert Poole, Frank Reynish and Alfred Cannon. These are known by name to be missing, but until the books are examined it will not be possible to tell who were actually at work.

Among those saved were John Platts, who escaped by sliding from the sixth floor. He says there were thirty persons at work on that floor, and three were saved—Grant and Horatio Hill, and Joseph Smith. Platts thinks that about ten others escaped with him.

THE LATEST.—It is now known that thirty-three persons perished in the Steam Gauge and Lantern works disaster. The fund for the relief of the stricken families already amounts to several thousand dollars.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 12.—A body was recovered from the ruins of the Gauze Manufacturing company's works Monday morning but basket been identified. Another body was identified as that of James Forbes. A large force of men are working on the ruins. It is estimated that over sixty were employed in the building at the time of the fire, of whom over half lost their lives. The funerals of Frank A. Ochs, Henry Schneider, and Joseph Danzer were held Monday morning.

An Iowa Woman Pursues Her Husband and Kills Him with an Ax.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 10.—Samuel Brown, a farmer, who lived near North Liberty, a village of this county, was killed by his wife yesterday morning. Mrs. Brown was not of perfectly sound mind and her temper was naturally violent. Yesterday morning, after an unusually angry dispute with her husband over a trivial matter, she seized an ax and pursued him through the house, hacking him repeatedly, and finally felling him to the floor dead. Mrs. Brown has been arrested and will be examined as to her sanity.

The Fever Pestilence.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 10.—There were twenty new cases reported yesterday and six deaths—Lucius Minis (colored), Susan Wright, Mrs. Florence Ada Vincent, Eager Proctor, Carlotta Young (colored), and William Bergmann. Of the new cases ten were white. Total cases, 4,456; total deaths, 379.

Jesse Grant, son of the late Gen. Grant, has arrived in the City of Mexico on mining business.

ANARCHISTS CELEBRATE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Two big trains steamed over the Wisconsin Central road Sunday, loaded with Anarchist sympathisers, to the graves of the five executed Anarchists. The weather was cold and a sharp wind blew over the bleak prairies, causing the crowd to huddle together for warmth. Mrs. Parsons was not talking anarchy and trying to sell her husband's book. Mrs. Spies, the mother of August, was not there.

IN THE ANARCHISTS' MEMORY.

but was represented by her daughter, Gretchen. Some of the members of the Engel family were present. The crowd scrambled though the mud led by a band of music, behind which was a number of little girls, members of the Socialistic Sunday school, carrying floral decorations to lay on the graves. After a speech was made by a Detroit Anarchist fifty little voices rang out in a song about the dead Anarchists which caused the tears to flow from the eyes of a large number of those on hand. At its close the chairman read the letter from Albert R. Parsons to his children, written two days before his execution, with the understanding that it should not be opened or read before the first anniversary of the execution of the Anarchists. The writer bids his children an affectionate good-bye, and says his life is offered up as a sacrifice on the altar of liberty, and he leaves to them a legacy of an honest name and a duty done. He tells them to be sober, industrious and cheerful and always obey their mother, whom he says is the grandest and noblest of women. The letter closed with a blessing and the request that it be read on each succeeding anniversary of his death.

BECAUSE SHE IS A WOMAN.

The Massachusetts Authorities Conclude Not to Hang Mrs. Robinson.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 13.—Sarah Jane Robinson is not to hang. Tuesday the governor and council yesterday decided to commute her death sentence to imprisonment for life, but they added to the words "in solitary confinement" which makes the sentence as possibly more terrible than the one originally imposed by Judge Devens last spring. She is condemned for poisoning Prince Arthur Freeman.

MRS. ROBINSON.

Mrs. Robinson's husband, her brother-in-law, but she is suspected of having put out of the way by the same means Oliver Sweeper, her landlord, Moses Pitchman, her husband's Annie Freeman, her sister, Lizzie A. Robinson, her daughter, Thomas Freeman, Jr., her nephew, and William A. Robinson, her son. Her sentence is commuted because those in authority do not want to hang a woman. She told the jurors that she would have preferred hanging to this sentence.

TERRIBLE MURDER IN ILLINOIS

WENONA, Ills., Nov. 13.—A double murder followed by the suicide of the fiend who committed the horrible crime, has caused much excitement in this peaceful community. Isaac Howe, a wealthy banker of this place, and his wife were found murdered in their beds early yesterday morning. A coupling-pin besmeared with blood, the beds, floor, and walls of the room spattered with blood and brains, and the horribly mutilated bodies of the unfortunate couple told the story of the murder.

Sarah Richardson, a pretty, 19-year-old domestic in the Howe family, made the discovery. She is the stepdaughter of Charles Burkhardt, a dissolute man, against whom suspicion of the crime was at once directed. Burkhardt lived with his family over a grocery store located in the principal business block of this place. The citizens who were called to the scene of the crime were unanimous in the opinion that Burkhardt had committed the awful deed. A watch was at once placed over the rooms where he lived, while the county authorities at Ottawa were notified. It was not long until Burkhardt discovered that a watch was kept over his premises. He was walking up and down the hallway at the time, apparently in great agitation. Seeing no way of escape the murderer went into his room, grabbed his razor and cut his throat. His dying moans were heard by his wife, who was in the room adjoining. She rushed in and threw herself over the prostrate form of her husband.

"Care for the baby," was all that Burkhardt was able to gasp out in a faint manner. They were his last words.

In the absence of any statement from Burkhardt the cause of his bloody act can only be surmised. It is thought he committed the double murder out of spite. He had frequently importuned Sarah Richardson to leave the Howe family and live with him, but the girl had persistently refused because of Burkhardt's motives. The girl bears a good reputation, and she was supported in her resolve to keep aloof from her fiendish stepfather by both Mr. and Mrs. Howe. Burkhardt no doubt heard of this, and concluded to vent his spite against the Howes, robbery was certainly not the motive, as nothing was taken.

Mr. Howe, the murdered man, had been a resident of Wenona for nearly thirty years. He was the owner of much valuable real estate and president of the First National bank of this place, being considered worth more than $250,000. He was very charitable and of preventual philanthropy, as the endowment by him of the Howe institute at New Iberia, La., and the Baptist institute at Memphis, Tenn., testified. The last named establishment is a college for the education of indigent persons of both races. Mr. and Mrs. Howe (he former 53 and the latter 60 years of age, and the domestic, Sarah Richardson, were the only occupants of the premises. Mrs. Howe was a sister of George Parks, the Magnolia, Ills., millionaire.

Mrs. Morton, wife of the vice president-elect, says that she has done nothing but keep house and raise a family since she has been married, and that her life fulfills her idea of complete happiness.

A GREAT MAGAZINE.

The Century for 1889.

THE question has often been asked, "to what does The Century owe its great circulation?" The Christian Union once answered this by the statement that "it has been fairly won, not by advertising schemes, but by the excellence which characterizes it in every department." In their announcements for the coming year the publishers state that it has always been their desire to make The Century the one indispensable periodical of its class, so that whatever other publication might be desirable in the family, The Century could not be neglected by those who wish to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to culture. And the unprecedented circulation of the magazine would seem to be the response of the public to this intention.

With the November number The Century begins its thirty-seventh volume. Two great features of the magazine which are to continue throughout the new volume are already well known to the public, the Lincoln history and the papers on "Siberia and the Exile System." The first of these, written by Messrs. Nicolay and Hay, President Lincoln's private secretaries, contains the inside history of the dark days of the war, as seen from the White House.

THE SIBERIAN PAPERS,

by George Kennan, are attracting the attention of the civilized world. The Chicago Tribune says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." As is already known, copies of The Century entering Russia have these articles torn out by the customs officials on the frontier.

DURING 1889

The Century will publish the most important art feature that has yet found place in its pages. It is the result of four years' work of Mr. Timothy Cole, the leading magazine engraver of the world, in the galleries of Europe, engraving from the originals the greatest pictures by the old masters. A series of papers on Ireland, its customs, landscapes, etc., will appear, and there are to be illustrated articles on Bible scenes, treating especially the subjects of the International Sunday-School Lessons. George W. Cable will write "Strange, True Stories of Louisiana." There will be novelettes and short stories by leading writers, occasional articles on war subjects (supplemental to the famous "War Papers" by General Grant and others, which have been appearing in The Century), etc., etc.

The Century costs four dollars a year, and it is published by The Century Co., of New York, who will send a copy of the full prospectus to any one on request.

EDITOR HERALD:—Many who are anxious to see the failure of the prohibition movement have shown great delight since election, because of the report that the prohibition vote had fallen off. Those who are loyal to the cause knew such a report would be proven false as soon as the returns came in so that the vote could be fairly estimated. The return now shows that with the exceptions of two states, the prohibition vote has increased in every state in the union, and that the vote of 1884 for St. John will be more than doubled. The prohibitionists have great reason for rejoicing on account of such a result and take new courage. They will begin another campaign at once, knowing that they can increase their vote much easier in local and state elections than in the National contest like the one through which they have just passed. To double a vote in a national election is surely a rapid increase.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Our last Sunday brought us quite a snow storm.

Mr. Charles Holtz, who lived south of Britton, nearly two miles, died last Friday of typhoid fever. He was buried on Sabbath morning. Rev. Mr. Wright conducted the services. Mr. Holtz was twenty five years of age, was married and leaves a wife and one child.

Mrs. Will Osgood has been quite sick for about two weeks, but is now better. Her sister, Mrs. Shaffer of Ontario, Canada, is with her and caring for her.

James Underwood is greatly afflicted with sickness in his family; first, his son John had a run of typhoid fever, then Mrs. Underwood was brought down and for several weeks was severely sick with kidney disease, and now three of their children are quite low with typoid fever. Verily, they should have the sympathy of their neighbors.

John Beasley has bought the stave mill property and is going to convert it into a planing mill and chair factory.

There seems now to be good prospects of a flour mill being established here; a gentleman miller was here prospecting a few days ago and gave good enceuragement that he would come and commence to build next spring, promising to put in the Roller process.

The present is certainly a good time for men of business to locate themselves in Britton; this is the junction of two important railways and surrounded with very productive farming lands, and the people, generally, are in good circumstances. When the present brick block is completed we shall have a solid row of brick stores, two stories high and nine in number, and they will present as handsome a show as almost any stores outside of Detroit. We have men here of sterling enterprise. I. S. Osborne has come to be one of our most energetic citizens. True, he does not yet remove his family here, but he himself is here about al the time. He is not only building one of the new stores, but has a good dwelling house in building at the same time. The dwelling is now being plastered and some of us hope that Irve, himself will occupy it.

The Rev. Mr. Wright was absent last week in attendance upon the State conference of the Christian church, which met at Romeo, Mich. He returned Saturday, midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Rupp have spent several days in visiting old friends at their former home in Monroe county, Mich. and are now safely back at home.

MACON MUSIC.

Prof. Travis and family of Clinton, have been spending a few days with his parents.

The members of the Reformed church have engaged the services of Rev. E. W. Borden of Britton; preaching at 10:30 A.M.

The Free Methodists of Lake Ridge, have been holding a series of meetings at the Baptist church during the past few weeks. Rev. Jones of Spring Arbor, assisted them in their closing services on Sunday last.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

We think Uncle VanMillers' horse, Barney, must be in its "second childhood;" according to its history it is old enough to have voted in the last three presidential campaigns. Last week it took into its head the idea of running away, according to all accounts, this feat was accomplished nobody killed however.

It is rumored that Al. Madham has been measuring the front doors of the respective stores of H. H. Osgood and C. E. Begel and trying to negotiate for an exchange with Doc. so as to save work both in erasing and painting the words, "post office" which Doc had painted on his door this summer.

L. B. Spencer is in the north woods hunting deer; he has been gone something more than a week and not expected back under about two weeks yet.

Geo. Holloway has began spring plowing.

Last Friday morning at 6 o'clock, Uncle Edmund Hall, who has been slowly failing for some time, breathed his last. He was 82 years old. He leaves a wife and two children, Mrs. James Lane and Austin G. Hall, to mourn his departure.

WEST FRANKLIN FARMERS' CLUB.

One of the best attended and most interesting meetings of this club was held at the residence of W. M. Crittenden, on Friday evening, Nov. 16. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, by Sec. Wilson, the following program was rendered:

Violin music by F. Grey, Nellie Smith playing accompaniment.

Dec.—"Socrates Snooks," by C. D. Crittenden.

Recitation by Mrs. John Osborn, which showed how little some men appreciate their wives work; how penurious some of the sterner sex are when called upon by their patient, hardworking companions to supply them with sufficient means to carry on the household matters successfully; and, also, how a lady effectively destroyed such evil habits that her husband possessed.

Song—"Bonnie Highland Lassie," W. M. Crittenden.

Reading by E. A. Wilson, who said that home should be the place of true happiness, that a kindly spirit should be shown to all, and that we receive the most good by doing good.

Whistling Solo, 'The Mocking Bird, by Lizzie Smith.

After recess, during which the young people enjoyed themselves in playing a number of very interesting games, the affirmative side of the subject to be discussed, viz: Resolved, "That foreign emigration is a detriment to the Farmers," was opened by C. D. Crittenden, who said that foreign emigration is detrimental, not only to the farmer in a money making sense, but to the advancement of education, to our government, and to our poor native born young men, who, in a few short years will not be able to obtain any vacant land on account of its being rapidly taken up by immigrants.

The negative was opened by H. C. Danjels, who thought we need these foreigners to do the hard manual labor which is being evaded by so many of the rising generation who are seeking for a "soft job." Foreign labor is also cheaper.

J. A. Briggs believed that many young men are obliged to leave the farm on account of being unable to compete with these immigrants.

Miss Virginia Daniels pointed to their degenerating influence upon society. After listening to interesting remarks by Miss L. Wilber, Miss Lena Alexander, J. J. Osborn, E. A. Wilson, S. M. Munger and others, the debate was decided in favor of the affirmative.

Mr. Grey and Miss Smith then favored us with more music.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at the residence of Albert Vanderpool in four weeks, and all returned to their homes feeling it that it was one of the best meetings ever held. An interesting program has been provided for next time, and it is hoped all will make an extra effort to be present.

WINGS AND STRINGS.

This is the airy, stinging title of another sprightly amusing book by Palmer Cox. It is one of the QUEER PEOPLE series, and similar to its companion "Paws and Claws," of which we told you recently. This is one of the funniest and brightest books for youngsters we have ever seen. The illustrations are splendid and will make the boys and girls roar with laughter. The Boston Budget, says: "as a holiday book nothing could be more appropriate, since nothing could confer greater pleasure upon the little ones." The national Republican says: "Every page is a picture and all the text music, a fountain of fun, never ceasing. It will make young eyes blaze." It will certainly be wonderfully popular. It is published by Messrs. Hubbard Bros., of Philadelphia, Chicago, and Kansas City, to whom persons desiring a copy or an agency should apply.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Gen. Alger in his speech at the Home Market club jollification banquet in Boston, last night, mapped out the course of Harrison's administration. The tariff is to be revised, coast defenses raised, the consular service reformed, a navy created, the south divided by the establishment of manufactories, the paupers of the old world shut out, and the followers of the red flag of anarchy sent back whenever shipped here.

It might be said in criticism that when the republicans were in power they had ample opportunity to do all these things, but did not do any of them. On the contrary, they made the tariff more burdensome, practically annihilated the navy, although expending millions in "repairs," solicited the south, established immigration bureaus for the purpose of inducing a greater flow of "pauper labor" from the old world, and made the consular service a bureau for the payment of political debts. As for the anarchists, most of them are the product of conditions in the United States, and therefore it is impossible to ship them back. They can only be suppressed by changing the conditons—something that neither Gen. Alger nor any other republican of national reputation has as yet proposed to do.

But perhaps the republicans have learned wisdom in their four years banishment from power, and after next March they will really institute the reforms outlined by Gen. Alger—reforms which, if vigorously pushed, will give them many years of power. Still, doesn't the scripture say something about the difficulty a leopard finds in changing his spots?—Detroit Evening News.

THE RESULT.

The result of yesterday's election will make Benjamin Harrison the next President of the United States. It will place the national government in the hands of the Republican party for four years from the 4th of March next. It will settle, for the present at least, and on the lines marked out by that party, the great and important tariff issues which the country has so long and thoroughly discussed.

When President Cleveland in his famous message to Congress demanded a reform of the tariff, he furnished to the country a greater and more vital question for consideration and discussion than any other which had been before the people for twenty years. He swept aside the dead issues of the time and brought the Democracy face to face with a great and important principle.

It was a courageous, daring and most manly movement, and while from a political standpoint this very issue may be charged with Mr. Cleveland's defeat, he has nevertheless won a victory great in its results and most important to the best interests of the nation. He has compelled attention to the fact that unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation, and for this will generations of his countrymen rise up and call him blessed.

The Democratic party gave to the President a most loyal and hearty support in his struggle for the eradication of the war taxes. It stood by him unflinchingly through the greatest and ablest canvass that has ever been made in this country. But a nation is not converted from old beliefs in a year. The tariff is one of our most cherished political dogmas. The country was not educated to the point of promptly and suddenly investigating the claim made for this political fetish, and that is why Benjamin Harrison was yesterday elected President of the United States.—New York Graphic.

THE RACE FOR THE SPOILS.

When the Democrats came back, after wandering twenty four years in the wilderness, they exhibited an appetite for office that was not altogether unnatural under the circumstances. But it was nothing to the hunger and thirst that less than four years of abstinence have developed among the Republicans.

One of the striking features of the present political situation is the unanimity with which the idea of civil service reform has been abandoned. It seems to be agreed that all such new fangled notions have been voted out, and there is not the least pretense in any quarter that the spoils do not belong entirely to the victors.

It may be interesting, about next March, to recall some of the observations made four years before on the subject of removals from office, to say nothing of the utterances of party platforms meanwhile. But this interest will be rather historical than practical. It is now conceded that the offices belong to the saints, and it must be acknowledged that the saints are not backward in coming forward to claim them.

History relates that the older Harrison succumbed to the office-seekers in a month, finding his only escape in death. If the grandson prove better able to stand the pressure it will be because he is without experience in the distribution of patronage. And yet the pressure of 1840-41 was not a circumstance to that which already confronts the President elect.—Philadelphia Times.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT IT.

The Philadelphia Times has been an independent Republican paper of high tariff proclivities. Its words have peculiar significance in view of the success of Gen. Harrison, on a high tariff platform.

The defeat of President Cleveland is a national misfortune. Its chief significance is in the apparent condemnation of the only President since John Quincy Adams, who made any attempt at the elevation of the civil service above the standard of the spoilsman. That he did not accomplish more in the reformation of the public service was because a sudden revolution of our political system was a practical impossibility; but he stands single and alone among the Presidents of the last two generations who respected their public pledges to dignify free government by some higher and nobler aim than the distribution of partisan plunder.

And who has left the Presidency during the last half century with so clean a record as Grover Cleveland will leave ineffaceably fixed in the annals of the nation? Lincoln was no less honest, but the supreme necessities of civil war and its logical demoralization made severely honest administration impossible; but Cleveland's four years of public trust will go into history unstained by either the crimes of the jobber or the waste of the predatory. In every department within the control of the Executive, public integrity reigned supreme. The lobbyist had no chance to ply his vocation in the reward of contracts; neither political nor mercenary influence could command official favor in the public expenditure, and the public thief fled from the power that he could not approach. Indeed, when the passions of the contest shall have perished, and the American people accept the unerring judgment of history, the rule of Grover Cleveland will be remembered as the honest administration of modern times.

The defeat of President Cleveland delays but does not overthrow tariff and tax reform. Only a man of his integrity and courage could have presented the vital issue of tax and revenue reduction and submitted it honestly to the supreme tribunal of the people. He could have stuffed expediency by cunning evasion of the issue and possibly won a second term by cowardice; but he was thoroughly convinced that the time had come for the emancipation of American industry from needless taxes and the greed of monopoly, and he accepted honesty and defeat as preferable to dishonest success. Lincoln's patriotic and courageous emancipation of slaves lost him the support of the great Middle States of the North in 1862, just as Cleveland's patriotic and courageous effort for the emancipation of industry from the bondage of classes has lost him the same in States 1888; but Lincoln's emancipation is now enshrined in the refulgence of our most lustrous achievement, and Cleveland's emancipation of labor will as surely triumph, despite temporary disaster, as did the unshackling of the bondmen a quarter of a century ago.

"When David Hill makes his election as governor certain while in the same and vital state Grover Cleveland is rejected explanations may be interesting, but they are useless, for, however plausible, they will not be accepted by democrats. In his case both the attempt and the deed confound him. And therefore it is that however he stand in New York the democracy of the country repudiate him. Even though he came to a national convention with all his empire state at his back he would be denied. The field of national politics is not open to him. The fact that he is chosen governor of a state that refused the electoral vote to Cleveland, both of the same party, condemns him. He may show hands empty of a dagger, assert the possession of a heart innocent of guile, but the fact that he won and his chief lost arises as a fact to confront and destroy any lingering ambition he may have to pass the boundaries of a state claiming intelligence and returning David Hill and defeating Grover Cleveland.

"David Bennett Hill has three years in which to make the most of his triumph. He and Tammany's Grant may stand together gleefully as adepts in the peculiar politics of New York, but beyond Niagara bridge they are seen by the democracy as in a pillory."

Whether President elect Harrison will redeem the promise of the Republican platform regarding civil service reform or yield to the pressure of the spoilsmen and make a clean sweep, remains to be seen. It is upon this point that the strength of his moral backbone will be first tested. He should not fail to observe that even from the practical standpoint the removal of the civil service from the domain of partisan politics will prove an advantage. The Republicans in full possession of patronage and offices suffered defeat in 1884, and without either won a decisive victory in 1888. There was a world of truth in the remark of the old French statesman, that when he conferred an office he made twenty enemies and one ingrate. American human nature is very like human nature elsewhere in this respect.

"SHOUTIN'."

There's lots an' lots o' people (if you'll just believe my song)
What says we shoutin' Methodists has got the business wrong.
Well, they're welcome to their pinions, but of one thing I'm secure,
If they ever git to glory, they will shout a hundred sure!

I was once into a love-feast, an' talk of shoutin' — why
It almost shook the windows in the everlastin' sky!
An' the Presbyterian people—they were happy, as a law
An' the Baptists together come along and joined the shoutin' too.

I tell you folks, to hear it is a curious kind o' thing;
It gives a man a heart to pray—a powerful lot to sing
An' if you've never tried it, though there ain't no sin in trying to try
The people's bound to know it if you never say a word.

In this little church at Smithville, there's dear to me, I know
Where the footsteps of the Master in the meek, still, soft, low
As He walks among the people in this little church, if we Only had some old-time shoutin', how much better it would be!

The Baptists and the Methodists—we're all heir in heaven
An' no matter how we travel, by our different creeds entitled,
We'll all get there safe together if we're only one in Christ!

The paths we tread are sometimes rough, and the way is long and drear
"This world is not a friend of grace to help us on in fear"
But the lights of Canaan shinin' over the river's crystal tide,
Seem to woo us to the city that is on the other side!

Then let us sing together, for we're bound to get there so, we
"On the Other Side of Jordan" (will some brother raise the tune?)
"Where the free of life is blooming" "shedding" blossoms over the foam.
"There is rest for all the weary;" an we're going home, home.

AS OTHER WORLDS SEE US.

A Description for Scientific and Imaginative Folks.

Throughout the long night of 354 hours, the side of the moon toward us is lighted by a magnificent reflector of the sun's rays. "Always remaining in one fixed spot in the heavens, while sun and stars go by in regular cycles of 29½ terrestrial days, the earth—as the moon may see it—passes through the phases from first quarter to full and to last quarter, shining at the lunar midnight with a light fourteen times stronger than that of our full moon.

To our satellite, gravitating around us at a distance of 240,000 miles, the earth then appears four times as broad and thirteen times as great in area as the moon appears to us. As daylight spreads over this part of the moon, the earth dwindles away to a thin crescent and finally disappears at the moment of new earth.

Passing to its sister planets, we find the earth has lost its imposing appearance. To Mercury, 87,000,000 miles from the sun, the earth is an external planet, having the light of a first magnitude star, and analogous with Jupiter as seen by us; to Venus, 68,000,000 miles from the sun, our globe exceeds the stars in brilliancy, and has a perceptible diameter, with the moon plainly visible near the disk. To Mars, 145,000,000 miles from the sun, the aspect of the earth is very like that exhibited to us by the beautiful planet Venus; but to the giant Jupiter, 495,000,000 from the sun, our world is only a feeble star, always keeping within 12° of the sun. To Saturn the earth is separated from the sun by 6°, to Uranus by 3°, and to Neptune by but 2°.

"Immersed in a luminous fascicle of solar rays," says M. J. Leotard, "our globe is entirely invisible to these planets of the system to which it belongs. The earth is unknown to those worlds, which are relatively near and are connected, like it, with the destinies of the sun; and the existence upon it of the intelligent race which believes itself to be alone in the universe is unsuspected. To these planets neighboring our own we do not exist.

"Seen from the nearest of the stars, the enormous sun that illuminates us is itself no more than a little point, no more than a minute star, wandering in the infinite labyrinths of the worlds."

SHE KNEW HOW TO FIND HIM.

The Wife of His Bosom Understood What Were His Weaknesses.

"No, ma'am: has he disappeared mysteriously?"

"Naw! he came down town the same as usual this morning, but dinner had been ready an hour, and it's all getting cold, and he isn't back yet."

"You have been to his office, I suppose?"

"No, sir, I haven't. I've no time to fool away looking for him there. Say, is there a sick horse at any of the livery stables?"

"Not that I know of."

"Haven't heard of any."

"Any ten-cent show or target gun in town?"

"All gone, madam."

"Any man in a wagon selling brass jewelry?"

"Guess not."

"No fire anywhere in town?"

"No."

"No pools being sold anywhere on some horse race or trial going on in a justice court?"

"Not any."

"No man selling medicine on the street, no circus bills just pasted up anywhere, no woman walking a tight-rope?"

"No, not one."

"That's it—that's it. I didn't think to ask about time bears. While the potatoes are getting as cold as a stone he is down there making up a purse of 75 cents to see the bear climb a telegraph pole! I'll go down. You watch and see if he isn't up to the house inside of ten minutes."—Ashtabula Record.

TO PRESERVE THE SOFTNESS OF FLANNEL GARMENTS, FOLLOW CAREFULLY THESE DIRECTIONS FOR WASHING.

Dissolve thoroughly in boiling water some IVORY SOAP, shaved fine. Add sufficient warm water to wash the flannels in one by one.

Don't rub any soap on the flannels, but knead them well in the solution.

Don't wring tightly with the hands, use a clothes-wringer. The freer from water you get these garments the softer they will be.

Never wash flannel in water too hot to bear your hand in.

Never rinse them in cold water.

Always use IVORY SOAP, it is the best, much experience has proved this.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

LOTS OF WORK FOR THE QUIDNUNCS.

Gen. Harrison's Home and Its Agricultural Exhibit—The Southern Policy—A Southern Editor Referred to the Record—Money Testimony as to my Support—View of Civil Service Reform—Washington City Wiseacres Putting in Their Time on the Cabinet.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—The president-elect's home has much appearance of an agricultural fair, among the recent presents being any number of pumpkins, beets, squashes and other vegetables, sent in by people who wanted to give something and tried to select such gifts as Gen. Harrison was supposed not to have. The intimation that the general was very fond of pumpkin pies found an answer in a dozen or more presents of this kind, and many large squashes were added to the collection. One enterprising admirer cut the words "Harrison, Morton and Protection" on a green pumpkin, and as it grew in size the letters were also expanded, making the words to appear the work of nature instead of man. This was sent to him a few days ago, and is shown to visitors in the collection of "fruits."

Among the visitors to the general yesterday were J. S. Clarkson, vice chairman, and Col. Swords, sergeant-at-arms, of the national Republican committee, who arrived yesterday morning and were closeted with the president-elect for two hours in the afternoon. The vice chairman was en route home and stopped over for a day or two to confer with the general regarding certain policies to be pursued by the administration. Mr. Clarkson and Harrison have long been friends.

Harrison expresses himself to personal friends as very much gratified over the discussion of the probable attitude of his administration toward the south, and says that the many expressions which he sees on the subject will give him an idea of the wants of the people and enable him to solve the problem involved. This, he says, has been a serious question with him, and the assurances that he has received from that section lead him to believe that the coming four years will develop important changes in the sentiment of the people. He hopes that, by the end of his term the ballot will be as free there as at the north.

The subject of Harrison's civil service policy came up again in a crowd in the Denison lobby yesterday, and Secretary Smith, of the Lincoln league, who nurtured the Harrison presidential boom from its infancy to full vigor, said there was no question what ever but the law would be faithfully carried out, and that all persons appointed by Cleveland would be retained where they had discharged their duty faithfully. Continuing, he said: "I talked with Harrison on several occasions regarding this matter before and after his nomination, and I am convinced he will execute the law faithfully. He believes there are imperfections in the law, but he says it is in the right direction, and should be carried out in practice."

"Generally, he holds that partisanship can not be offensive, but that the man may be if he goes out of his way to insult or mistreat others simply because they do not agree with him in politics. Even then it is not the politics but the man that is offensive, and no such ought to be in office. From my conversation with Harrison I am convinced that he will permit every Democrat who has discharged his duties faithfully, to remain in office till his term of appointment expires, and all employes in the classified service will be continued the same as if they were Republicans. There will be no changes for purely political reasons, though, there will be a howling from Republicans if such are not made."

SHERMAN AHEAD FOR PREMIER.

The Wiseacres Put Him There—Some Other Assignments.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 20.—The Star says: "In cabinet gossip Mr. Dingley is being spoken of with growing frequency for secretary of the navy. The prophets still hold the state department open to Senator Sherman, and it is pretty generally accepted as among the most probable things that John Wanamaker will be postmaster general. If Sherman goes into the cabinet it is said to be likely McKinley would take his place in the senate. It would lie between McKinley and Foster, with the chances favorable to the former. Under this arrangement it is thought that Butterworth would be speaker of the house. The opinion is very often expressed that the speakership will go to either Butterworth or Cannon of Illinois. There is much doubt expressed as to whether McKinley would want the speakership, even if the senate should not be open to him."

The ardor of politicians of both parties in cabinet-making continues unabated. The two northwestern favorites, Senators Spooner and Allison, have upset all calculations by positively declining to allow their names to be used. Senator Spooner, however, desires to see Governor Rusk in the cabinet as secretary of the interior, and Senator Allison will be satisfied if Hon. John S. Clarkson is well taken care of. It is understood that Mr. Clarkson does no care to get into the cabinet, but would like to be public printer, which office he can undoubtedly secure for the asking. Congressmen Thomas and Paysen still continue to be strong favorites for cabinet positions.

A dispatch from Maine says that Milliken, Manley, and others, who have been in close consultation with Mr. Blaine for the past four days, are positive in their statements that Mr. Blaine will and should be secretary of state. Letters received from Senator Allison indicate that with great positiveness that he will not accept a position in the cabinet, and it is now that the only position that his friend Clarkson aspires to is that of public printer. If this is the case Mr. Clarkson will be pretty sure to get there.

The talk of Congressman Thomas, of Illinois, for secretary of the navy continues. One of the oldest observers here said yesterday, in speaking of the matter: "There has never been a member of congress in my knowledge who was as thoroughly posted on navy matters, historical, constructive and practical, as Thomas, and no man now in public life could do for the navy what he would. His appointment would be gratifying to navy people and to congressmen as well."

Fifer's Plurality.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 20.—Returns of the gubernatorial vote have been received by the secretary of state from every county except Cook. The total number of votes cast for Fifer outside of Cook county is 284,867; for Palmer, 265,861. Fifer's plurality exclusive of Cook county, 7,944.

The Indiana Returns.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—The full vote cast at the recent election for Alvin P. Hovey for governor was 305,184, for Court and C. Matson, 260,994; for Jasper B. Hughes, 9,920; for John B. Milroy, 2,702; Hovey's plurality, 2,200. Every county in the state gave some Prohibition votes, Hamilton leading with 406. The increase of the Prohibitionist vote over that of 1886 is 735, and over that of 1884 about 100 per cent. In 1886 the Labor vote in the state was 4,646, the net decrease in the late election being 1,914.

BELMONT AN AMBASSADOR.

The New York Congressman Appointed Minister to Spain.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The World says this morning: "Congressman Perry Belmont has been appointed United States minister to Spain. He sent a letter to the president by last night's mail accepting the position. The place has been vacant for some time. The fact of the appointment has been kept secret, but Mr. Belmont, who was seen last night, admitted it and said he had decided to accept. He will sail for Spain early next month. Mr. Belmont has been chairman of the house foreign affairs committee during the last two congresses, and is well equipped for the position. He was not a candidate for re-election to congress, and would have retired from the house on March 4 next. His appointment was not generally known last evening, but it will be received as a fitting tribute to Mr. Belmont's services to his party."

PERRY BELMONT.

Refers to His Speeches.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—Yesterday morning's Chronicle published a letter from Gen. Harrison to its editor declining at this time to comply with its request to write something upon what is commonly called the southern question. The letter concludes: "What I have said during the campaign is accessible to you. When the appointed time comes I shall not hesitate to express such views as I hold, and shall hold all my views subject to modification upon further consideration."

Senator Sabin and the Cabinet.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Senator Sabin, of Minnesota, who arrived here yesterday, says that he is in the field again for United States senator for all he is worth, and there is no position in the cabinet that he would accept. He has not seen Gen. Harrison since the election, and knows nothing of the report that he had been offered a portfolio under the new administration.

Goff Says He Is Elected.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 20.—Gen. Goff, Republican candidate for governor, telegraphs the state committee that his majority in McDowell county is 174 and in Wyoming 122. Gen. Goff also telegraphs that he is elected governor. This is the first time he has made any claim. He says he will see that the will of the people is carried out.

BIG SOUTHERN BUSINESS CRASH.

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 16.—The biggest business failure ever known in North Carolina occurred here yesterday morning, when the following six firms made assignments: The Bank of Durham, W. T. Blackwell, president, liabilities, $400,000; E. J. Parrish, $100,000; J. W. Blackwell, coal dealer, $110,000; W. F. Ellis, $25,000; Mims & Shaw, $30,000, and Robbins & Stone, $5,000.

"The assets have not yet been announced. It is reported that some will pay in full, but this is only a rumor. The failures are a great surprise."

Disastrous Wreck on the Missouri Pacific.

ELDORADO, Kan., Nov. 16.—A heavily loaded cattle train of twenty-five cars on the Missouri Pacific railroad, went through Walnut river bridge near this city Thursday night. The engine and ten cars were completely wrecked; 100 cattle killed and many crippled. Fireman Kellogg was thrown about fifty feet, but although badly bruised crawled back into the wreck and held up Engineer Spencer's head so he could not drown, for fifty-five minutes before they were rescued. Spencer was caught between the engine and tender and terribly injured. It is thought he cannot recover. The loss to the company will reach $50,000. There were two engines on the train, but the first got safely over.

Frightful Accident to Three Girls.

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio, Nov. 16.—Thursday morning Mamie Tann, Allie Redman, and Emma Nickens started across the river, and while passing over the canal bridge were caught by a rapidly running train of cars on the Cincinnati & Miami Valley road. Mamie Tann suffered the loss of her leg only, but the shock proved fatal. Allie Redman was horribly mangled and died instantly. Her leg was cut off and her body cut in twain. The Nickens girl jumped, alighting upon a stringer of the bridge, where she lay until the train had passed over her. The engine struck the other girls as they were entering from the bridge and a second later would have been in comparative safety.

THE IMMIGRATION QUESTION.

Congressman Ford Talks of a Bill To Be Introduced in Congress.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 19.—Congressman Ford, chairman of the congressional committee which has been investigating the subject of pauper immigration, is now in this city. He states that he will issue a call for the committee to meet in Washington on the Monday or Tuesday before congress convenes. Mr. Ford says that if his views are adopted the bill to be presented to congress by the committee will provide for the appointment of consular inspectors to every foreign land that sends large numbers of immigrants to this country, and these inspectors will be attached to the American consular and ministers' services in the several countries. Those who desire to come to this country shall file applications, giving age, birthplace, occupation, purpose, pedigree, and other important material points, thirty, sixty, or ninety days, as may be decided upon, before taking passage, and during that time the inspectors shall investigate the past lives and records of the applicants, and then act according to the finding. If the candidate is honest, sober and industrious he will receive his passport, and be welcomed to our shores. But if he is found to be a pauper, an idiot, a criminal, or insane; if he is depraved and dissolute, or wants to come over in fulfilment of a contract, he would be rejected.

Mr. Ford uses some very strong language in denouncing the wholesale and indiscriminate unregulated immigration, which has become such a crying evil; and also says that the importation of contract labor to compete with our own workingmen must be stopped. The bill which the committee will introduce will, if passed, put an end to that evil.

LED A DUAL LIFE.

A Buffalo Divorce Case of Peculiar Interest.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 17.—A divorce case of peculiar interest has just been ended in this city. Unusual circumstances in the story are a marriage under a false name and the fact that the husband, the defendant in the action for divorce, led a dual life, ran two establishments, had two wives, two families and kept up the deception for three years. Five years ago John F. Knippel, a horse trainer and driver by profession, married Carrie E. Miller, taking the name of Joseph L. Ransted and giving his residence as Rochester. The bride must have known of the deception, for she had known Knippel for some time, but she offered no objection. Three years went by and two children were born. Knippel was absent a good deal from home, giving as a reason his business as a driver. Two years ago Mrs. Knippel discovered that her husband was living with another woman as his wife, and that they had two children. It was found that Knippel had been living with this woman several years and had been living with her before his marriage to Carrie Miller. Divorce proceedings were begun and ended Saturday in Mrs. Knippel being an absolute granted divorce.

"NOT BY A LONG SHOT."

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 17.—A fashionable wedding in one the churches here Friday morning was broken up in an extraordinary manner. The groom and his best man were on hand betimes and waited for the bridal party to arrive. They were in some way delayed, and the groom began to get impatient as the time ran on. At last when the appointed hour had been considerably overrun he began to swear and berate the intended for her tardiness. During his ravings to his best man the bridal party suddenly arrived, and the young woman overheard her fiance roundly abusing her and swearing outrageously. The bride's face assumed a deathly pallor. She approached the altar and stood motionless until the minister asked if she "Would love, cherish and obey," to which she replied, "Not by a long shot," and majestically marched out of the edifice. The groom was dismayed. The semi-bride would listen to no entreaties from her parents to go on with the wedding and was driven to her home half-married. The groom declared he will stop swearing if the woman will consent to the other half of the marriage ceremony.

An Actor Wants to Buy Oak View.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 17.—Oliver Doud Byron, the play writer and actor, has telegraphed Mr. Schuyler, his business manager, at present in this city, to make inquiries respecting the terms on which Oak View, the president's country place, can be purchased. Mr. Schuyler says he has opened negotiations with Mr. Lamont, but Lamont says he has never heard the president express any intention of selling the place. It was bought for $21,500, but could easily be sold for $100,000 now. Land in the neighborhood has had a big boom. It sold four years ago for $300 to $500 per acre. Now it brings 15 to 25 cents a square foot.

The Teemer-O'Connor Race.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 17.—The approaching Teemer-O'Connor boat race is likely to result in several other contests. George Hosmer said Friday night that if Lee was in earnest about a race he would meet him and sign the articles of agreement. "I will row for any amount named," said Hosmer, "at Boston in the latter part of next May or the early part of June, when my present theatrical engagement will expire." Hamm, Teemer's trainer, also wants to row Lee for $500, the race to take place within three weeks and the Potomac course preferred.

He was lately employed by the Lehigh Valley railway and is charged with forgery in making out and signing false bills of lading.

DEMOCRATIC ENGLISH WOMEN.

The Kitchen and Drawing-room Dancing together at Christmas and Other Festival Times.

English women are in many things more democratic than American women dare to be, particularly in their intercourse with servants and women in a lower social sphere. Perhaps it is because the line of demarcation is more clearly marked there than here, and women dare to be more familiar because they know it will be understood and no advantage taken of it.

For example, at the Christmas ball given to the servants in English country houses it is customary for the family to go down in the servants' hall, and while the father and mother look on the son of the house treads a measure with the pleased and smiling housekeeper, while the daughter not infrequently allows the blushing and grinning coachman to walk through a lanciers with her.

Young women in America have been known to run off with coachmen, but they never dare, even on Christmas Eve, dance the lanciers with them.

The gulf is quite as wide between society women and the shop-girls, but it is not so in London, where a society of aristocratic women give an annual "fete and masque" to the working girls of the English capital.

This society has been in existence for five years, and every season, they exert themselves to give the hard-working women, whose play days are all too few, one evening of unalloyed pleasure.

The last annual ball was more than ever beautiful and enjoyable. The members of the society invited a lot of the titled Americans, the new Duchess of Marlborough and Lady Randolph Churchill among them, and had a gay crowd of fashionable people to mingle with the shop-girls.

CATARRH.

The microscope has proved, that these diseases are contagious, and that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the upper air passages and eustachian tubes. The eminent scientists Tyndall, Huxley and Beale endorse this, and these authorities cannot be disputed. The regular method of treating these diseases is to apply an irritant remedy weekly and even daily, thus keeping the delicate membrane in a constant state of irritation, accompanied by violent sneezing, allowing it no chance to heal, and as a natural consequence of such treatment not one permanent cure has ever been recorded. It is an absolute fact that these diseases cannot be cured by any application made offener than once in two weeks, for the membrane must get a chance to heal before any application is repeated. It is now seven years since Mr. Dixon discovered the parasite in catarrh and formulated his new treatment, and since then his remedy has become a household word in every country where the English language is spoken. Cures effected by him seven years ago are cures still, there having been no return of the disease.

So highly are these remedies valued, and so great is the demand for them, that ignorant imitators have started up everywhere, pretending to destroy a parasite, of which they know nothing, by remedies the results of the application of which they are equally ignorant. Mr. Dixon's remedy is applied only once in two weeks, and from one to three applications effect a permanent cure in the most aggravated cases. N. B.—For catarrhal troubles peculiar to females this remedy is a specific.

Mr. Dixon sends a pamphlet describing his new treatment on the receipt of ten cents in stamps. The address is A. H. Dixon & Son, 303 King street west, Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.

WHIMS IN MILLINERY.

The decided Parisian styles are not popular in this country, even in New York city, the most Parisian city on this continent in its tastes. London fashions are more popular, but they are not followed closely.

New York milliners order bonnets made in Paris to suit their trade here, and many ladies who have been abroad find that in New York city alone can they procure a bonnet which is not extreme in taste, and above all, a bonnet which fits them, an item often overlooked by the Parisian hat maker. More extreme and striking styles are worn in Paris and London than will be tolerated in New York. A few weeks may change the entire complexion of the millinery outlook of to-day.

The dry goods man can dictate to his customers what they shall wear. The milliner cannot, and it is not safe to predict that the first importations of millinery will indicate what the fashions are to be.—Good Housekeeping.

"Age cannot wither it nor custom state its infinite variety." Flesh is hardly heir to an ache or pain which cannot be cured by using Salvation Oil.

Doctors are to guard human life and bring relief to the sick. So does Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup, it contains nothing injurious and is always reliable.

OBITUARY.

Lyman E. Montgomery died at his home in this village on the 15th inst. at the age of 65 years, 6 months and 7 days.

The deceased was born at Lodi, Seneca Co. N. Y. May 8th, 1823. His boyhood was spent on his father's farm and his early manhood was passed in the same vicinity. In the year 1853 he came to Tecumseh for the first time and in 1854 he went with the tide then flowing toward Chicago. Five years were passed at Chicago and at Aurora, Ill. Returning to Tecumseh in March, 1859, he was married in May of the same year to Miss Olive Chatterdon, and a year later he purchased the residence in this village which has since been his home. During his residence here he has been engaged in various business enterprises and has always been regarded as a kind neighbor and an estimable citizen.

His last illness was long and tedious, lasting many months, and he was a model of patience during all those months of suffering. He keenly appreciated every effort of his wife and children to minister to his comfort, and when told that he must go, he only regretted it on account of his family, for he looked forward with joy to the rest which he felt was awaiting him. His mental faculties never failed him, and even to the last day and hour his mind was as bright and clear as ever. He talked freely with his wife and his son and daughter, giving them counsel for their future guidance which they will ever regard as a father's legacy and benediction. The deceased leaves a widow, one son and one daughter to mourn the loss of a kind husband and indulgent father. The funeral services were held last Saturday afternoon at the family residence and were largely attended by his old friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Eliza Lowery died at her home in Raisin, Lenawee Co., Mich., Nov. 6, 1888, after an illness of scarcely three days. Monday night she fell asleep about twelve o'clock, and no one could wake her. She was unconscious till the last, and seemed to just sleep away, not awaking long enough to bid good bye to the dear ones who sat beside her dying form. The deceased was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in January, 1824, and came to Tecumseh with her parents in 185'. On the twelvth day of Jan. 1865, she was united in marriage to Thomas Lowery who is now left to mourn her loss, as she was an affectionate and faithful wife, ever trying to do her part. With her death, the light of her home has gone. She had been a member of the Prebyterian church at Tecumseh for a number of years, and has since lived a christian life. In her death the friends suffer a severe loss but still we feel that our loss is her gain, and while we mourn we try to follow the teaching which so often fell from her lips, "Love your enemies." Yet while our heart is stricken, we would learn to trust where we can not trace; try to emulate the virtues of our departed one, gird on the armor anew which she so nobly wore and labor on cheered by the hope of a blissful reunion in the bright home above. The funeral service was held Thursday at the residence, being conducted by her pastor, Rev. W. H. Babbitt.

A man who has practiced medicine for 40 years, ought to know salt from sugar: read what he says,

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 10, 1887.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co—Gentlemen—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience, have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as Lean Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.

Yours Truly,
L. L. GORSUCH, M. D.
Office, 215 Summit St.

We will give $100 for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured with Hall's Catarrh Cure. Taken internally.

FOR CHILDREN OF ALL AGES.

St. Nicholas for 1889.

PEOPLE who have the idea that St. Nicholas Magazine is only for little children should look over the prospectus of that magazine for 1889, and they will discover that it is for children of all ages, "from five to eighty-five," as some one recently said of it. Indeed, while St. Nicholas is designed for girls and boys, it might almost be called a "family magazine," for the grown-up members of a household will find much to interest them in every number.

The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls the next volume an "all-round-the-world year," because it is to contain so many illustrated papers about the world in general—not dry geographical papers, but stories and sketches and talks of travel and adventure by land and sea—and all illustrated by the best artists. The features will include a serial story, "How We Made the Farthest North," by Gen. A. W. Greely, the well-known commander of the Greely Expedition; a serial about Canada, by Mrs. Catherwood, who is writing a serial story for The Century this year; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton. There are many papers about Europe, including a Christmas story of life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; articles on Holland and the Dutch, by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. Harrison Smith, R. N., with illustrations of many of England's finest war ships; "The Winchester School," illustrated by Joseph Pennell; "English Railway Trains," by Wm. H. Rideing, etc., etc. The French papers include "Ferdinand de Lesseps and his two Ship Canals," and there are several interesting contributions on German, Italian and Russian subjects.

Under "Asia," comes "Boys and Girls in China," by Yan Phou Lee (a recent graduate of Yale); "Home Life in the East," by Mrs. Holman Hunt, and a number of papers about Japan. Under "Africa" there is a sketch of Henry M. Stanley, by Noah Brooks, and several stories about Egypt. Australia is not forgotten, nor the islands of the sea, and there are even to be stories of under the sea.

Of course the bulk of the contents will relate to American subjects, as usual. Mrs. Burnett, the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," contributes a story of New York called "Little Saint Elizabeth," there will be papers describing how the government offices are conducted, papers about athletics, amateur photography, etc. The full prospectus will be sent to any one who wishes to see it by the publishers, The Century Co., of New York.

The Graphic recently said of St. Nicholas, "the family without it is only half-blessed."

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

The time-honored custom of our fathers, a year filled with peace and plenty, the absence of famine and far-reaching pestilence and the unexcelled comfort and prosperity of our people, have all come to us through the mercy and goodness of an allwise and overruling Providence. In recognition of these blessings and in harmony with the sentiments of a thankful people, I do hereby appoint Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of November, A. D. 1888, as a day of general thanksgiving and praise. Upon that day let us remember and be grateful by thought, word and deed that in our own Commonwealth of Michigan we are among the favored of peoples and may our gratitude find expression in praise to Almighty God. Let the happiness that may come in the preservation of health, the sunshine of prosperity, the reunion of friends, or through other channels, be increased to each of us by some generous deed to another more unfortunate than ourselves.

In witness whereof I have hereunto placed my hand and caused to be affixed hereto the great seal of the State this tenth day of November, A. D. One thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

CYRUS G. LUCE.

By the Governor,
G. R. OSMUN,
Secretary of State.

The Ridgeway Library association have made an arrangement with M. P. Brown so that Tecumseh members can leave their orders with him for books, and they will be sent up the first and middle of each month. Mark the number of books wanted on a piece of paper and leave it with Mr. Brown.

C. E. S. Fielden, of the Chicago Daily news, was in town on Monday. He has made arrangements by which the morning edition of the News is received in Tecumseh the same evening in time for distribution before supper. Paul Brown is the local agent here. All orders may be left at Brown's gallery.

Rev. J. D. Fulton. D. D., of New York, after a few days' visit here as the guest of Hon. W. S. Wilcox, left for Toledo this afternoon. The Doctor is one of the foremost clergymen of the Baptist denomination, and besides is proud of calling himself a Lenawee boy. This was his home in boyhood days, and in Tecumseh are his father's and mother's grave.—Times.

The stockholders are requested to attend a meeting of the Tecumseh Library association at the Library room Friday evening, at 7:30. The meeting has been postponed unusually late this season and we hope to have a full attendance, as there are two vacancies on the board to fill and some other business to settle.

The Baptist people will introduce a new feature with their regular monthly meeting to be held Dec. 6th, which they designate a "Roll Call." The meeting will be held in the afternoon and will consist of a program of literary and religious exercises. Every member of the church is expected to answer the roll call.

The Detroit Evening News is the the same old reliable standby as formerly. The News is generally newsy, sometimes spicy, frequently saucy and always readable. Its earnest advocacy of tariff reform has challenged our admiration, although its support of high tariff candidates at election has seemed a little inconsistent. However, the News is always welcome at the Herald sanctum and we couldn't keep house without it.

There is some delightful literature about Indians in the November Wide Awake. The appeal to the children to build the dining room of the Ramona Industrial School at Santa Fe is repeated, and a list of those who contributed last month is published—about one-twentieth of the needed sum is already raised. Then there is a most touching true story by Margaret Owen Foster, entitled "The little captive chief." The incident happened about thirty years ago in Oregon; it shows how completely the Indian nature may be revolutionized by life among civilized people, and also how easily the civilized nature relapses when thrust back into savagery and barbarism.

El Cairns starts to-day for the west.

Miss Lamb went to Romeo Saturday to attend the funeral of a friend. Her place in the school was filled by C. F. Field.

That custard pie from the Lilley House was well placed. The right kind of "pie" is always appreciated in a printing office.

Met Conklin started for Chicago last night and will take in the fat cattle show. He expects to return the first of the week.

About half a hundred of the friends of Frank Bryan gave him a pleasant surprise last Saturday night and enjoyed a pleasant time.

The Open Court, of November 15th, contained a discussion of "The Marriage Problem," by Prof. E. D. Cope, of Philadelphia. The subject, which is now exciting so much attention, is treated by the distinguished author from a practical and scientific standpoint. It will be of unusual interest to the thinking public. Address "The Open court," Chicago.

The Whitney & Currier Co., of Toledo, Ohio, have this week placed on sale at M. P. Brown's art gallery samples of their celebrated Boardman & Gray upright pianos and palace organs. The citizens of this place are cordially invited to call and examine the same. We believe this arrangement will prove to be quite convenient to those who think of purchasing musical instruments.

There is always a Christmas flavor about the Departments of Harper's Magazine for December, but it is impossible to avoid the suspicion this year that the Editor is trying hard to shove his Easy Chair under the mistletoe, for purposes best known to himself. At any rate, he writes most charitably of kissing games and kindred things, and finds a good word for the "society" reporter on the daily newspapers. Mr. Howell's, in the STUDY, is also in a Christmas mood, and discusses Christmas literature amiably. The DRAWER, invariably in merry frame of mind, is merrier than usual. Yet Mr. Warner expresses the hope that the present giving business will not be allowed to grow so large that it will presently have to be organized as a Trust. Then there are many amusing stories, verses and sketches both with pen and pencil. Mention must be made of the capital full-page sketch by DuMaurier, which shows how times change and women change with them.

Talk is cheap, but try it tomorrow evening at Mrs Temple's and see.

H. B. Parker, of Detroit, who is traveling for E. B. Pease & Bro., gave the Herald a call yesterday.

The November number of the Normal News is at hand. It reflects much credit upon both editors and typos.

Strong & McNair have the largest stock of overcoats ever brought to this market. Read their announcement on the 4th page.

A musical social will be held at the residence of Mrs. P. C. Temple by the society of Temple Builders of the Baptist church to morrow evening.

A Washington special in the Free Press of this morning states that Miss L. Loana Stacy has been appointed postmaster at Tecumseh to succeed her father, the late Judge Stacy.

Will Spayde has a very convenient arrangement for the Am. Express business, having fitted up a rear room north of the main store from which there is a door leading into the alley. This saves the trouble and annoyance of carrying bundles and boxes through the store.

We have introduced a new feature in the HERALD, which our farmer patrons will doubtless find of value and interest, a dairy column. We believe the time is approaching when the farmers of this section must pay more attention to butter and cheese making, both individually and by creameries. The information which we shall give on these points will be found practical and useful.

W. Alexander Heath, the poet orator of Chatauqua Co., N. Y., will deliver his famous poem oration in the M. E. church next Monday evening. The speech is full of good points and apt illustrations and pleases everyone with its poetical rythm. Come and get a treat. Mr. Heath is fitting himself for the university and a collection will be taken.

Mr. Al H. Ford has accepted a position in the Bay City Buggy Works and started for there last Monday. Mr. Ford has had charge of Beach & Sons' shop for the past six months and given perfect satisfaction to the firm and their customers. He is a gentleman of good character, a fine workman, strictly sober, industrious and reliable, and is highly esteemed by all who know him. We wish him success and would gladly welcome him back to our village.—Linden Observer.

We are in receipt of a complete Business Atlas of the World, issued by the well known Map Publishing House of Rand, McNally and Co., Chicago. While the name of this firm is sufficient guarantee of the superior qualities of such a publication, a careful examination of the work reveals from page to page a completeness and accuracy of compilation which must have taken years of untiring labor and the expenditure of a vast amount of money to procure; and it is surprising to us how such a book can be sold at so moderate a price. Beginning with a profuse index of every subject in the book, we next find an alphabetically arranged list of every railway in the United States, its location, and the name of the express company doing business over it, followed by a large scale county map of the canadas, each State and Territory in United States, Mexico and the World—92 in all. Accompanying each map is the name of the counties, their area and population, rivers, creeks, mountains and lakes separately, and an alphabetically arranged list of every railway station, post office, town and hamlet in the state or province, showing what county it is in, its population, how it can be reached by rail, express, telegraph or mail, and its location on the map, shown by their ready-reference index.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA AS I FOUND IT.

We left Indiana the 22d. of December last and arrived here on the 29th, after a very delightful trip. When we left Indiana the weather was very cold, the ground frozen and the roads very rough. When we arrived here we found quite a contrast. The grass had commenced growing, and the country began to look green; garden vegetables of all kinds were growing; orange and lemon trees were loaded with fruit. A great many cultivated flowers were in bloom out of doors, and they continued to grow and bloom all the winter. Vegetables fresh from the gardens were on the market, and we had them fresh every day the year around. We have the beautiful fall and spring weather of the east all winter; but very little frost; vegetation was injured but very little. Tomatoes, except in localities where frosts injure them, live and bare fruit for several years. I saw some vines two years old with blossoms and fruit set. Geraniums, Cally Lilies, Pansies, Pinks, Roses, Phlox and a great many other tender flowers bloom out of doors all the winter—this to us, was a great contrast to the winters east.

In the spring the country looked beautiful in its luxurious carpet of green, interspersed with its myriads of beautiful wild flowers, the Apricot, Almond, Peach and other varieties of fruit in full bloom. Flowers bloom for a long season and then die down and take a season of rest, then bloom again; this they do three or four times a year, but not all varieties at the same time, so that we have an abundance of flowers all the time.

Talk about the beauties of Florida, The most exaggerated accounts I have read about her does not begin to reach the realities of the beauties and advantages we have seen here. The beauty of the climate and seasons exist here the year around, and none of the epidemics and plagues that exist there. We had some frosts and thin ice formed several times last winter, but no damage was done to fruit and vegetation of any account; this is attributed to the ocean, though further back from the coast in some of the valleys, they have more frosts. Last winter we could look away to the north-east and see the snow capped mountains, yet never a flake of snow here. People who have lived here for several years say that last winter was the coldest they had experienced, yet it was delightful to us; our winter clothing was comfortable and we required plenty of bed clothing, but generally the days were bright and warm. Nearly all of the tropical and semi tropical fruits are grown to perfection in various localities of the county where the proper soils and conditions are found or provided. The production of fruits and vegetables are wonderful and astonishing, and if I should give the size and weight of some I have seen, you would hardly want to believe me.

In future letters I will give further discriptions of the country, its products, its capabilities and its future prospects. This is a great country, and it will require a great deal of writing to give anything like a correct discription of it. I shall write in the interest of no man, or real estate interest, but give you a correct account as I have seen it and learned of it.

TO OUR READERS.

We can not too strongly urge upon our readers the necessity of subscribing for a family weekly newspaper of the first class—such for instance, as The Independent, of New York. Were we obliged to select one publication for steady and careful reading to the exclusion of all others, we should choose unhesitatingly the Independent. It is a newspaper, magazine and review, all in one. It is a religious, a literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial and a political paper combined. It has 32 folio pages and 21 departments. No matter what a person's religion, politics or profession may be, no matter what the age, sex, condition or employment may be, The Independent will prove an instructor, a help, an educator. Our readers can do no less than to send a postal card for a free sample copy, or for thirty cents the paper will be sent one month enabling one to judge of its merits more critically. Its yearly subscription is $3.00, or two years for $5.00.

Address The Independent, 251 Broadway, New York City.

A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Yesterday, while Levi O. Salsbury who lives on College Avenue, was driving down State street, intending to continue his journey down Broad, and while just in front of the M. P. church, his horse took a sudden notion to go home and made a rapid spurt down Church street in that direction. Mr. Salsbury didn't propose to have it that way, so he gathered up the slack of his lines pulling his animal around in the direction he wished him to go. But in the doubletwist accompanying this movement the buggy lost its balance and went over into the ditch in front of Mr. M. E. Chittenden's residence.

In the carriage with him was Mrs. John B. Allen, of Devils Lake, who is a sister of Mrs. Salsbury, and Mr. Lester H. Salsbury. Mrs. Allen was thrown out and so badly shaken up that it was impossible for her to walk, and she was taken into Mr. Chittenden's house, and afterward removed to Mr. L. H. Salsbury's residence on Toledo street, where she is now resting comfortably. No bones were broken, luckily, but it will be some time before she fully gets over the effects of the shock.

Mr. Salsbury was also somewhat bruised but managed to get control of his horse and led him home with the buggy somewhat demoralized.—Adrian Times of Monday.

Van Dorff's Record.

The Engineer of the Rochester Lantern Works

UNDER ARREST FOR INCENDIARISM.

Some Curious Coincidences That Caused Suspicion to Look His Way—Fires Seem to Be Frequent Where He Is Employed—Some Incriminating Instances—Another Heap of Dead Discovered with Four Crushed Bodies in It.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 15.—A startling sensation in connection with the recent fire [illegible] Chief Hayden, of the Rochester Lantern Works, John Van Dorff, [illegible] Rochester eight years ago. [illegible] Pennsylvania. The attention of the [illegible] when he was a fireman on the Buffalo, New York & Philadelphia railroad. Several freight cars were burned and he was suspected in [illegible]. The absence of positive proof [illegible] Rochester he worked as stationary engineer in different parts of the city, and during that time the building twice caught fire but the flames were extinguished with pails of water. The third time the place took fire it burned down, and it was discovered that the pails and buckets had disappeared having been thrown into the [illegible]. Vankorff was suspected, but again there was an absence of proof. Before this he had been employed as engineer at the Morse Sash and Blind factory. That place was burned twice while he was employed here.

There are several other similar cases which look suspicious. L. M. Gould's grocery on West avenue took fire at one time, and Van Dorff was not only the first man to discover it, but he showed Gould where it started and removed a bale of cotton waste with which the fire had been started. This was saturated with oil, and had evidently been taken from a car. At another time Vankorff was taken to the city hospital, having fallen in a fit, and sustained a cut in the head. While at the hospital complaints came to the police of the disappearance of sundry articles. Chief Hayden asked, if Vankorff was still at the hospital, and being answered in the affirmative said "If you don't look out you will have a fire in the building." A few days after fire was discovered at the hospital in a barrel of rubbish or old clothing in a clothes press. Vankorff was then discharged from the hospital. He was arrested some years ago on a charge of stealing a watch, but although the fact was proven and he was convicted, he was let off on account of his family. There are other charges against him.

When, therefore, Chief Hayden learned that Vankorff had been the engineer of the Lantern Works, the latter was placed under surveillance, and watched closely since Saturday. He is now under arrest on suspicion of having started the fire which resulted in such great loss of life and property. When charged with the crime he denied any knowledge of the origin of the fire. He has for years shown signs of mental derangement. In the opinion of the police he has a mania for setting fire to places, discovering the fire and then taking credit for his vigilance and activity.

The disaster is the worst ever known in this part of the country. Day after day bodies are exhumed from the ruins, and the search is pushed with energy.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning two coughing gutters were seen projecting above a heap of rubbish at the foot of the stairway near the elevator well. After the removal of the surrounding debris it was found that another heap of bodies lay beneath, and the work of extricating them was at once begun. Some of the bodies, which had attracted attention, were partly consumed, while the other contained a portion of a boy's foot. The men had evidently attempted to escape through the stairway, and were overcome by the smoke or enveloped in flames. They seem to have suffered more from the effects of the flames than the others.

When the corpses were at last laid bare they presented a horrible sight. While some that had been at the bottom of the heap were in a comparatively good state of preservation the limbs of all were crushed out of shape, and two of the bodies were locked in a fast embrace so closely that they could not be separated. In all nine bodies were taken from this quarter of the ruins, making nineteen exhumed since 8 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. They were placed in boxes and taken to the undertaking rooms.

Removals of Postmasters, Increase of Offices and Other Information.

During the year 1,045 offices were discontinued. There were 321 more offices established and 140 more offices discontinued during the year than during the previous year. MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Harbor Springs has no depot, the old one being reduced to a heap of ashes by an election-day fire. Some money and freight were also burned.

The Muskegon Boom company has handled 250,000 logs this season, and are still at it.

A wealthy farmer named Oliver, living at Jackson, became so excited over the election that he died from heart disease.

A Kalamazoo man kicks because the ladies wear such high hats at churches. Why, he's the only man who attends church in that city, or at the rest of them don't care about seeing the preacher, isn't stated.

A vigorous witness on the stand the other day at Grand Rapids, was asked if he knew the nature of an oath. The answer came quick as a flash—"You bet I do, for I lost a heap of money betting on the election."

The thrashing of election day seems to [illegible] thoroughly in fact for some people's comfort.

Archie Polan, the man charged with crime of a assault upon Mrs. Frank Marvin, of Battle Creek, was taken from the sheriff's custody by twenty-five masked men and hung to the limb of a tree.

Cromwell merchants have formed a protective association, and hereafter the man who gets a reputation for not paying his bills will get no goods on trust.

Battle Creek colored people have a skating rink all their own, and they make the fellows hum, too.

The boarders at the different penal institutions of the state are steadily decreasing, which we hope may prove to be a healthy moral sign.

A tramp is often commended as being a "safe business," but Henry Goetz, a Houghton farmer, fell from a load of hay on election day, breaking his neck. He leaves a large family.

The ups and downs of life were finely illustrated at Milwaukee the other day, when a $10,000 note, drawn by Monroe, Benjamin & Co., at one time the great Gogebic iron kings, was sold for $5.0.

A steam tricycle is the invention of a Sturgis man. He'll wager a new silk tile that he's a man who likes to get along easily.

Some three or four months ago, John Hallton, a respected citizen of Farmington, was seriously injured by the fall of a barn door. It soon became evident that recovery was doubtful, but he expressed an intense desire to live until election day. His strong hope seemed to keep him up, and when the day came he was carried to the polls, deposited a Cleveland ballot and died soon after reaching home.

A couple of Coopersville curs worried the life out of eighteen sheep in one night and were still at their dogged work when daylight came and a shotgun cut short their sheep-killing career.

The Battle Creek sanitarium has recently graduated a baker's dozen of nurses—eleven of the batch being ladies.

A Herton's Bay man cut 45,250 shingles in a day of eight and one-half hours with a Perkins hand machine, and would like to get on the man who can "beat the record."

Four years ago a Battle Creek man lost 150 acres of land on an election bet, but this year got the same tract back again and quite a bit of booth besides. All of which inclines us to the belief that betting is mighty uncertain business.

Along in September a certain Saginaw county farmer prayed earnestly for rain so as to enable him to plow for wheat. Now he is peppered as its rained so much that he can only get over the ground with a skiff.

Patrick Daley, a Marquette man, was so anxious to die that he stabbed himself twenty-two times in the region of the heart before he accomplished his purpose. He was suffering from delirium tremens.

Marquette people are enjoying cheaper gas and don't have to strike for it either. Ad corporations aren't altogether soulless, after all.

A Frankfort man drove his team to Manistee, a distance of 25 miles, in less than three hours, and anybody acquainted with the roads of that region knows that it's fast time.

A Lapeer man went over to Saginaw for a "little time," swapped his tin for benzine and crawled into an empty dry goods box for a snooze at night. But the police discovered his place of hiding, and now he's doing ninety days at the Detroit house of correction.

R. A. Loveland, a Saginaw lumberman, has recently purchased a tract of Canadian soil upon which 200,000,000 of pine is now standing. Some of it will succumb to the woodman's ax the coming winter.

Nelson Tuttle, an Iowa county boy of 8 summers, whiles away his time on a farm, and husked about 800 bushels of corn the present fall, besides doing other little "chores." The era of a useful old age hasn't entirely passed away.

The State Millers' association has decided that the interests of its members would be best subserved by the appointment of a state flour and wheat inspector, and the next legislature will be asked to provide for such an official.

The somewhat celebrated case of J. H. Chandler vs. the Calumet and Hecla Mining company, in which the plaintiff sought to obtain an interest in mineral lands held by the defendant, was decided adversely to Chandler by Judge Severens in the United States district court at Marquette. The case now goes to the court of last resort.

Jean Alton and Frances Stewart, Bridgeport farmers, quarrelled over the division of crops in which they were mutually interested, resulting in Stewart shooting Alton in the brain. Stewart now boards with the sheriff.

The recount of the votes in the Tenth congressional district gives Wheeler, the Democratic candidate, a majority of 115. Michigan congressional for the Fifty-first Congress will therefore stand nine Republicans and two Democrats.

Simeon Ross, well known lumberman at Muskegon, [illegible] Washington, and will soon be in the [illegible] of cutting [illegible] feet of logs in that state.

The Canadian government has recently placed in operation a [illegible] which will most please the manufacturers of the Saginaw valley. It is hoped that the move will effectually check the further importation of Canadian pine to American soil.

Trustees made a bonfire of $[illegible] worth of [illegible] from the jewelry store of J. A. Smith, at Dowagiac, the other evening, while the target for was at supper.

Edward Kessler, the Alpena man who criminally assaulted a 10-years old girl, has been given the sentence of Judge Arnold, Russell's [illegible] years.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisons which are the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer says the back aches, the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet," but they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound, it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

THE PREMIER OF THE WAR.

A Statue to William H. Seward Unveiled at Auburn, N. Y.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 16.—The ceremony of unveiling the Seward statue took place yesterday in the presence of a large concourse of people, including many distinguished guests from out of town. The W. H. Seward Republican club, of New York, came in a body. The public [illegible] for the day, and local military and civic organizations attended in a body. The weather was unpropitious, and the outdoor exercises, with the exception of the simple act of unveiling, were adjourned to the Opera house. A commodious platform erected for the occasion accommodated a dense throng, and at times the whole vicinity of the park where the statue stands was black [illegible] of umbrellas and people. Ex-Mayor Wheeler called the assemblage to order, and precisely at 11:35 little Fannie Seward, daughter of Gen. Seward and granddaughter of the statesman, unveiled the statue. A flag waved from a neighboring housetop was the signal for the firing of a salute of artillery and the ringing of the chimes of St. Peter's. The adjournment of the exercises was then announced, and the crowd dispersed to many of the distinguished guests driving to Fort Hill to view Seward's tomb.

SEWARD MONUMENT.

HE LEFT NO WILL.

Dr. Hostetter, the Bitters Man, Said to Have Died Intestate.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—A Tribune special from Pittsburg, says it has just been ascertained why Dr. Hostetter left no will. It seems that the millionaire had made a will, one of the bequests provided for being a fund for a fine art gallery and mechanics' hall, to be given to the city of Pittsburg, to cost $[illegible]. A few weeks ago the city controller [illegible] a suit against the executors of Dr. Hostetter's estate, which [illegible] that he destroyed the will. It appears that Dr. Hostetter was foreman for a [illegible] against whom a judgment in favor of the city had been rendered. On this judgment the city controller had an execution issued on some of the doctor's property. The doctor felt that undue haste was used, as he was good for the amount and would have paid it without the necessity of an execution. The controller's action so angered the doctor that he sent to the safe deposit company where he had deposited the will and tore it into shreds, and up to the time of his death he could not be induced to make another.

DAVID HOSTETTER.

JO CHAMBERLAIN'S BRIDE.

The Distinguished Briton and Mary Endicott Quietly Wedded.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 16.—Quietly and simply in the presence of the bride's relatives and personal friends, a few of the members of Washington's official society, and several hundred of the general public, the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and Miss Mary Endicott were married at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. John's Episcopal church.

The president and Mrs. Cleveland entered the church just before 2 o'clock, and were conducted to seats in one of the pews in the first row. Members of the Endicott family and relatives were seated immediately in the rear, while as many of the public as could find room in the little church filled the gallery and hallways.

Mr. Chamberlain entered the church at 2 o'clock and waited at the chancel. His appearance was the signal to the organist, who instantly began to play the wedding march from "Lohengrin," and the bride, leaning on her father's arm, attired in a neat gray traveling dress and wearing a large bonnet, passed up the right aisle, and, joining the bridegroom, knelt before the altar. The Rev. Dr. Leonard, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Franks of Salem, Mass., performed the Episcopal wedding service. Both bride and groom gave the responses in a firm and audible voice, prayer was pronounced, and Joseph Chamberlain and Mary Endicott were man and wife.

The wedding presents were numerous and costly, among them being some beautiful jewelry in diamonds and sapphires, the gifts of the groom and others.

FOUND DEAD BY THE WAYSIDE.

Mysterious Death of a Young Woman in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—What promises to be a terrible murder was the discovery at a late hour Saturday night of the bleeding form of a young and handsome girl lying on Grand Boulevard, near Forty-third street. The girl was insensible and was bleeding profusely from a dreadful wound in the back of her head. [illegible] the physicians found that she had been [illegible] in the time of the assault, about to have been struck with a heavy instrument. Every effort was made to restore consciousness without avail, and the girl died an hour after reaching the hospital. She was neatly dressed and [illegible] was a [illegible] of persons either at or in the vicinity of the place at the time of the murder, but failed to recognize [illegible]

LATER.—The identity of the young woman has been discovered. Her name was Eva Magnuson, her former residence Wisconsin, and she lived with her brother, Oliver Magnuson, a south side street car conductor. A flagman at the Forty-third street crossing says he never got into a buggy with a man but he knew another man was [illegible] and a young man named [illegible] was a frequent visitor at Eva's residence, but there is [illegible] to suspicion against him.

Ed McDonald Breathes Free Air.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Edward S. McDonald, the alleged county boodler, who had been in jail just seventy-three weeks, was released on $[illegible] bond, pending a new trial, at a late hour Saturday afternoon, in accordance with the decision of the supreme court of Illinois, reversing the judgment of the Cook county criminal court, which sentenced McDonald to a term in the penitentiary.

Massachusetts Feels an Earthquake.

MILFORD, Mass., Nov. 19.—Residents in Milford and vicinity felt a slight but continuous earthquake Saturday morning, lasting from two to four minutes. Dwellings were slightly shaken.

GRANULATING BUTTER—WHY THEY FAIL.

The chief cause, I think, why many who attempt the granulation of butter by washing, and make a "mess" of it, is not using water enough to float the butter. The wise butter maker uses only some form of the revolving churn, and never tries to churn with quite half a churn full. Get a churn a half larger than the cream seems to demand, and then when the cream breaks, there is room enough for it to be granulated. The chief cause of failure, and wherein comes the complaint of escaping butter, the need of sieves and strainers to catch the golden grains, is in an attempt to draw off the buttermilk first. This should not be attempted. When the butter is in fine grains in the churn, and the buttermilk shows plain, two gallons of cold water at least, in which a hand full of salt has been dissolved, should be turned into the churn, the cover replaced and the mass gently revolved three or four times to mix the contents. If the churn is now stopped for two or three minutes, the water will have so diluted the viscosity of the cheesy portion of the mass, that the butter globules readily find the surface. The action of the salt has added to the gravity of the cheese in the fluid, and it falls below and the butter shows a clear line of separation, although it will contain a large percent of fluid in its interstices. The fluid can now be readily drawn from beneath the butter. In trying to draw it too closely, there will be a current strong enough to carry out some of the lower globules with it, but if stopped at the right time, there will be no escape and a sieve will not be needed. At the next washing there will be yet more marked separation, and as salt is cheap I find that it pays to use a little in each washing water, and soon the butter will be cleanly in look, each little globule firm, and when it is ready to salt, the salt can be mixed with it as readily as with sand. The salt should be always worked in to the butter when in its granular stage by slowly turning the churn, and before any attempt is made to get it into a compact mass. By keeping this in mind, no one need have any trouble in granulating and uniformly salting butter.

DON'T FORGET.

That winter will soon be here, and the summer cracks on the cow shed will need a new suit of battens.

—That it is much easier to let cows shrink in their milk than to persuade them to swell.

—That good blood is the foundation of profitable cow-keeping and good care must a ways go with it.

—That if a cow just pays for her feed in milk and butter, she is kept at a loss.

—That this loss is greater with every succeeding year.

—That the business of dairying always pays; when it don't pay, it isn't business.

—That you can point that calf cowwards or steer wards.

—That if you have the beef idea of a cow, you had better grow your cows from boy calves.

—That you forgot last fall to provide plenty of bedding for your cows.

—That in consequence, the milk had a "cowy" odor.

—That you attributed it to some kind of weed in the hay.

—That your wife said at those times that the strainer was full of [illegible].

—That your neighbor has built a silo, and it is your duty to watch and see how it works.

—That when you go to see him you must leave your prejudices at home.

—That you had better put such prejudices with your worn out clothes and never wear them again.

—That you had better take your wife with you; she may possibly see some things that you can't.

—That a pound of fine butter is worth 30 cents and a pound of "store" butter 15 cents.

—That the difference in price is a matter of dairy knowledge.

—That you can get this knowledge by reading and thinking.

—That you gave a cow doctor $2.50 for attending your sick cow.

—That that cow died.

—That in a dairy paper, the week before your cow died, was published a remedy for the disease she died of.

—That if you had been a reader of a dairy paper you would have been better off by one cow plus $2.50 = $1.

—That you won't benefit me any by following this advice, as it is to my interest—as we are both selling butter—that you should keep scrub stock, make scrub butter and sell it at a scrub price.

—That "charity begins at home," but if you had rather help me than yourself and family, why, I can't object. Don't forget that.

A GREAT MAGAZINE.

The Century for 1889.

THE question has often been asked, "to what does The Century owe its great circulation?" The Christian Union once answered this by the statement that "it has been fairly won, not by advertising schemes, but by the excellence which characterizes it in every department." In their announcements for the coming year the publishers state that it has always been their desire to make The Century the one indispensable periodical of its class, so that whatever other publication might be desirable in the family, The Century could not be neglected by those who wish to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to culture. And the unprecedented circulation of the magazine would seem to be the response of the public to this intention.

With the November number The Century begins its thirty-seventh volume. Two great features of the magazine which are to continue throughout the new volume are already well known to the public, the Lincoln history and the papers on "Siberia and the Exile System." The first of these, written by Messrs. Nicolay and Hay, President Lincoln's private secretaries, contains the inside history of the dark days of the war, as seen from the White House.

THE SIBERIAN PAPERS,

by George Kennan, are attracting the attention of the civilized world. The Chicago Tribune says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." As is already known, copies of The Century entering Russia have these articles torn out by the customs officials on the frontier.

DURING 1889

The Century will publish the most important art feature that has yet found place in its pages. It is the result of four years' work of Mr. Timothy Cole, the leading magazine engraver of the world, in the galleries of Europe, engraving from the originals the greatest pictures by the old masters. A series of papers on Ireland, its customs, landscapes, etc., will appear, and there are to be illustrated articles on Bible scenes, treating especially the subjects of the International Sunday-School Lessons. George W. Cable will write "Strange, True Stories of Louisiana." There will be novelettes and short stories by leading writers, occasional articles on war subjects (supplemental to the famous "War Papers" by General Grant and others, which have been appearing in The Century), etc., etc.

The Century costs four dollars a year, and it is published by The Century Co., of New York, who will send a copy of the full prospectus to any one on request.

Saturday evening a committee of kids, boys and men marched to the depot to meet the train. It had been reported that a young man was expected who would depart with one of our fair daughters in a few days as his own. But, alas, the train came and departed and nothing unusual took place, and the committee departed to their homes. Next morning the young man was seen on the street wearing a peaceful smile, but the band of sentipels was nowhere to be seen.

EDEN MUSEE.

The questions have frequently been asked: "What is the Eden Musee" and "Where is it?" Now, for the benefit of our readers we have investigated the matter and find that it is situated on Wabash avenue, near Jackson street, in Chicago, and that it is a large and commodious four-story and basement building, handsome in architecture, elegant in arrangement, and magnificent in decoration and embelishments. It is completely filled with the most wonderful and natural-like wax people extant. These are so arranged and grouped together as to make a series of the grandest tableaux conceivable to mankind. Each group is surrounded by sumptuous scenic effects, costumed historically correct, and supplied with the most minute accessories. The building is divided into grand halls, such as the Historical Hall, Scientific and Literary Hall, Hall of Sovereigns, Stereoscopic Hall, Chamber of Horrors, etc.

In these several halls are placed such groups as are appropriate thereto. As a sample of the historical may be taken Lee's surrender to Grant: of the scientific, Stanley on the Congo; of the literary, an informal reception at Sara Bernhardt's studio. In the Hall of sovereigns are the rulers and royal families of the world. The Stereoscopic Hall is the largest and finest in America, containing 1,920 perfectly illuminated views. The Chamber of Horrors is impressively grand. "The History of a crime," which is there situated, being a most ennobling lession. The Eden Musee also contains one of the richest decorated and prettiest Concert Halls in this country, wherein you may listen to Mr. Paul Olah's popular and well-rounded Hungarian Gypsy Orchestra, and wherein you may, while you so listen, partake of such refreshments as a strictly moral entertainment should furnish.

The best on earth can truly be said of Grigg's Glycerine Salve, which is a sure, safe and speedy cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds and all other sores. Will positively cure piles, tetter and all skin eruptions. Try this wonder healer. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Only 25 cents. Sold by Dr. Geo. Fergusson's.

The terrible accident by which Robert Orr, of East Milan, so suddenly met his death was a great shock to his friends about here. He leaves a large family not very well provided for, it is feared.

Mr. James Underwood's home has been like a hospital during the three months last past. First, their son John was a sick boy with typhoid, and in the constant care of the mother, she was brought down with rather a complicated course of sickness, and upon her recovery three of the younger of their family, Frankie, Bertha and Benice, all taken down with typhoid fever, running along together, all of which has required patient and faithful care, but we are glad to know that at this writing everything is quite encouraging for restored health to all. Mr. and Mrs. Underwood wishes to express their thanks to those friends and neighbors who have been so faithful in lending a helpful hand, by coming into their home and sitting and watching and caring through the long nights, for their sick: also, the good name already won by Dr. Swarthout in his treatment of the sick, is not to be forgotten. Again one day last week their family were surprised, when eighteen or twenty neighbors entered their cornfield and husked out over two hundred bushels of corn. For such kindness rendered, they do return their most hearty thanks.

THE UNSEEN POWER.

The Grand Rapids Leader said last night: "Hon. A. B. Turner of the Eagle who is a prominent candidate for government printer, is an old social chum of President-elect Harrison, and for many years the two have been warm personal friends and political bed fellows. Mr. Turner's chances for the head of the government print shop are therefore, not at all slim. In case he receives the deserved recognition at the hands of the President it is well understood in Grand Rapids, and other parts of Michigan, that Mr. Frank Godfrey, managing partner in the present State printing firm, will become the power behind the throne, Mr. Godfrey being a son-in-law of Mr. Turner. This may be possibly explain Mr. Godfrey's anxiety to swap off his State printing contract."

THE JOURNAL is informed that in the event of Mr. Turner's appointment as Public Printer he will invite Mr. Godfrey to accept a responsible position under him. The genial manager of the State printing office is one of the most artistic printers in the country and he has the necessary experience and ability to qualify him for the highly important position of of active manager of the government printing establishment at Washington. He is a good deal of a hustler, and if he should be called to the national capital he will be pretty certain to give things a pretty lively shaking up in the big print shop. He is nothing if not original and energetic.—Lansing Journal.

ISRAEL UNDER JUDGES.

LESSON IX, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, DEC. 2.

Text of the Lesson, Judges ii, 11-23. Commit Verses—Golden Text, Heb. iii, 12—Commentary by Rev. B. M. Stearns.

In studying the history of Israel it is necessary to keep in mind that the Lord God had chosen them to be a special people unto Himself, above all people upon the face of the earth, an holy people unto the Lord their God, that He might dwell among them, and that they might magnify His name before the nations. He only asked of them a cheerful and whole hearted obedience and submission, promising on His part that they should be made to enjoy the greatest possible temporal prosperity and be the head of all nations, no one being able to stand before them. (Ex. xix, 5, 6; Deut. vii, 6; xxviii, 1-14.) Their history during the forty years that Moses led them is found in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. We have just been studying their history under the leadership of Joshua, as recorded in the book of Joshua and now we come to their history under the Judges for about 450 years, as recorded in this book.

11. "The children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord, and served Baalim." At least seven times do we find this statement concerning their doing evil in this book iii, 11; iii, 7, 12; iv, 1; vi, 1; x, 6; xiii, 1; and a reason is given in the preceding verse, that a generation had arisen which knew not the Lord, nor yet the works which He had done for Israel.

12. "They forsook the Lord God of their fathers." Some of Joshua's parting words were: "If ye forsake the Lord and serve strange gods, then will he turn and do you hurt and consume you" (Josh. xxiv, 20). If these words are now forgotten or unheeded, and worse still, the Lord who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and made them a nation and gave them this good land, is forgotten and forsaken.

13. "They forsook the Lord, and served Baal and Ashtaroth." These were the male and female divinities of the nations before mentioned, and their worship was associated with the most cruel and also the most impure practices, the very extreme opposite of that required by the pure and holy and loving God of Israel.

14. "The anger of the Lord was hot against Israel." In the account of this sin written in Ps. cvi, 34-43, it is said the "wrath of the Lord kindled against His people, insomuch that He abhorred His own inheritance, and He gave them into the hand of the heathen." In Jer. xii, 7, concerning a later sin it is written: "I have given the dearly beloved of my soul into the hand of her enemies." It was because of His great love for them that He thus chastened them for their sins, as it is written: "You only have I known of all the families of the earth: therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities." Amos iii, 2.

15. "The hand of the Lord was against them for evil, . . . and they were greatly distressed." The way of the transgressor is hard (Prov. xiii, 15), but they were the redeemed of the Lord and His hand was upon them for evil only to make them see the evil of their ways and turn from it, that He might do them good.

16. "Nevertheless, the Lord raised up judges which delivered them." Nevertheless, He regarded their affliction when He heard their cry; and He remembered for them His covenant (Ps. cvi, 44-45). Do not our hearts say: "O, foolish people, why grieve and turn away from such love? why not abide in such a friend; why not constantly rejoice in such power?" Then a voice whispers: "Thou art the man, Israel's sin is just mine own, and the same God of Israel regards today the cry of the oft erring, oft repenting one, and delivers those who call upon Him, such as call upon Him in truth. Why not abide ever in His love?"

17. "Turned quickly out of the way." Although He heard their cry and raised them up judges who delivered them, they soon fell away into sin as bad as ever, and would not hearken to the judges; their hearts seemed fully set in them to do evil. Love seemed lost upon them, and past warnings seemed utterly in vain, they were filled with sin, and it appeared to be useless to do any thing for them; yet He loved them and for His names sake forgave them and restored them many a time.

18. "The Lord was with the judge." If it were a question of gaining or doing anything. The Lord was with Moses, and Joshua, and David, and the kings who did right in His sight, and the prophets who spoke in His name. And the same Lord says to us today: "Lo, I am with you always."

"It repented the Lord." This expression, often used in reference to God, and first found in Gen. vi, 6, refers to God's visible procedure as it appears to us. That God should change His mind, or His purpose, or be sorry for anything he does, is simply impossible.

20. "The anger of the Lord." We had the same expression in verse 14, and it is found again in this book in chapters iii, 8; x, 7. It is difficult for us to think of anger without sin, although we are told in one place to be angry and sin not (Eph. iv, 26); however difficult that may be for us, we cannot think of any sin in connection with the Lord's anger or wrath, for He is of purer eyes than to behold evil and cannot look upon iniquity. (Heb. i, 13.) A righteous indignation against base ingratitude and rebellion and slighted love will in some measure describe the anger or wrath of the Lord; but there is much in it that is indescribable, and only the great day of His wrath when it is come (Rev. vi, 16, 17) will fully show what it means; may we all be hid in that day. (Zeph. ii, 3; Isa. xxvi, 20, 21.)

21-23. "That I may prove Israel." Because they transgressed His covenant and would not hearken to His voice, therefore the idolatrous nations were left or suffered margin of v. 23) in the land to prove Israel (chap. iii, 1, 4). Thus the wilderness journeyings were to prove them, to know whether they would love Him with all the heart or not (Deut. viii, 2, 16; xiii, 3); thus He tempted or tried or proved Abraham in the matter of Isaac (Gen. xxii, 1), and thus also He tried or proved Hezekiah in the matter of the ambassadors from Babylon (2 Chr. xxxii, 31). An oft repeated lesson of Scripture is, that God wants a tried people who will love and serve Him with all the heart, walking with Him as Enoch did, and following Him fully like Joshua and Caleb; strong in faith, rejoicing to do His will, meditating upon His word day and night, and separate from the idolatrous world. As Israel was chosen to make God a name, so believers today, called out of the world to form the church, which is the body of Christ, are to bear constantly the name of Him who called them to Himself (Acts ix, 15, 16, and for His name's sake (III John 7, R. V.), "for the sake of the name"), go forth as His witnesses. The ordinary Christian life is much the same as the history of Israel in the book of Judges, just a constant disobeying, then weeping and repenting, then forgiveness and rest and joy, soon followed by more disobedience and the same circle over and over again. The remedy is to cease from self, lay aside every weight and the sins which do easily beset us, not try to, but simply do a good run with patience, looking unto Jesus. (Heb. xii, 1, 2.) There is no need to live the weary round of constant sinning and weeping and repenting.

THE FARMER FEEDETH ALL.

My lord rides through the palace gate,
My lady sweeps along in state,
The sage thinks long on many a thing,
And the maiden muses on marrying:
The minstrel harpeth merrily,
The sailor plows the foaming sea,
The huntsman kills the good red deer,
And the soldier wars without a fear.
But fail to each whate'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.

Smith hammereth cheerily the sword,
Priest preacheth pure and holy word,
Dame Alice worketh broidery well,
Clerk Richard tales of love can tell,
The tap-wife sells her foaming beer,
Dan Fisher fishes in the mere,
And courtiers ruffle strut and shine,
While pages bring the Gascon wine
But fail to each whate'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.

Man builds his castles fair and high,
Whatever river runneth by;
Great cities rise in every land,
Great churches show the builder's hand,
Great arches, monuments and towers,
Fair palaces and pleasing bowers;
Great work is done, but there and there,
And well man worketh everywhere,
But work or rest, whate'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.

—Charles G. Leland.

OUR TEARS.

Their Physiological Value and Importance—An Instructive Lesson.

Tears in redundance may strikingly express emotion, but that is a mental side, which is but a small part of their function, as we shall see.

The principal element in the composition of a tear is, as may be readily supposed, water. The other elements are salt, soda, phosphate of lime, phosphate of soda and mucus, each in small proportions.

A dried tear seen through a microscope of good average power presents a peculiar appearance. The water, after evaporation, leaves behind it the saline ingredients which amalgamate and form themselves into lengthened cross-lines, and look like a number of minute fish bones.

The tears are secreted in what are called the "lachrymal glands," situated over the eyeball and underneath the lid. The contents of these glands are carried along and under the inner surface of the eyelids by means of six or seven very fine channels, and are discharged a little above the cartilage supporting the lid.

The discharge of tears from the lachrymal gland is not occasional and accidental, as is commonly supposed, but continuous. It goes on both day and night, though less abundantly at night, through the "conduits" and spreads equally over the surface of the pupil in virtue of the incessant movement of the lids.

After serving its purpose, the flow is carried away by two little drains, situated in that corner of each eye nearest the nose, into which they run, and called the "lachrymal points."

The usefulness of this quiet flow of tears to both men and beasts is manifest. There is such an immense quantity of fine dust floating in the air, and constantly getting in the eyes, that, but for it, they would soon become choked.

Very little is requisite to keep the ball free, and when some obnoxious substance, smoke, an insect or the like, that affects the nerves, does make its way in, an increased flow is poured out to sweep it away.

APT AND HAPPY PHRASES.

The Lately Deceased French Wit and Scholar Who Originated Some of Them.

M. Labiche, who died in Paris not long ago, was a member of the French Academy—one of the forty literary "immortals" of France.

M. Labiche originated the saying, now not unfamiliar in characterizing a person who, though ignorant, insists upon making a great show of what he thinks he knows, "He is a man of vast and varied misinformation." Labiche expressed the thought in this way: "He has a great and varied ignorance."

Not long after Labiche had used this expression, and had embodied it in a literary work, Prince Bismarck said of some one: "That man possesses a perfect encyclopædic ignorance."

Labiche insisted that Bismarck had borrowed the phrase from him. But it is more probable that the repetition was a mere coincidence, as Bismarck himself is a man of genuine wit.

At the marriage of his son, Labiche gave a little party, and, as he was quite unaccustomed to ceremonies of a social sort, he was at first puzzled to know what he should say in greeting and parting with so many people.

"I have it! I have it!" he exclaimed finally, "I will simply say to each person as he arrives, 'At last!' and to each as he goes away, 'Already!'"

He carried out his programme, and all his guests felt very much flattered.

CHARLES DICKENS.

Interesting Reminiscences of the Master of Novelists.

Ex-State Senator Henry Manistre, of St. Louis, says:

"It was my good fortune when a resident of England to form the acquaintance of the great master of novelists, Charles Dickens.

"I picked him up from the street just as he had been knocked down by one cab and was in danger of being run over by another. He was at the time, as he always was, a reporter.

"That night I tramped with him through the worst slums of London. He told me his business, and in some way we became friends, and often after that I accompanied him on his night walks. Many characters that I saw on these excursions have peered at me since then from the pages of his novels.

"One thing that impressed me about Dickens was that he never took notes. I never saw him with a pencil in his hand, nor did he seem to be paying any attention whatever to what was going on around him; yet in the newspaper articles that make up the complete volumes of 'Sketches by Boz' I recognized that every scene, sound or incident of the trip had been indelibly impressed upon his wonderful mind."

Origin of the Word Daisy.

The word "daisy" was formerly used in the Eastern counties of England as an adjective meaning excellent, remarkable—as, for instance, "She's a daisy lass to work," meaning "She's a good girl to work;" or, I'm a daisy hand for pudding," meaning "I eat a good deal of pudding."

Here is only another curious example of the fact that what we call "slang" is often only a revival of an old phrase. And the American youngster's "You're a daisy!" is simply old provincial English.—Wide Awake.

Out of the Breastworks.

TATE SPRINGS, TENN., July 4, 1888.

The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—Seven years ago I contracted an exceeding bad case of blood poison. I tried a physician, the best at command, but secured no benefit. My throat began to get sore, and my body covered with sores and ulcers. Going from bad to worse, I felt that my grave must be reached in the near future. I gave up the doctors' treatment and took a despairing hope I commenced taking your medicine. I began to improve before the first bottle, and in a short time five others needed, and my skin cleared off a sound and healthy well.

A few years ago a case of catarrh developed in my system. The physicians did their best, but failed to cure me; but two bottles of Swift's Specific gave me permanent relief.

IN MEMORY OF HENDRICKS.

The Anniversary of His Death Observed by an Indianapolis Club.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—Yesterday the Hendricks club, of this city, observed the anniversary of the distinguished statesman's death from whom the organization takes its name. Nearly 300 members of the club, in their regulation uniform, and at whose head was Governor Gray, went to the cemetery and gathered about the grave of the late vice president. But two graves are in the lot, that of the vice president and his son Morgan. Both were covered by the club with flowers, mainly roses and chrysanthemums.

About the graves were gathered others, among whom were Mrs. Hendricks, and Judge Niblack of the supreme court. A quartette sang "Lead, Kindly Light," which was the vice president's favorite hymn. The Rev. Dr. J. S. C. Jenckes offered prayer, and after that Governor Gray delivered an eloquent eulogy. When the governor's address was finished the members of the club, forming in two lines, passed by the grave, each of them dropping as he passed the rose that had been worn in his lapel during the procession, and with a farewell number, "The Christian's Goodnight," the memorial services were over.

SOCIALISM IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Under the guise of working people's associations the Socialists are endeavoring to effect new organizations, which shall include the branches now partially disintegrated, of the various groups, embracing Anarchists, Communists and such other societies as have for their object the overthrow of the existing governments and social systems. A meeting for the purpose of forming one of these societies was held in this city yesterday afternoon on West Lake street. The hall was packed with men and women, the larger part of whom are Anarchists. The proceedings were conducted in German, and the new organization was christened the "Arbeiter-Bund." All persons, regardless of sex or religious belief, are eligible to membership upon the payment of 10 cents. The objects of the society are to organize the common or lowest classes of the people, and educate them to such an extent that they shall be able to reach the perfection of social liberty as outlined by Anarchy.

Crafts, have fled the country, leaving many debts unsatisfied. It develops that Scoville has altered many notes payable to the bank by raising the figures on them. Both men borrowed extensively from their friends before leaving. As near as can be ascertained at the present time the liabilities will reach $200,000.

The Eva Mitchell Case.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The Times says that the Hyde Park police have got another clue to the murder of Eva Mitchell. According to its story William O'Brien, a west side ward politician, was seen in a saloon on the south side the evening of Eva's murder, in company with a woman whom he induced to drink liquor. afterward driving off in a buggy with her in the direction of the place where the body was found. O'Brien says he was in the saloon, but the woman was not Eva, whom he does not know. He says he will produce the woman, and the police are waiting for him to do so.

Yellow Fever on the Warship Boston.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 26.—A dispatch was received at the navy department Saturday afternoon from Capt. Ramsay, commanding the "Boston," announcing his arrival at quarantine, New York harbor, with several cases of yellow fever on board. The "Boston" arrived at Port au Prince, Hayti, on Nov. 5, and on the 16th the fever first made its appearance on shipboard. Several of the crew were taken down, and Capt. Ramsay at once started for New York. Seven cases soon developed on board, but no new ones since the 20th, instant. Four of the crew died before reaching New York, and the ship's surgeon, Dr. W. J. Simon, and two seamen are still sick on board.

Suit Against Indiana White-Caps.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 22.—William Norman filed suit in court here Wednesday morning asking $10,000 damages from M. D. Reed, Isaac D. Branham, Marshall Norman, John Norman, Eli Sowders, J. H. Ragsdale, Isaac Spies, Jr., and William Stackleather, who are charged with being the White Caps who whipped him so unmercifully last May. In his complaint William Norman says that the night of May 1 he was taken from his house at 12 o'clock in the presence of his wife and daughter, was tied to a tree and severely flogged, from the effects of which it took him several weeks to recover. The defendants are all well-known and well-to-do citizens.

Kansas Is Harrison's Banner State.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 23.—The official vote of the state is as follows: Harrison, 182,502; Cleveland, 102,541; Streeter, 36,286; Fisk, 6,452. Plurality for Harrison, 79,961, a gain of 14,700 over 1886. The plurality for Harrison is the largest given by any state, even exceeding Pennsylvania, which cast a vote nearly three times as great as Kansas.

North Carolina's Official Vote.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 23.—The canvass of the electoral vote of North Carolina, completed yesterday, shows 148,709 votes for the Democratic candidates, 134,709 votes for the Republican candidates, and 2,757 votes for the Prohibition candidates. The vote for congressmen and state officers will not be canvassed until the 29th instant.

Official from New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The electoral vote in New York State as canvassed by the state board of canvassers yesterday, is as follows: the highest number of votes received by any elector being given: Republican, 650,337; Democratic, 635,965; Prohibition, 30,327; Socialist, 2,068; Union Labor, 520; United Labor, 2,668.

Mrs. Parsons in London.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Lucy Parsons, addressing a meeting of the Socialistic club Sunday night, attributed the strictures made upon the speaker's dynamite bomb doctrines by Mrs. Besant solely to political motives on the part of the latter. Mrs. Besant, Mrs. Parsons alleged, was a candidate for a position on the school board and bidding for liberal support; therefore she dared not speak her mind freely.

Yale Defeats Princeton.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—In the game of football between Yale and Princeton teams the former defeated the latter 10 to 0.

KNIGHTS ELECT OFFICERS.

Powderly Put at the Head Again and His Man Made Secretary.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 24.—At yesterday's meeting of the Knights of Labor assembly the new officers were elected. Powderly had two opponents for the chief office—Manley, of New York, and Birch. Powderly got 127 votes, Manley 27 and Birch 1. The other officers were elected as follows, the winning candidate getting 83 votes to 56 for the loser each time: General worthy foreman, M. L. Wheat, of Iowa; John W. Hayes (who was supported by Powderly), secretary-treasurer. Frederick Turner, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. A. P. Stevens, of Toledo, O., were his opponents.

In accordance with the amended constitution General Master Workman Powderly named eight candidates from whom the required number was to be taken by the assembly for the executive board, as follows: A. W. Wright, Moutreal, Can.; J. A. Wright, Philadelphia; Thomas B. McGuire, New York; H. C. Trafhagen, Cincinnati; John Devlin, Detroit; J. J. Holland, Jacksonville, Fla.; John Costello, Pittsburg, and J. J. Crowley, Charleston, Miss. The first ballot resulted in the selection of three—A. W. Wright, Holland and Costello. Two more ballots were required to select the fourth member, and in the last Devlin came out the winner.

The business of the day was finished by the assembly unanimously selecting Powderly to represent the knights of the world at the Paris exposition.

THE CHICAGO POSTOFFICE.

Gen. Newberry Reappointed Postmaster in Place of Mr. Judd.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The news of Gen. Newberry's reappointment as postmaster of this city in place of S. Corning Judd, reached here Friday morning. It was at first made light of by those supposed to be interested, but it was found on inquiry that the position was tendered to him a few days ago, and that he had decided to accept. From one of Gen. Newberry's closest friends comes the statement that the general has not only notified the president of his acceptance, but has made arrangements to take charge of the office on Dec. 1.

DRIVEN FROM THEIR HOMES.

Settlers on the Des Moines River Lands Evicted Without Mercy.

MASON CITY, Ia., Nov. 22.—The trouble existing between the Des Moines river land squatters and the Navigation & Railroad company is producing intense excitement. Yesterday morning 100 more writs of ejectment were placed in the hands of officers and all were served. The settlers were driven out of their houses, their furniture piled up in the road, and doors and windows barred against them. Many located on the land in good faith, securing patents from the United States government, and to them the evictions seemed crue and unjust. The land company makes no compromises. When the the settlers make overtures to buy their land, as many of them are doing, they are charged from $16 to $35 per acre. Trouble has thus far been averted, but the settlers around Lehigh have formed a union, with R. S. Boynton as their president. It is expected that the union will issue a circular to-day outlining grievances and making known its intention.

WITCHMEN'S STRIKE BEATEN.

Engineers and Firemen Refuse to Assist—New Men Employed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 27.—The switchmen's strike is practically ended, as on the various roads yesterday there was considerable movement of freight. New men are at work with the assistance of employes taken from other departments. Sunday night the engineers and firemen had about decided to go out, but after the radical advocates of such a course had their say and brought the men up to a high pitch, the conservative engineers took a hand and changed the tide. The failure of the Burlington strike, the pledges engineers had made to their respective companies not to assist other employes in their demands or to refuse to haul trains manned by non-union men were cited. This course had such an effect that last night all danger of their striking had passed. Superintendents of the roads say business will be resumed as usual to-day.

Alleged Dynamiters on Trial.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—John Hronek, the alleged dynamite conspirator, was placed on trial in Judge Collin's court Monday morning and the work of impaneling a jury was begun. Hronek is charged with conspiring with Frank Chapek, Frank Kleboun, and Rudolph Sevic to blow up the houses of Judge Gary and Judge Grinnell. The accused will have separate trials. Messrs. Longknecker and Elliott are conducting the case for the state.

HRONEK.

A Chicago Banker In Trouble.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Thomas P. Tallman, cashier of the defunct Traders bank, was arrested on a capias issued by Judge Jamieson, and was at once taken to court, where he gave bail in the sum of $10,000. His bondsmen are Potter Palmer, Leman J. Gage, H. H. Blackall and W. H. Russell. Tallman was then released. His arrest was made on charges that he, as cashier, had received deposits in the bank knowing it was insolvent.

No Mercy for the Bald-Knobbers.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 27.—The supreme court has confirmed the death sentence in the case of John Matthews, of Christian county. Matthews is one of the Bald-Knobbers charged with the murder of Green and Evans. Dec. 11 is fixed as the date of execution. The motion for a rehearing in the case of William Walker, another convicted Bald-Knobber, was also overruled. The date of Walker's execution is Dec. 28.

Teemer Defeated.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 24.—The boat race for the championship of America between Teemer and O'Connor was won by the latter in twenty-three minutes, beating his opponent 200 yards. The stakes were $2,500 a side. The distant rowed was three miles with a turn.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24th, 1888.

These western people who are making up cabinet slates with both Alger and Sherman in the star cast are making errors if Washington politicians can be believed. They tell strange stories of the death of Sherman's candidaby at Chicago, using no less than allegations that Alger bought a score of Sherman delegates. If this be true it is not to be wondered at that Sherman dislikes Alger with all the intense hatred of which his slow, cold blood is capable. The ambitious Michigan ex-governor would at best be an eyesore in the cabinet, so far as Mr. Sherman is concerned, but to be asked to go into the cabinet with him—well no, Senator Sherman would respectfully decline. And I would humbly warn Mr. Alger to go politically armed against this enemy; even then, I am afraid Mr. Alger would get the worst of the battle.

Secretary and Mrs. Whitney are said to have finally induced the President to settle in New York at the close of his term. The great business interests of Mr. Whitney would offer some pretty fat retainers to a lawyer, to which Mr. Cleveland, as a business man, could not be adverse. And then Mrs. Cleveland would enter the inner circle of the 400 of which the Whitneys are supreme lights. If the alliance is perfected, the Whitneys and Clevelands will journey to the Paris Exposition together next July.

Levi P. Morton's mammoth eight story appartment house is nearing completion, but the story that he will reserve the first story for ily seems absurd. Mr. Morton wealth will seek other quarter family will be the most prom in the society of the coming administration. When Mr. Morton was here as Representative, he lived in the old Hopper mansion which is remembered by the briliant entertainments there given. His new psoition and his added wealth, together with the fact that one of his daughters will be a debutant in the first season, will, it is supposed bring forth the Morton millions in some lavish society events.

Gen. Harrison is making a wise move as to his family religious affairs. The church of the Convent, on Connecticut avenue, as soon as election was over, sent him word to take a pew in that church. He replied that he would do so, but that he would not confine his attendance to any one congregation, but would rent pews in three or four Presbyterian churches, and thus avoid the unseemly rush and influx of strangers which always characterize the particular church which a President attends exclusively. It is a crying reproach to the good name of the average American, that Mr. Harrison should see such a necessity for avoiding curious crowds. But anyone who has seen Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland stared out of countenance by a well dressed but unmannerly throng whenever they dared to attend church, will recognize the wisdom of Mr. Harrison's plans.

An annimated strife goes on among army officers who aspire to staff positions, and it was increased this week by the report that Col. Dan Lamont would succeed Gen. Swaim as Judge Advocate General of the army. The proposition seemed plausible till denied by Daniel. He says he has had enough of political life and can do better outside. Still the position alluded to is a pleasant one, and the applicant does not have to know anything about law. It is such a tempting position that Gen. Swaim harrasse President Garfield by every known means until he got it. Just now, Swaim is undergoing a deserved retirement of twelve years inflicted by court martial, the sentance of which, however, unfortunately carried with it big pay during suspension. Swaim was probably the most incompetent and reckless appointee ever given a place by President Garfield. I do not believe that Garfield ever knew, intimate as he was with him, what a poor excuse for a man Swaim is. His deficency developed more fully after the President's death.

Lord Sackvill's household goods, from the pots and pans to the bric-a-brac, passed under the auctioneer's hammer this week. A pushing, curious throng attended. Many Anglomaniacs attended and anything that looked particularly English brought fancy prices. Even a harness, marked in every available place with the Sackville crest, brought about $90.

"Blood tells." We may not be able to refuse royal and noble blood into a man's veins but we can do better; we can expel from them, all impure and poisonous humors by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Pure blood is the best kind of royal blood.

COUGH! and COUGH!! and COUGH!!! What in the world is the reason you will cough and keep coughing and still keep trying inferior medicines when BEGGS' CHERRY COUGH SYRUP will positively relieve your cough at once? This is no advertising scheme, but an actual fact, and we guarantee it. J. J. ORR, Druggist.

FOR CHILDREN OF ALL AGES.

St. Nicholas for 1889.

PEOPLE who have the idea that St. Nicholas Magazine is only for little children should look over the prospectus of that magazine for 1889, and they will discover that it is for children of all ages, "from five to eighty-five," as some one recently said of it. Indeed, while St. Nicholas is designed for girls and boys, it might almost be called a "family magazine," for the grown-up members of a household will find much to interest them in every number.

The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls the next volume an "all-round-the-world year," because it is to contain so many illustrated papers about the world in general—not dry geographical papers, but stories and sketches and tales of travel and adventure by land and sea—and all illustrated by the best artists. The features will include a serial story, "How We Made the Farthest North," by Gen. A. W. Greely, the well-known commander of the Greely Expedition; a serial about Canada, by Mrs. Catherwood, who is writing a serial story for The Century this year; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton. There are many papers about Europe, including a Christmas story of life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; articles on Holland and the Dutch, by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. Harrison Smith, R. N., with illustrations of many of England's finest war ships; "The Winchester School," illustrated by Joseph Pennell; "English Railway Trains," by Wm. H. Rideing, etc., etc. The French papers include "Ferdinand de Lesseps and his two Ship Canals," and there are several interesting contributions on German, Italian and Russian subjects.

Under "Asia," comes "Boys and Girls in China," by Yan Phou Lee (a recent graduate of Yale); "Home Life in the East," by Mrs. Holman Hunt, and a number of papers about Japan. Under "Africa" there is a sketch of Henry M. Stanley, by Noah Brooks, and several stories about Egypt. Australia is not forgotten, nor the islands of the sea, and there are even to be stories of under the sea.

Of course the bulk of the contents will relate to American subjects, as usual. Mrs. Burnett, the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," contributes a story of New York called "Little Saint Elizabeth;" there will be papers describing how the government offices are conducted, papers about athletics, amateur photography, etc. The full prospectus will be sent to any one who wishes to see it by the publishers, The Century Co., of New York.

The Graphic recently said of St. Nicholas, "the family without it is only half-blessed."

To have good health medicine is necessary occasionally. As a family medicine we can recommend Laxador, the great regulator, and advise all to have a package constantly on hand for cases of necessity.

Our Adrian Times exchange was cut off during the heat of the campaign and resumed immediately after. We don't know whether Applegate was short on stock, or did not want us to review his political effusions.—Addison Courier.

To-day the Dundee cheese factory closes business for this season, which has been the largest of any since the factory was established, 2138 large cheese weighing 45 to 50 lbs each have been the season product. The cheese have had ready sale and the demands have been greatly in the excess of the supply.—Dundee Reporter.

Hon. A. D. Gilmore of Blissfield, senator elect for Lenawee county, was in town for a day or two the fore part of the week looking after business affairs and receiving congratulations of friends over his election. He announces that the "latch string" will be out at all times for his friends who visit Lansing during the coming session of the legislature. He will doubtless be one of the leading senators in the next legislature, and Lenawee county will be honored by his services in that body.—Dundee Reporter.

Upon one of the south side avenues the other night, somewhere along about the midnight hour, a window was raised and a woman's head penetrated the chill night air. In a clear, mezzosoprano voice she yelled "Policel Police!" Right next door resides a gentleman who is holding office under President Cleveland. He pushed up his window to inquire of his neighbor what the matter was. She wailed that someone was in her house and asked. "Who do you suppose it can be?" The good, old staunch Democrat, who was half asleep, answered: "I suppose it must be some Republican—they're getting in everywhere now. Wait until I get on my clothes and I'll go and see."—Chicago Herald.

Supervisor Corbett has been making some investigations into the complaint of a young widow living a short distance out of the village, who alleges that a certain married man of the village is responsible for the delicate condition she is in. The young woman resides with her parents, who are poor, and she herself is of unsound mental status, so that likely her case will become a town charge. The woman dates her downfall at the Farmers' Institute last June, and says the aforesaid married man followed her out of the village at night, and by threats forced her to submit. The authorities are indisposed to have the fellow arrested, fearing that the young woman, owing to her feeble-mindedness, may not be able to successfully withstand a severe cross-examination, should a defence be made. The case is a sad one, and if the young man is guilty of the charge, there is no punishment severe enough for him that could be meted out by law. He is not a merchant, as has been stated by the Adrian Times, nor has he ever been.—Blissfield Advance.

We call attention to the card of Wright, Kay & Co. of Detroit, which appears in another column. This firm is now recognized as the leading jewelry firm in the state, and they are doing an immense business in their line. Mr. Henry M. Wright, the senior partner, is quite a litterateur also. His European letters which appeared in the Free Press last summer attracted much attention and favorable comment. He is ably assisted in the minor branches of the business, which is developing into mammoth proportions under his management. This patent could be made the nucleus of a large business if rightly handled.

Hannibal Osborn has been quite sick for the past few days, but he is now convalescing, and will soon open his poultry packing establishment next week. He will pay the highest market price for first-class poultry, as heretofore, and would remind all of his old patrons that it will be for their interest to call upon him before selling.

Ed Williamson has been doing a rushing business for the Thanksgiving trade. From the 17th to the 24th he made heavy shipments of poultry each day, both here and from his branch packing house at Onsted. The entire aggregate up to the 24th amounted to the snug little sum of 74,563 pounds. He is now buying and packing for the holiday trade.

The 23rd annual meeting of the Michigan Bee Keeper's association will be held in Jackson, Mich. on Dec 12 and 13, 1888. Meetings will be held in the city council room. Greatly reduced rates have been secured at the Hurd House also at the Commercial House, near Mich. Central depot, at $1.50 and $1.00 per day. A program is being prepared, and from the papers already promised we expect a very interesting meeting. Any bee-keeper having anything new and useful and finding it impossible to be present, can send it by express to Jackson in care of the secretary who will place it on exhibition and return it as per orders. Plenty of room to exhibit. Please come and bring your bee-keeping friends with you.

Your list of papers for the coming year will not be complete unless it includes the old reliable Tecumseh HERALD.

While enjoying our own Thanksgiving let us not forget the needs of some poor neighbor who is less favored with worldly wealth than our-selves.

We made a flying trip to Dundee last Monday and enjoyed the captivating sourroundings of the Dundee depot about six hours that evening, waiting for the Mackinaw train.

S. P. Hosmer, is now receiving his holiday stock of goods, and is busily placing it where it will pay to the best advantage. He has an elegant display in his line, and in the direction of table ware and cutlery he has the most complete assortment ever brought to Tecumseh. Books, stationery, albums, watches, clocks and jewelry, spectacles, nick-nacks, and notions in endless variety, make up a stock which old Santa Claus himself might well enjoy. Step in there and look for yourself.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE completes its second year and fourth volume with a Christmas number containing nineteen interesting articles in prose and verse—twelve of them fully illustrated by the well-known artists and engravers. Among the artists represented are Elihu Vedder, J. Alden Weir, W Hamilton Gibson, John La Farge, Robert Blum, George Hitchcock, C. Jay Taylor, and M. J. Burns. The number is rich in beautiful decorations and pictures. The literature deals with unusually attractive phases of life and art especially fitted for the Christmas season.

The marriage of Mr. Edward Murray, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Miss Lizzie Barkley, of Tecumseh, was celebrated Friday evening, Nov. 23, at the residence of Mr. Wm. Gordon in this village in the presence of a number of friends and relatives. We give a list of presents below.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas Lowry, silver castor set of berry dishes and bed spread; mother and father of bride, table cloth and set of glassware; Mrs. McKinney, linen towel; Mrs. Hazlett, dozen table napkins; Mrs. McWilliams, two linen towels; Stella McMullen, linen towel; Ellen Logan, silver napkin ring; Eliza Barklay, bed spread and half dozen silver teaspoons; Mrs. McConnell, bed quilt; Jas. E Lowry, glass rolling pin; Rosa Gordon and Lulu Gray, two fancy mugs.

We are called upon to chronicle a business change this week which we sincerely regret. Capt. Fred B. Wood has made his arrangements to move his law office to Adrian. A. L. Millard, esq., Capt. Wood and Mr. Bird have formed a partnership under the firm name of Millard, Wood, and Bird and will occupy the old office of Bean and Lane over the postoffice. The firm will be a strong one and its professional success is assured in advance. Capt Wood, was born in Tecumseh, and his whole life has been passed here. His friends have watched his progress with interest and witnessed his success with feelings of pride. No business man in this community can boast of warmer friends. And while it may cause them many a pang of regret to have him leave the old home, the regrets will be accompanied with many a 'God bless you,' and a belief that higher honors and brighter professional laurels will await him in his new field of labor.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Maggie Hosmer was born at Groveland, Livingston Co., N. Y., May 20, 1838 and was the daughter of John and Mary Rosebrough. In the year 1852 she moved with her parents to Michigan and her father purchased a home on Kilbuck street in this village where the family resided for many years. The deceased became a member of the Presbyterian Church during the pastorate of Rev. H. G. Blinn. On Christmas day, 1867 she was united in marriage to Mr. A. D. Hosmer and since that date her home has been in Minnesota. She came to Tecumseh to spend the present summer and while here was taken with the trouble that caused her death. She was a great sufferer during the last few weeks of her earthly pilgrimage but she bore her affliction with christian resignation and looked forward to a time when a heavenly peace would be hers. She died at her sister's, Mrs. S. P. Hosmer's, on the 15th day of November. Our old residents will remember her as "Maggie" Rosebrough, one of the brightest and most talented young ladies who attended our high school in those good old days when Prof. Esterbrook and Prof. Lawton presided over our schools. It is hard to realize that those brilliant talents are forever at rest, and that she has found a peaceful home with the great majority where there "shall be no more tears and where sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

EDITOR HERALD:—Perhaps a short description of this part of California will be interesting to some of your readers, and I will write of San Diego county, as that is the only part of the state that I have seen or studied up.

Diego was the first county organized in the state, and is the largest—larger than the state of New Jersey—and was the last to be settled and developed. There are several reasons for this. In the first place the discoveries of gold was in the northern part of the state, and the first settlements were naturally made that way and the country back from the coast being more easily accessible, and more abundantly supplied with water, caused that section of the state to be settled. In the second place, although along the coast the country has been known and occupied in a measure as long as any part of the state, yet the impression was obtained that the country back from the coast was all mountains, and what little available land there was only fit for grazing, and all such land was occupied under Spanish grants for cattle ranges, and were carefully guarded by the rangers from intrusion by land seekers. The coast range for a few miles back had been sparsely settled and cultivated, yet even these settlers had not explored the back country, and supposed it to be all mountains with no water, and their dependence for crops was what could be produced from the winter rains, for they have no means of irrigation, except by wells and windmills and they were expensive.

Some 20 years ago two brothers by the name of Kimble, purchased what was known as the Rancho National, comprising over 60,000 acres, at a nominal price of a few cents an acre. They were poor but energetic men, who saw the advantages this region possessed and what results it was capable of producing, and set themselves to work to bring it before the people and induce them to invest and improve the country. It will be necessary for me to give a discription of this section before going on with the results.

San Diego county is the extreme south-west portion of Uncle Sam's domain; it has about 75 miles of sea coast and is about 190 miles long east and west; it has much more really available land than any other county in the state; though difficult of access at present, but rail and wagon roads are being pushed into the interior. San Diego Bay is the only true harbor on the coast south of San Francisco and is the best harbor on the whole coast; it is 13 miles long and from one to three miles wide; it is virtually land-locked and the ocean storms have very little effect upon its waters. The largest ocean vessel can enter with perfect safety at all times, and commanders of vessels who have never entered it before can do so without a pilot. From the north end of the bay for a distance of three miles the land between the bay and ocean is a very high elevation; from the south end of the bay the peninsula is very low and narrow, and runs north for more than a mile past the point of the high land, and the entrance is a deep channel between. San Diego City is situated near the north end of the bay on the north east; here the land for the most part rises abruptly from the bay quite high; from San Diego south, entirely around the bay the land rises gradually from the bay to a distance of from one to five miles to the hill forming a comparatively level table land, or "mesa" as it is called here. From these mesa lands running back into the mountains are numerous valleys of more or less extent. Following up these valleys one comes to a narrow canyon with bold rocky bluffs, which are grand, and one concludes he has reached the end of the valley, but passing on through these canyons one will come out into another valley. These valleys and canyons are innumerable, and upon the mountains at elevations of from 1500 to 3000 feet, can be found table land and valleys which are rich of soil and capable of producing large crops of most grains, vegetables and fruits; these lands receive more rains in the winter and require less irrigation than the lower mesa lands which require more or less irrigation to make their cultivation profitable, but with plenty of water their capabilities for production are astonishing.

The low and mesa lands are devoid of timber save willows and some other bushes along the water courses which are for the most part dry through the summer season. The mountains also for some distance back are destitute of timber, but both mountain and low lands are covered with sage brush scrubs, cactus and prickly pears; there is a great deal of choice agricultural lands back among and upon the mountains which will be occupied as soon as roads can be built to each of them. The winter rains usually begin the latter part of November, when vegetation begins to start, and from the first of February until vegetation begins to die, or dry up, the country looks grand with its myriads of beautiful wild flowers.

The impression is generally obtained in the east that nothing can be produced here without irrigation, which is a great mistake, for good paying crops of most vegetables and fruits can be grown from the winter rains; but water is king here, and where it can be furnished in sufficient quantities, various crops can be grown the year round.

I will have to reserve an account of this subject for future letters, also, a further account of the bay region and what has been done here. What I shall write will pertain to San Diego county more particularly.

A SURVEY OF THE BATTLE FIELD.

As the smoke lifts from the field of the late political battle, the true inwardness of the result and the means by which the victory was won become more and more manifest. To call a victory won by such questionable methods, a verdict against tariff reform is an utter absurdity. We have already adverted to the peculiar result in New York by which Harrison electors were chosen and the Republican candidate for Governor defeated.

The official vote of New York city for President, Governor, Mayor, etc., is an interesting study. It is as follows:

PRESIDENT			MAYOR
Cleveland, D	192,854		Grant, D		90,971
Harrison, R	106,647		Ransom, R		67,038
Majority	86,207		Majority		23,933
GOVERNOR			MAYOR
Hill, D	192,454		Grant, D		84,413
Miller, R	96,932		Edson, R		59,[illegible]
			Hewitt, [illegible]		[illegible]
Majority	95,522		Cooper, [illegible]		[illegible]
SECRETARY OF STATE
Rice, D	191,938
Chapin, R	96,[illegible]
Majority	95,[illegible]

Cleveland's majority is nearly 14,000 less than Hill's, some 18,000 less than Flower's, and over 20,000 less than Grant's. Hill's majority in New York city would have given Cleveland the state and re-elected him President. Cleveland lacked only the electoral vote of New York to elect him. Harrison was chosen President by the votes of New York City. There is no escaping the logic of these figures.

But this is not all. The control of the next House is now known to depend upon the recount which has been ordered in the fifth California district between Clunie, Democrat, and Phelps, Republican, and the contest in the Chattanooga district of Tennessee between Bates, Democrat, and Evans, Republican. It now seems quite possible that the Democrats will have a majority of three in the next House, but it is also possible that the Republicans will have a majority of one or three. In the city of St. Louis the Republican party of more ideas gained three Congressmen, and how was it done? An exchange gives the modus operandi as follows:

A deal was made between the Republican politicians and the liquor traders. It was agreed that the Republicans should promise the repeal of Local Option and the Sunday law, and that the saloonists should kick the Democratic State legislative and county candidates everywhere. The Republicans on election day carried out their part of the agreement. They nominated for congressman Mr. Kimball, a man who had become obnoxious to his own country by his zealous efforts in behalf of the liquor politicians. They nominated for Congress in the St. Louis district H. R. W. Hartman, a saloon keeper, for years in the employ of the United States government, who had been convicted and fined by the United States courts, and sentenced to pay a fine of $[illegible] and be imprisoned for three months. Most of the other nominees of the Republicans in Missouri, particularly in St. Louis, were just as odious.

The liquor men carried out their part of the bargain, with signal success. Mr. Kimball's Democratic opponent, for the first time in years, was not the Mayor who had enforced the Sunday law. The city of St. Louis gave a Democratic majority of [illegible] at the State election two years ago. But it went Republican this year by [illegible],000, and every Democratic legislative, municipal and Congressional candidate was defeated. In the State at large the turn of districts prevented the election of Kimball, but Francis, Reality for Governor, was only [illegible],000 as high the Democratic majority in its two years ago was 30,000.

The leading Democratic organ of Missouri, the St. Louis Republic, admits that the Republican victory, won by such an instrumentality, was as great a disgrace as the election of Hill in New York by the rum vote. Here are two of the burning paragraphs printed by The Republic on the day after the election:

"The tough element in St. Louis is in funds to-day, and Republican grog shops ring with glee as the price of American manhood crosses the counters and swells the profits of a business deplorable at its best and disgraceful as it is carried on in this city.

"Can any citizen remember visiting a Republican rally or club meeting during the campaign that was not held in the rear room of a grog-shop, or on a stake wagon in front of one? Who can call to mind a Radical ward boss in this city who is not a saloon-keeper, the patron or the puppet of one? Where were the Dark Lantern Central Committee meetings held? Who made the dicker with the Union Labor leaders to support Frank, Republican candidate for Congress, and where was it made? What rally of the opposition for three months past did not adjourn at a late hour, composed largely of maudlin, drunken negroes, made wild and boistrous by a lavish use of campaign funds across the headquarters bar? Of whom is the Republican City Central Committee composed, mostly? Is it taken from a class conspicuous for intelligence, political acumen, refinement or patriotism? Is there a man on it that could control a single vote in the city, even his own, if he had not a doggery at his back? No, not one."

If it shall turn out that the Republicans get control of the house, their entire majority in that body will have been taken from the slums of the city of St. Louis. How do honest temperance Republicans like the picture?

In those sections of the country where the tariff issue was fairly presented, where the people were educated on the question, and where the voters cast their ballots unbribed and unbought, tariff reform was the gainer in every instance.

California, the largest wool producing State in the Union, votes for Harrison by one-third less majority than Blaine received in 1884.

Texas, the second largest wool producing State in the Union, elects a solid delegation to the next Congress in favor of free wool.

Ohio, the third wool growing State in the Union, gives Harrison a native of Ohio one-third less majority than was given to Blaine.

Colonel Breckenridge, who voted for free hemp, and who represents the largest hemp growing district in the Union, is re-elected by an increased majority.

Philadelphia, the strongest protection community in the Union, gave Harrison [illegible] less majority than was given to Blaine, and it was done with tariff and tax reduction accepted by both sides as the supreme issue.

The great manufacturing centers gave greatly reduced Republican majorities on the tariff issue. Providence fell from 1,894 for Blaine to 488 for Harrison. Rhode Island, the great center of New England factories, gave Harrison one-third less majority than was given to Blaine, and New Hampshire, another manufacturing State, reduced Blaine's majority nearly one-half.

Connecticut is very close on the Presidency, but the manufacturing cities gave Cleveland decided gains. Norwich fell from 437 from Blaine to 90 for Harrison. Waterbury gave Cleveland 492 in 1884 and 740 in 1888; Bridgeport increased Cleveland's majority from 573 in 1884 to 678 and Meriden increased his majority from 54 in 1884 to 341.

In Massachusetts the great manufacturing cities of Lynn, Worcester, Holyoke and Salem give positive Cleveland gains, and Boston gives 9,000 majority for tariff and tax reduction and free raw materials.

Although the cause of tariff revision and tax reduction has received a temporary set back, there is no reason why its friends should be discouraged. When Buchanan was elected President on a reactionary pro-slavery platform in 1856 the friends of free men and free states were not disheartened. They collected their scattered forces and formed the lines for another charge. The election of Harrison on a reactionary, free whiskey, robber tariff platform, procured by money and bribery, is an exact political parallel to the election of Buchanan. The friends of low taxes and commercial freedom did not go into this battle as a political playspell. They meant business six months ago and they mean business yet.

WHAT ON EARTH

Is the reason people will not, can not, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John houses, or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? No medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BEGGS' BLOOD PURIFIER & BLOOD MAKER, and every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing.

SOME CURIOUS MARRIAGE CUSTOMS

For marriage purposes the people of New Britain are divided into two classes or divisions.

No man may marry a woman of his own class. To do so would bring instant destruction upon the woman, and if not immediate death to the man, his life would never be secure; in fact, marriage between a man and woman of the same class is regarded in the same light as between brother and sister in a Christian community.

As, however, children are of their mother's totem, it is possible for a man to marry his niece, although there is a great repugnance to such unions among the natives.

Preparations for marriages are various. On Duke of York Island initiation into a secret society seems a sufficient preparation (though not absolutely necessary to marriage) for the boys, and there appears to be no needful preparation for the girls. On New Ireland some girls wear a fringe across their shoulders until they are marriageable. These are the poorer classes.

Others are put into cages, into which they remain four or five years without being allowed to go outside the house in which they are confined.

These cages are conical structures about seven or eight feet in height, and about 10 or 12 feet in circumference at the bottom. They are made of the broad leaves of the pandanus tree, sewn quite close together, so that no light and very little air can enter. On one side is an opening, which is closed by a double door of plaited cocoanut tree and pandanus tree leaves. About three feet from the ground there is a stage of bamboos which forms the floor.

There is only room for the girl to sit or lie down in a crouched position on the bamboo platform, and her feet are never allowed to touch the ground all the time she is confined in the cage. Great marriage feasts are provided for these girls when they are taken out of the cages.

On the island of New Britain wives are purchased with shell money, and are often married at a very early age. After the price has been decided and paid the girl may be taken away at once to her husband's house, or she may be allowed to remain with her friends for a considerable time.

On Duke of York Island there is generally a marriage feast of a superior kind when persons of influence are being married. The women of the town and surrounding district prepare a large number of puddings, and many pigs are killed. Many presents are given to the bride in public, which she is expected afterwards to return privately. A cocoanut is broken over the heads of the pair and the milk is sprinkled upon them. After this there are periodical feasts for a considerable time, the friends of the bride entertaining the friends of the bridegroom, and vice versa.

When a man marries a second wife after the death of the first the female relatives of the dead wife gather together and are permitted to do as much damage to his property as they can. A man may have as many wives as he can purchase, but if he cannot afford to buy one, and his credit is low, he may have to remain single.

LIFE IN NEW ENGLAND.

Illustrating the Enterprise of Its Storekeepers.

Old Man—"Wa'al, I do have pork once in a while—fried it yesterday, but it's out."

Visitor—"Oh!—Got any bread?"

Old Man—"Wa'al, I do reckon upon having bread most weeks, but it's out."

Visitor (desperate)—"Any butter?"

Old Man—"Had some yesterday."

Visitor—"Got any berries?"

Old Man—"Wa'al, this is a busy time; but, you see my folks mostly orders and I brings their things jest so—d'ye see? So I mostly has jest what they wants and no waste to it. Got washing soda, now—er soap, er kerosene oil, if you want it; but it don't pay to keep perishable articles in this here store, no way."

Visitor (with delight)—"Got pickles, then?"

The Passion for Betting.

Years ago when riding with the late Rev. Dr. Ballard he remarked to us that he "did not like cards, so much gambling was done with them."

We replied:

"Doctor, we have just left the office and almost the last paragraph which we read was in relation to two young fellows about to attend church service, the men stopping at the door and making a bet upon the length of the sermon to be delivered."—Brunswick (Me.) Telegraph.

A Lifelike Dummy.

"Why can't they make these dummies more lifelike?" said a facetious fellow, halting with a friend in front of a clothing store on Market street and slapping a figure a vigorous blow on the cheek.

The "dummy" turned suddenly, let fly his left, and the facetious man went down on the pavement as though struck by a lightning express.—Philadelphia Times.

CURIOUS TOILET RECIPES.

Some of Them Culled from the Manuscripts of Ancient Egypt.

Curious hair recipes occur on some of the papyri, some of which are very absurd.

One to prevent the hair from turning gray directs that a salve should be made from the blood of a black calf cooked in oil; in another that of a black bull is preferred for the same object; evidently the color of the animal was to pass through the salve into the hair.

In another place we read of the tooth of a donkey dipped in honey being used for really strengthening the hair; and the ingredients for an ingenious compound are given for injuring the hair of a rival, and the counter remedy to be used by those who think their hair oil has been tampered with by a suspicious friend.

Cakes of some composition which absorbed oil were always placed on the heads of guests at feasts, and from them the oil trickled down through the hair. A most disagreeable practice this may seem to us, but to them it appears to have given great pleasure; and with the Egyptians, as with the Hebrews, oil was symbolical of joy and gladness.

Rouge and other coloring substances were used by women of Egypt to enhance, as they thought, their beauty; the eyes had often a green line underneath them; the lashes and eyebrows were penciled in black, and, as in modern Egypt, the nails were always stained red with a preparation from the henna plant.

In our museums we can see the little pots and vases formerly filled with these unguents and colors, and the pencils they used with them, as well as various sorts of combs and hairpins.

GOOD ENOUGH FOR HIM.

Mr. Asa B. Rowley, Druggist, was induced to try some of the Papillon Catarrh Cure by his customers, after several physicians predicted he would soon have consumption from an aggravated case of Catarrh. He says: "The result was unprecedented. I commenced to get well after the first application, and am now, after a few weeks, entirely cured." Papillon (extract of flax) Catarrh Cure will do all that is claimed for it. Large bottles $1 00.

THE SOOTHING CIGAR.

A Philosophical Physician Clears Up the Mystery of Its Fascination.

An Albany physician, who is something of an investigator, says that smoking is not good for any man so far as his physical condition is concerned; that it is only good to relieve mental depression; that it does so simply by diverting a man's mind from himself and from objects that worry him.

"Nothing," said he, "requires more devotion to it for its enjoyment as a cigar. It is not the taste of tobacco that one enjoys. It is looking at the smoke, inhaling and smelling it, and knocking off the ashes. All these things divert the mind and so drive dull care away."—Albany Journal.

"Most everything in this world is full of deception. Few things are what they seem, but the results obtained by Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic far exceed all claims. It restores lost nerve force, cures dyspepsia, and all stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder troubles. It is a perfect tonic, appetizer, blood purifier, a sure cure for ague and malarial diseases. Price 50 cents, at Dr. Geo. Farnson.

Mrs. Lott—"H'm! With that, and the trifling assistance of the property you transferred to me three months ago, may be we can start again."—Puck.

WHAT IS IT? AND WHAT IT IS.

Papillon (Clarke's extract of flax) Skin Cure, like many other bestimable benefits to mankind, was discovered by accident. The proprietor, engaged in the preparation of certain plants, from time to time noticed the effect of working in the pulp vats on the skin. If there was present any cutaneous eruptions, warts, blemishes or scrofulous symptoms, all disappeared as if by magic. After experimenting ten years, it has become a scientific fact and a priceless boon to the human race. From giving away a few bottles the demand has increased until the sale for the past two years amounts to 1,032,000 bottles. Large bottles only $1,00.

For over twenty years I have been a great sufferer from the effects of a diseased stomach, and for three years past have been unable to do my business, hardly able to move about. Two years ago my case was pronounced by the best medical skill the country. I visited different water cures and tried different climates, but to no good. When children gather in delight,
To fill the air with bubbles bright,
Of this let parents all be sure—
The soap they use is good and pure,
For, common grease in some we find
With evil mixtures well combined
That soon with burning sores will tell
On lips and tongue, and gums as well.

Let Ivory Soap, that's made with care
Of purest oils and essence rare,
Be used by those who bubbles blow
And greatest pleasure will they know,
For brighter bubbles will be seen
Where soap is pure and fresh and clean.
While not a fear need cross the mind
Of bad results of any kind.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

THE CONDITION OF OUR FINANCES.

Over $2,000,000,000 in the Country—The Increase for the Year—Revenue and Expenditure—Bond Purchases—Our Stock of Dad's Dollars Nearly $300,000,000—A Recommendation That No More Be Coined, but That Certificates Be Issued Against Bullion.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 24.—United States Treasurer Hyatt, in his annual report of the operations during the year and condition of the treasury at the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1888, reports the net revenue of the government for the year, $379,666,074, and the net expenditures, $267,924,801, the surplus receipts available for the reduction of the public debt being $111,341,273, an increase of $7,870,155 over the year before. As compared with 1887, the revenues were $7,862,797 greater and the expenditures $7,378 less. The treasury balance increased during the year from $69,224,370 to $129,804,242. The net change of $60,579,863 in the balance was produced by an increase of $37,529,468 in the assets, and a decrease of $23,053,394 in the liabilities. The silver balance fell off more than $27,000,000. The principal increase of assets was in United States notes and deposits in national banks, and the principal decrease of liabilities, in the public debt and the funds for the redemption of national bank notes. There was a net decrease of $74,798,920 during the fiscal year in the principal of the interest-bearing debt. The total purchase of bonds for the sinking fund, and out of surplus revenues, were $51,464,300, the net premium paid, exclusive of accrued interest, being $8,270,842.46.

The gold and silver coin and bullion in the country and all kinds of notes and certificates outstanding on June 30, 1887, amounted to $1,925,259,882, and on June 30, 1888, to $2,092,562,072. The stock of gold and silver increased during the year from $1,007,513,801 to $1,092,391,680.35—mostly in gold. The increase in the volume of the paper circulation was $[illegible]3,424,440, resulting from an increase of $110,319,955 in the amount of certificates and a falling off of $26,895,554.55 in the total of notes and fractional currency.

The redemptions of United States notes at the treasury during the year amounted to $63,352,000. Since the resumption of specie payments only $26,736,454 have been redeemed in gold. With the increase of coin certificates, of which there are now more than of legal tenders, the importance of the latter in the circulation has declined. The denominations below $10 are being displaced by silver certificates, and those above $100 largely by gold certificates. The volume of gold certificates outstanding increased $20,536,333, reaching $142,023,150, the highest point yet noted at the end of any fiscal year.

Taking into account the decrease of the amount in the treasury, the total increase of the circulation was $29,991,143. There were issued $105,896,000 of silver certificates, mostly of the denominations of $10 and under, and $21,947,378 were redeemed. The amount outstanding increased from $145,543,150 to $229,491,772. The increase in the actual circulation was $58,431,767. It had been impossible to meet the demand for the denominations of $1 and $2, and in consequence their issue was suspended between Oct. 18, 1887, and Feb. 3, 1888. Since the latter date the treasurer has been able most of the time to furnish them as they have been asked for.

The coinage of silver dollars during the year amounted to $32,484,675, making the total coinage $299,424,790. The increase of the net distribution was only $39,158. Owing to the scarcity of $1 and $2 notes, and the demand for the movement of crops, nearly $9,000,000 were drawn into circulation between May and November, 1887; but when the notes were again to be had the dollars came back to the treasury as fast as they had gone out. The treasurer is of the opinion that the people have all of these coins they want or are willing to hide, and recommends that if the [illegible] of silver are to continue the [illegible] put into the form of heavy base [illegible], arguing that the present silver dollars will be sufficient for any demand there is likely to be for them, and that any increase of the certificate circulation could be issued with perfect safety on the silver metal.

The amount of fractional silver coin in the treasury has not changed much since the first accumulation after the resumption of specie payments, $[illegible] of little more than $26,000,000 fell on June 30, 1888, $24,500,000 of which was in half dollars and only $5,500,000 in other pieces. The treasurer points out that this proportion, which does not vary much from year to year, is excessive, and that something like $15,000,000 in 50-cent pieces that are not needed for circulation will doubtless be carried by the treasury until they are recoined into other denominations or absorbed by the growth of business.

At the close of the year the treasury held $178,572,650 United States bonds to secure national bank circulation and $[illegible] to secure public moneys held by depository banks. There was a decrease during the year of $15,594,950 in the amount of the former, and an increase of $29,642,500 in the amount of the latter. There was $[illegible] of public money held by the banks, an increase of $[illegible].

GEN. PALMER'S WITHDRAWAL.

He Ends His Connection with the G. A. R.—His Reasons Therefor.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 23.—Gen. John M. Palmer, late Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, has withdrawn from membership in the Grand Army of the Republic. It is stated that his action is due to the belief, from observation during the late political campaign, that the G. A. R. is being used in the interests of the Republican party. Upon being asked his reasons for withdrawing from the organization, with which he has been connected for many years, Gen. Palmer said:

"I am sorry for even this seeming intention of separating myself from any number of my old comrades in arms. From the ordinary meetings of the present year I have been enthusiastically hopeful for its good. I have been disappointed, that's all, and my post has very promptly and very honorably given me my wandering at cost."

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Fire in the tenement 155 East One Hundred and Tenth street last evening caused a panic among the ten families of occupants, but all escaped injury except Mrs. Mary Lally, aged 40, who was overcome by smoke and burned to death. Damage to the building was not extensive.

A Howling Tempest on the Atlantic Coast

MAKES WORK FOR THE LIFE-BOATS.

One Schooner's Crew All Lost Save One and He Has a Remarkable Escape—No Vessels Arriving at New York—Great Damage at Atlantic City—Heroic Service of Volunteer Life-Savers—Reports from the Region Swept Over.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—The following is a partial list of those lost by the wreck of the schooner Edward Norton, which went to pieces after going ashore on First Cliff Point Sunday night: Capt. Frank Curran and his 14-year-old son, Michael McDougall, Patrick Mullaly, Michael Curran, James Brown, D. Lafferty, Lawrence Flaherty, John Heroisto, Lawrence Begneth (colored), Archie Campbell. There were four or five other sailors on board whose names can not yet be ascertained.

Lawrence Allen is the only survivor, and he had a remarkable escape. The weather was so thick that it was impossible to see a hundred yards, and the vessel was not discovered till nearly midnight. It was near daylight when the survivor was seen to crawl out from under her hull. He was very weak from exposure and could give but little information. He said the vessel came in by Peaked Hill Bar on Sunday morning and stayed northwest for Boston, against the wish of the crew, who proposed to put into Provincetown. It was a terrible day. As near as he could tell they struck between 5 and 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon and almost immediately capsized. He was down below, and was the only one saved. He says she carried fifteen men and a boy. After the wreck was discovered he was still under the hull and nearly drowned; he could barely keep his head out of water, but could plainly hear the voices of those on the beach, and had to wait hours till the sea left her, when he had barely strength to crawl out. He was taken to the residence of John Conroy and kindly cared for.

GOTHAM FEELS THE BREEZE.

Port Arrivals Amount to Nothing—Destruction at Atlantic City.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The commerce of this port yesterday was pretty much limited to the arrival of five schooners by the way of the sound. High winds and rain covered the entire Atlantic coast from Norfolk, Va., to Nova Scotia. On the coast north of New York the wind blew fifty to sixty miles an hour, and Block island, which reported eighty miles Sunday, reported eighty-four yesterday. Here the northeast wind rose to thirty-eight miles an hour. A telegram from Atlantic City is as follows:

"The terrific wind and hail storm which began Sunday morning continued all through the night with increasing fury, spreading destruction from end to end of the ocean boulevard. The buildings which succumbed to the terrific onslaught of the waves Sunday night were the United States photograph gallery, Mott's pavilion, Clement's shell store, and a number of small shanties, all between New Jersey and Virginia avenues.

"During the night the work of undermining went on without interruption, and yesterday morning the list of properties destroyed includes Jackson's bath houses and pavilions, which are now fast going to pieces, Adams' bath houses; Johnson's bath houses; the Ulie United States bath houses, and all the smaller booths and pavilions in the vicinity. The Half Way house has been lifted entirely from its foundations, and will probably go to pieces.

At the inlet the destruction is general, and efforts were made to save all movable property. The new wharf of the Yachtsmen's association and other wharves have been demolished.

Brave Work of Volunteer Life Savers.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Capt. Joshua James and a volunteer life saving crew, of Hull, saved twenty-eight persons, comprising the crews of four schooners wrecked on that beach during the storm yesterday. Their efforts were among the most heroic and daring on record. [illegible] Westfield and Mary Thomas, of the schooner Hesperus, were the only persons that drowned in the attempt to save. They were drowned because [illegible] reached them.

Damaged by Flood.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Stony brook overflowed at noon yesterday. The Boston Belting Company's extensive [illegible] of the goods stored thereon had been removed. The amount of the damage can not yet be determined. The lower [illegible] company will probably be compelled to stop the wheel to shut down. Many cellars in the vicinity of the brook near Linden Park are filled with water.

Caused a Train Disaster.

WINTHROP, Me., Nov. 27.—An engine and fifteen freight cars on the Maine Central railroad were derailed yesterday morning near the foot of Lake Maranacook and precipitated into the lake. The engineer, fireman, and a brakeman were badly scalded by escaping steam. High water had undermined the track which was found under several inches of ice.

The Pilot Boats Out in the Storm.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—It is feared that the New York pilot boats, twenty-six in number, and the New Jersey pilot fleet, most of which are at sea, are having a severe experience in the gale. Steamboat travel along the Hudson was practically suspended yesterday. Ferry traffic in the harbor and rivers was also greatly impeded by the storm.

The Official Vote of Ohio.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 27.—The total vote for presidential electors in the state was [illegible] 94. A. G. Mattox leads the Republican with [illegible]. Irving Dwiggins leads the Democrats with [illegible]. Morey's majority is [illegible]. Of the 20,000 upon which so many wagers were made, John W. Ritchey, candidate for clerk at large on the Prohibition ticket, has 4,[illegible], while the highest candidate on the Union Labor ticket received [illegible].

Michigan's Vote.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 27.—The official count of the vote in this state was finished last night, so far as the electors are concerned. The Harrison electors received 236,870, Cleveland, 218,404, Fisk, 30,942, Peters, Labor, 4,542. Harrison's plurality, 22,466. The count on governor shows Luce's plurality to be 17,121, with four counties yet to be returned.

Coney Island Hotels Destroyed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Fire early Monday morning, which originated in the Orient hotel, Coney Island, communicated to the Elberon hotel adjoining, entirely destroying both structures. Loss, $7,000.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkble recovery of Mr. J. E. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds.

Fain Die a Dry Death.

"Why, what put that idea into your head? Of course they do."

"Well, mamma, I s'pose you know, but it always says in the paper when a man gets drownded that 'he sank to rise no more.'"

The great popularity of Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is due to its efficiency, agreeableness and pleasant action. It promptly and thoroughly cures colds, fevers, dyspepsia, costiveness, bad breath, piles, pimples, low spirits, sick and nervous headache, ague, malaria, scrofula, rheumatism, salt rheum and all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Fifty cents of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. It cleanses and tones up the clogged and feverish system. Acceptable to the most delicate stomach. Harmless, prompt and thorough in its action.

Reward and Remuneration.

Just as a friend of ours who lives in Winslow had completed a watering trough by the roadside and stood watching it as it filled with clear, cool water from the spring above, an elderly couple of well-to-do appearance stopped for their horse to drink.

Noting the delight of the animal and realizing the benefit of the contrivance to the public, the lady remarked to Mr. D.:

"The Lord will reward you for this."

"I have no doubt of it, Madam," said Mr. D., with a low bow and a twinkle in his eye, "but I shall make out my bill to the Selectmen."—Waterville (Me.) Mail.

THE PIANO AND THE DAIRY.

For the Bureau of Dairy Information.
By J. H. Monrad.

There is a tendency among our American farmers' daughters to despise the dairy work and many young ladies have pouted at the idea of my asking them how many cows they milked, meaning how many cows were milked on their father's farm.

A few weeks ago I paid a very pleasant visit to a well to do Scotch farmer. There were two sons and two daughters; one son attended to the general farm work the other made the cheese; one daughter attended to the housekeeping while the other looked to it, that the ten milkers who milked the 104 cows do their work well, and, if necessary strip those that are not milked clean. I thought that girl looked quite as well in the morning in her simple dress as when she played the piano to me in the afternoon and her sister sang those old Scotch songs for me. I did not wonder that Burns fell over-much in love with the Scotch lassies. I fear that many girls think it under their dignity, forsooth, to milk their fathers' cows and to make the butter and cheese. I think that they think that work incompatible with refined manners, with singing and with playing the piano, that unlucky ambition to so many unmusical minds. And so they leave their home for a poor boarding house in the large city, and stand behind the counter from early in the morning till late at night, calling themselves sales ladies, while the general public terms them shop girls. Or they teach school, whether they have ability and liking for it or not. Or they become type writers without any special liking for it, receiving small pay and lots of impudence from their fellow clerks. Indeed it is a wonder to me they do not see what a well paid work is lying, so to say, at their feet in the dairy.

It takes an intelligent girl to make a good dairy maid, and a good education makes it easy for her to keep the accounts so as to tell which cow to keep, which to sell, and the musical knowledge comes handy while milking as the cows are fond of listening to the girl crooning a tune while the milk goes foaming into the bucket. On the other hand, a good butter maker should be able to turn the churn at a steady uniform speed, and that comes handy at the piano, where the metronome has been used at the churn as well as at the piano. If any farmer's daughter who reads this and whose father keeps from 15 cows upwards, will take right hold of the matter, and induce her father to allow her a share in the increased profits of the dairy, and if she will test their milk correctly both as to quantity and quality, (she will not deem it below her dignity to see the milk measured and do some herself, if she will pay strict attention to the details,) if she in that way put the same price on her dairy as on her piano, I venture to say that she will be able not only to buy a new piano but also [illegible] afterwards that she will be a [illegible] by not only that new silk [illegible] and spring bonnet, but also have the dairy floor laid with glazed tiles. If can be done, it has been done, and I sincerely hope it will be done again and again in our western states.

A man who has practiced medicine for 40 years, ought to know what he says, read what he says.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19, 188[illegible]

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Gentlemen: I have been in the practice of medicine for more than forty years, and would say that in all my experience, have never prescribed a preparation that I could place with as much confidence of success as Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effects are wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if taken according to directions.

Yours Truly,
L. L. GORSUCH, M. D.
Office, 215 Summit st.

We will give $100 for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured with Hall's Catarrh Cure. Taken internally.

QUEER PEOPLE.

This is the title of the latest, and by all odds the most charming book for little people we have seen. Its fables, or stories, are delightful, but the illustrations are simply immense.

The author, Palmer Cox, is a new star in the juvenile firmament, but he shines with unique brilliancy. His charming fables rival those of the world famed Æsop, and he far outshines that celebrated literary rival by his inimitable illustrations. He dresses up his birds, animals, insects, giants, fairies, goblins, etc., in grotesque style and makes them reason, talk, dance, and cut up all sorts of the oddest pranks imaginable, affording infinite delight as well as excellent instruction to the young. This issue of his book "Queer People" has brought a perfect ovation of praise from the brightest men in the land. For instance, Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, says: "It has set my children wild with delight," and Col. Russell H. Conwell, the famous lecturer, says: "Don't send me another such a book, for I can't get my children to bed."

The famous statesman diplomat, and wit, Sunset Cox, says: "The Queer Papers are simply incomparable," while the distinguished theologian, Dr. Howard Crosby says: "they have the fascination that belongs to Æsop and Uncle Remus," and the venerable poet, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, writes: "I am sorry I have not a nursery full of little folks to enjoy its bright pictures and stories."

Æsop's fables are enjoyed by old and young and are quoted by the greatest orators and surely these equally charming stories, so profusely and exquisitely illustrated will charm young and old for generations to come.

The sale of this book will surprise everybody. It is published by the well known house of Hubbard Bros., Philadelphia, Chicago, and Kansas City, to whom any person desiring an agency should apply.

CONGRESSIONAL STENOGRAPHERS.

The Work They Have To Do and Men Who Are Difficult To Report.

The reporting in the House is managed differently from that in the Senate, and in the former, being a body so much larger and noiser than the Senate, the reporters are compelled to chase around after the members who speak. In a running debate, where members are jumping up in all parts of the hall, it is extremely difficult to catch all they say, yet it is done quite well, and only in times of great excitement and commotion do the stenographers lose their connection.

Over in the Senate the two head stenographers sit at tables near the presiding officer's desk. The chamber being small, they can hear distinctly what is said, and seldom have to call on Senators to supply missing portions of sentences or paragraphs.

Five rapid men do the work in the House who are veterans in the service, and who are so hardened to their work that it looks as if they would never wear out. In the House the five men take turns, relieving each other at the expiration of eight minutes.

They do not write out their notes into long hand themselves, but good souls, where there is an army of less experienced stenographers to whom they can leisurely dictate what they have taken in the hall, and these people in turn write out in long hand the debates.

Nearly every member who makes a speech of five minutes' duration wants to see the manuscript before it goes to the Record office, and this makes it necessary to send the roll of manuscript to the member's house or hotel. It is a big job, and what a member says has to pass through many hands before it is finally issued in the Record.

Usually the stenographers work only twelve out of the twenty four months, although the chief stenographers—that is, the shorthand writers who take the proceedings—are paid annual salaries of $5,000 each. They certainly earn their salaries, and but for the long rest every other year they could not stand the strain.

When statesmen become either excited or enthusiastic they are, as a general rule, rapid talkers. The longer a man is in Congress the more fluent does he become, and some of the Senators who are given to long speeches talk "like a blue streak."

The most dull of Senator by long odds to report is Mr. Plumb of Kansas. He not only rattles away at a lively rate, but chops off his words. He can say more in a shorter space of time than any one in the Senate.

Messrs. Morgan of Alabama and Blair of New Hampshire are next to him in the way of rapid speaking, perhaps. Mr. Hoar has such a twang that he is hard to report, though he speaks slowly and deliberately.

The hardest to report of all the Senators is Mr. Evarts. The old gentleman, so famous for long sentences, is wind broken and his voice is husky and indistinct. He speaks slowly enough, but he is so indistinct these days that people who have heard of his famous an dinner are disappointed when they go to the Senate chamber.

Messrs. Ingalls, Fryer, Vest, Spooner, Blackburn, Edmunds, Butler and others are quite easy to report, as they speak distinctly and deliberately, and nearly all of the best Senatorial orators seem to have followed the advice of a once noted elocutionist, who insisted that it was well for public speakers to "cultivate the pause."

MONEY AND MATRIMONY.

The Frankly Expressed Views of a Wife on the Connection of These Two Things.

I am certain that money, or, rather, the want of it, is at the root of most failures in marriage. We have everything to make us happy but that, and I can assure you it is an evil of no mean growth or limited influence.

My husband is a soldier, and one of the very best and finest gentlemen on God's earth. I, his wife, and in many ways a very good one, for I continue intense economy with really good appearances (as far as they go), and I work very hard, and yet hold my own among the "society" people to whom we belong.

But, oh! if you had any idea of the "drive" that it is to do this. The struggle, I feel, is spoiling me. I am so cantankerous at home, so full of cares, so impatient and snappish, so annoyed at the smallest waste of money, that I am, I know it, often unbearable to my good man.

He would often settle the question, I feel, and let me live alone if we didn't love each other and the child so dearly.

ODD SLIPS IN DISCOURSE

Some Entertaining Instances of Infelicities of Speech.

A lecturer said, all unconscious of his awkward expression:

"I must beg you to give me your undivided attention, indeed, it is absolutely impossible that you could form a true idea of the hideous animal of which we are about to speak, unless you keep your eyes fixed on me."

A certain preacher discoursing upon Bunyan and his works caused a titter among his hearers by exclaiming:

"In these days, my brethren, we want more Bunyans."

Another clergyman pleading earnestly with his parishioners for the construction of a cemetery for their parish, asked them to consider the "deplorable condition of 50,000 Christian Englishmen living without Christian burial."

Still more curious was this clerical slip. A gentleman said to the minister:

"When do you expect to see Deacon S. again?"

"Never," said the reverend gentleman solemnly, "the Deacon is in heaven."

THE VEHICLE OF THE FUTURE.

Prognostications That Make Us Want To Be Young Again.

A recent writer suggests that we shall in the next century, have very little use for horses. He supposes airships to be not only an achievement, but to be as common as wagons are now.

The farmer has then only to hitch a load to his airboat, and lift it clear of trees, and move straight to market.

The effect of navigating the air will, however, be most marked on urban life. Cities will no longer be needed to any such extent as now. The airship, avoiding streets, can make a location in the country as desirable for a great store as one in a city.

Will not also a vast amount of land now needed for highways be given over to tillage? Go ahead and give us the airship.

The Everyday Puzzles of Life.

After a century of hot discussion we are not certain whether coffee is a wholesome stimulant or a deadly poison, whether we should have hot baths or cold or no baths at all, whether we should keep our feet dry or pay no attention to wet feet and soaked clothing, whether tobacco is a blessing or a curse, whether we over-eat or under eat, whether we should eat at night or go to bed hungry, whether we should exercise more or should exercise less, whether we should drink much water or little.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Cure for Sleeplessness.

Is sleeplessness curable? A correspondent who says he has tried the remedy and found it efficacious declares that thinking of a dream and going over and over the scene it presented will induce sleep.

He is entitled to be believed so far as his own experience goes, and at any rate he rightly urges that the expedient of counting numbers or repeating easy flowing verses often, if not always, fails.

In the Art Gallery.

"You want to be careful of that umbrella," said an art dealer to a countryman who was indicating the fine points of a picture to his wife.

"All right, mister," responded the agriculturist, "I won't let go of that umbrel till I git back home."—Utica Observer.

Variety the Spice of Life.

To an old couple, who boasted that they had lived man and wife for fifty years, and never had a dispute, the listener replied: "What a doleful, monotonous life you must have had!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

A GREAT MAGAZINE.

The Century for 1889.

"THE question has often been asked, "to what does The Century owe its great circulation?" The Christian Union once answered this by the statement that "it has been fairly won, not by advertising schemes, but by the excellence which characterizes it in every department." In their announcements for the coming year the publishers state that it has always been their desire to make The Century the one indispensable periodical of its class, so that whatever other publication might be desired in the family, The Century could not be neglected by those who wish to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to culture. And the unprecedented circulation of the magazine would seem to be the response of the public to this intention.

With the November number The Century begins its thirty-seventh volume. Two great features of the magazine which are to continue throughout the new volume are already well known to the public, the Lincoln history and the papers on "Siberia and the Exile System." The first of these, written by Messrs. Nicolay and Hay, President Lincoln's private secretaries, contains the inside history of the dark days of the war, as seen from the White House.

THE SIBERIAN PAPERS,

by George Kennan, are attracting the attention of the civilized world. The Chicago Tribune says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." As is already known, copies of The Century entering Russia have these articles torn out by the customs officials on the frontier.

DURING 1889

The Century will publish the most important art feature that has yet found place in its pages. It is the result of four years' work of Mr. Timothy Cole, the leading magazine engraver of the world, in the galleries of Europe, engraving from the originals the greatest pictures by the old masters. A series of papers on Ireland, its customs, landscapes, etc., will appear, and there are to be illustrated articles on Bible scenes, treating especially the subjects of the International Sunday-School Lessons. George W. Cable will write "Strange, True Stories of Louisiana." There will be novelettes and short stories by leading writers, occasional articles on war subjects (supplemental to the famous "War Papers" by General Grant and others, which have been appearing in The Century), etc., etc.

The Century costs four dollars a year, and it is published by The Century Co., of New York, who will send a copy of the full prospectus to any one on request.

F. E. C. Medicine Co., Rochester, N. Y.—Dear Sirs—Pardon me the liberty of addressing strangers, but you are indeed benefactors of mankind. Your medicine is a boon and blessing to man and more especially women. It renews the very life principle in the system and takes away the terrible scourge of woman and in the place of weakness brings strength. It is indeed doing wonders for the afflicted and no one need to suffer from the terrible drain on the system arising from a disordered state of the kidneys or from female weakness, that will try this, for it is sure. Hoping you will not consider this letter impertinent, I remain, DON'T USE THE KNIFE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.—Doctors gave up my wife's incurable and her knee bone must be removed, but it is saved by the use of Steketee's Neuralgia Drops. The undersigned hereunto do say what a remarkable cure Steketee's Neuralgia Drops done in curing the intense pain of neuralgia. I had been troubled with pain in my jaw for a long time. I consulted a skillful physician in this city. He said that my tooth was incurable unless my jaw bone was removed. I called on Mr. Steketee for advice. He duplicate bottle and commenced my treatment with his Neuralgia Drops. As a result of using one half bottle of said Neuralgia Drops entirely cured me, and saved the use of a knife or tooth.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Thanksgiving Day was enjoyably passed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knettle. As customary for some years, this family comprised of four brothers and four sisters, all married, alternately with each other, and upon the eighth consecutive year all of these brothers and sisters are found in the home of a brother, or a sister enjoying an annual social feast. "Behold how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." The widowed mother was also present; some of the grand children, also a great grandchild. But absent from this gathering was Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Soule, now residing near Farmington, Michigan. The good woman of the house spared nothing in having a well prepared dinner that all might partake of with thanksgiving. Next Thanksgiving day all are to meet in the home of Mrs. Lyman Hause. Can it be said in the next annual gathering, as it could in the last, death has not entered our circle during the year?

This is a beautiful December morning, from all the threatening of storm that has been in the clouds for over a week; and last evening it seemed certain that we would look upon the ground all white this morning, and behold there is no mark left of snow or rain. Three years ago to-day winter closed in covering the earth about us with snow Dec. 34. Two years ago winter came Nov. 20th and one year ago winter came Nov. 15th.

There is much added to the appearance of our Britton, in the Union Block. Who will next be the men of business to fill those new stores?

We are having remarkably fine weather in these parts for the time of year, and all who have business on the roads, we think, must enjoy it as the wheeling is extra good.

Dr. Swartout has moved his family into the village and occupies the rooms over his store.

I. S. Osborne has rented his dwelling house, just built, to Frank Rose of Tecumseh; his goods are here waiting for the completion of the house. Mr. Rose has a place in the depot office, learning the art of telegraphy.

Mrs. Osgood, mother of Elmer and Will, spent the last week with her sons in Britton.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. John Cheever on Thursday, Dec. 13th, at 2:30 P. M. All interested in the improvement of humanity are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Samuel Gibson is laid up with a severely scalded foot.

Will Rinn, the village blacksmith, has been quite unwell for several days.

Our village depot has been greatly improved in its internal appearance, by a new coat of paint. Thanks to the railroad company.

Several parties have recently been exploring our thriving town, with eyes open to business; they have expressed themselves as favorably impressed with the flattering prospects here, and as soon as the new stores are ready they are likely to be occupied. Offers have been made for the purchase of some of the stores in the building, but the owners are not anxious to sell. However, other business lots, equally good, can be had; let those who want, come and buy and build for themselves.

Your correspondent was favored as an honored guest at a recent meeting of the Grange in South Macon. It was the anniversary of the general organization of the Patrons of Husbandry. The gathering was large and delightfully social. The Grange in Macon has been organized about 13 years. Many of the original members are gone, and some have removed to a distance, but, though old and far away, many of the original members were there in all the glee of vigorous and happy youth, Dr. Howell, W. H. Osborne, Mr. Morley, Adams and others, now of Tecumseh. There was a fine feast of musical and literary entertainment, followed by a most sumptuous dinner. Farmers live by eating and by eating that which is good. The Grange in Macon consists of a wide awake enterprising set of men and women of large benevolence and hospitality.

Used one bottle of Mother's Friend before my first confinement. It is a wonderful remedy. Looked and felt so well afterwards friends remarked it. Would not be without Mother's Friend for any consideration.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

At a time when it is seriously asked whether the tariff issue did it, would it not be well for those who are engaged in this particular line of investigation to go a step further and ask how the President and the Democrat party could, if they had wished, have escaped that issue? Touching the condition of affairs which had to be met, the Buffalo Courier, in the course of a very able leading editorial, says, and says with perfect truth

"When the Fiftieth Congress came together last December, it met a financial condition of the Government unlike that which had been met by any other new Congress since the war. This condition was a large and increasing surplus and no outstanding bonds subject to redemption at the call of the Secretary of the Treasury. The Government was subjected to the necessity of doing one of two things—first, reducing the revenue by reducing the taxation; or, second, buying bonds at a premium fixed by the bond holders.

"If the President and the Democratic party in Congress had adopted a policy of drifting along, with a view of accepting as an affirmative policy the use of the surplus indefinitely in the purchase of bonds at a premium fixed by the bond holders, both the President and his party in Congress would have inevitably and justly been subjected to most aggressive adverse criticism on the part not only of the Republican leaders and newspapers, but also of the business men of the country. This criticism would have had a powerful political effect that would have resulted in demoralizing the Democratic party. The party would have been called the "bondholders' party;" the Administration would have been accused of working in the interest of the bondholders and of dodging the tax-reduction question for purely selfish and partisan reasons. There would have been simple chaos in the Democratic ranks throughout the country.

"But it is said that the President should have recommended in general terms a reduction of the surplus by a reduction of taxation, and that he should have avoided any specific discussion of the tariff question in his message. Let us consider a moment the practical effect of that policy, if it had been adopted.

"The chief topic of discussion during the Congressional campaign of 1886 was the tariff question. The result of the election again put the Democrats in control of the House. They were pledged to the policy of reducing tariff taxation. The Ways and Means Committee was opposed, with a view to the redemption of that pledge. The Democratic party throughout the country expected that every effort would be made to redeem the pledge. For ten years since the end of the war the Democrats had controlled the House of Representatives, and they had steadily failed to put a tariff reduction bill even thro the House. The great rank of the Democratic party, and of independent tariff reformers who sympathized with the party because of its tariff-reform pledges, were getting tired of these repeated failures. The Ways and Means Committee of the new House was looked to for action.

"If when that committee met last December a message from the President containing simply milk and water recommendations respecting the tariff had been put before it, what would have been the result?

"Chaos, bitterness, dissension. And why?

"As in duty bound, and in accordance with their convictions as to wise public policy, and in accordance with the general expectation of the people the majority members of the Ways and Means Committee would have set to work on a tax-reduction bill. The preparation of this bill would have necessarily involved the tariff question in all its phases. The tariff reform members would have been just irritated by the failure of the administration to take a positive, clearly defined position. The Randall Democrats would have said to them, in effect: 'Better follow the lead of the President. He evidently thinks that nothing material should be done with the tariff before the Presidential election. You should respect his wishes.'

"The Republicans would have talked in a similar strain; but, taking advantage of the Democratic dilemma, they would have gone further. They would have accused the President of cowardice; of evading his duty with a hope of smoothing the road to a reelection; of failing to meet a financial emergency with a clear-cut policy; of sacrificing principle to expediency; of working in the interests of bondholders and so forth. In the eyes of a great many Democrats, this criticism would have been very effective nobody can doubt.

"In the midst of all this wrangling, irritation and confusion a tariff bill would have been reported from the Ways and Means Committee. No matter what the provisions of this bill might have been, it would undoubtedly have encountered fatal opposition in the House. For purely tactical party reasons, the Republicans would have opposed it. The Randall Democrats would have been reenforced by timid, time serving Democratic members desirous of avoiding a contest which would have appeared to be against the judgment of the Administration.

"Meanwhile, the Democratic press of the country would have been torn into factions; some newspapers sharply criticising the President for failing to sustain a large majority of his party in Congress; others earnestly entreating the Ways and Means Committee to postpone the tariff reduction to the next session.

"There would have been quarreling in the Democratic ranks all along the line. Is there any reasonable doubt of it?

"The tariff bill would have been defeated or dropped. The tariff reformers, composing the overwhelming majority of the party, would have held the President responsible for this latest failure—the sixth failure of the Democratic majority to put a tariff reduction bill through the House after the reporting of the bill from the Ways and Means Committee.

"The bitter wrangle at Washington would have been transferred to the National Convention, and the party would have entered upon the campaign discordant and dispirited, ashamed of itself, and the larger part of it thoroughly dissatisfied with the Administration.

"How different was the course of events which followed the wise action of the President. Responding eagerly and gladly to the eloquent and patriotic appeal of the tariff message the Democrats of the House, with but few exceptions, rallied to the support of the Ways and Means Committee, and after a superb battle they redeemed the oft-repeated pledges of their party by passing a tariff reduction measure. For the first time since the war the Democratic newspapers of the country were practically united in a great national contest. It was a magnificent fight, an honorable and honest fight, and the Democratic party, we firmly believe, came much nearer victory on November than it would have come had President Cleveland not sent his bold, manly message to Congress last December.

"The message fairly represented the principles of the party as proclaimed year after year in National conventions, in Congressional debate, in newspaper discussion. By being true to those principles the President not only did that which was right within itself, but that which was politically expedient.

"Under the circumstances, defeat is far more honorable to President Cleveland and to the Democratic party than success would have been if achieved by evasion and a shirking of duty in a public emergency. But success could not have been thus achieved.

"Though defeated, the Democratic party, as a party, will never regret its tariff fight of 1888, and it will ever be rightfully proud of the part taken therein by Grover Cleveland."

The fountain of perpetual youth was one of the dreams of antiquity. It has been well nigh realized in Ayers Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood, gives vitality to all the bodily functions, and thus restores to age much of the vigor and freshness of youth.

I have had nasal catarrh for ten years so bad that there were great sores in my nose and one place was eaten through. I got Ely's Cream Balm. Two bottles did the work. My nose and head are well. I feel like another man.—C. S. McMillen, Jackson, Co. Mich.

For all forms of nasal catarrh which is the dryness of the air passages with what is commonly called "snuffing up" especially when going to bed, Ely's Cream Balm gives immediate relief. Its benefit to me has been priceless.—A. G. Case, M. D., Mansfield, Ills.

WHAT ON EARTH

Is the reason people will not, can not, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? No medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BEGGS' BLOOD PURIFIER & BLOOD MAKER, and every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing.

HEAD TOWARD THE NORTH.

An American Physician Thinks This the Right Way To Sleep Well.

There is no doubt in my mind that the belief that human beings should sleep with their bodies lying north and south has its foundation in true scientific facts.

Each human system has magnetic poles—one positive and one negative. Now, it is true that some persons have the positive pole in the head, and the negative pole in the feet, and vice versa. In order that the person sleeping should be in perfect harmony with the magnetic phenomena of the earth, the head, if it possess the positive pole, should lie to the south, or, if the feet possess the positive pole, the head would lie to the north.

The positive pole should always lie opposite to the magnetic centre of the continent, and thus maintain a magnetic equilibrium. The positive pole of the person draws one way, but the magnetic pole of the earth draws the other way, and forces the blood toward the feet, affects the iron in the system, tones up the nerves, and makes sleep refreshing and invigorating.

But if the person sleeps the wrong way and fails to become magnetically en rapport with the earth, he will then probably be too magnetic, and he will have a fever resulting from the magnetic forces working too fast, or he will not be magnetic enough, and the great strain will cause a feeling of lassitude, sleep will not be refreshing, and in the morning he will have no more energy than there is in a cake of soap.

Some persons may scoff at these ideas, but the greatest scientific men of the world have studied the subject. Only recently the French Academy of Science made experiments upon the body of a guillotined man which go to prove that each human system is in itself an electric battery, one electrode being represented by the head, the other by the feet.

The body was taken immediately after death and placed upon a pivot, to move as it might. After some vacillation the head portion turned toward the north, the body then remaining stationary. One of the professors turned it half way round, but it soon regained its original position, and the same result was repeatedly obtained until organic movements finally ceased.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THOMAS F. MARSHALL.

As Seen in His Prime and afterward When a Wreck.

I never saw Mr. Marshall but twice, once when he was in the meridian of his intellectual strength, the accomplished and magnetic orator, and again when he had fallen from his high estate to be the slave of intemperance, an object of painful commiseration.

A few days after the unsuccessful efforts made in the House in 1837 to pass a resolution of censure against John Quincy Adams for his temerity in presenting a petition from slaves, in which effort Mr. Marshall took a leading part, I happened to be seated with some Southern members of Congress at the dinner table of one of the Washington hotels when Mr. Marshall came in.

It seemed that Mr. Adams had said or done something that day which had irritated these gentlemen, and as Mr. Marshall was taking his seat at the table one of them exclaimed:

"Well, Marshall, the old devil has been at work again; you must take him in hand."

"Not I," replied Mr. Marshall, with a decisive shake of the head; "I have been gored once by the d——d old bull, and have had enough of him. If there is to be any more of this kind of work, it must be undertaken by somebody else. The old devil, as you call him, is a match for a score of such fellows as you and I."

Many years after I saw Mr. Marshall in Washington. He was pointed out to me in the Lake House, in Chicago, sitting upon a bench with the messenger boys, and talking to them incoherently—a mental and physical wreck.

He had joined temperance societies, and made temperance speeches equal to the best of Gough's, for, like Gough, he spoke from his own experience. His description of the terrible next morning following the night's debauch was as truthful and touching as it was graphic.

For months together he seemed to have conquered his enemy, a thirst for intoxicating drink, but its hold had become too strong to be overcome. He resolved, and re-resolved, and died the victim of alcohol.

I have known many victims of intemperance, but none who have fallen from so distinguished a position, whose ruin was so lamentable and complete.—H. McCulloch in Scribner's.

VARIETY IN LAUGHTER.

The Significance of Different Modes of Cachinnation.

An authority on laughter says with more or less reason:

It has been observed that laughter is indicative of a particular temper and character, according to the sound of the vowel that prevails in cachinnation.

Persons that laugh in a broad Latin "A" are open hearted, honest people, fond of noisy jocundity, but peripatic of volatile mood. Excessive jerking laughter, however, is an evidence of vivacity. Those laughing in a dry "e" are respectable, but little expansive, and a hard lot of people.

When the Italian "I" prevails there prevails also a phlegmatic melancholy temper.

Timorous, unsteady people also those embued with malignity laugh in a kind of sewing "i."

Sand To Run the Senate.

THE MANIFESTATIONS OF LOVE.

How is love to manifest itself? In the simplest way possible: By carrying out in practice, what, as an ethical thinker and a Christian, you must believe in theory; by treating every man as a brother—as good as yourself; perhaps a little better.

Stamp out that bias of mind so natural to all finite creatures, which leads them to overestimate their own good qualities, real or imaginary, and underestimate those of their neighbor.

Avoid criticism, especially that species of it which delights in finding faults. Seek in all things to enjoy what is good, and let the evil drop; and if you will judge begin with yourself, following Schiller's rule: "Judge yourself severely, your neighbor leniently."

Further, seize every opportunity of performing acts of kindness, however small, to your fellow beings, especially to your inferiors (Rom. xii., 16).

Be like the sun, ever giving and ever dispensing, witching blossoms out of the buds by the light and warmth of its rays, and even, as Shakespeare has it, "kissing carrion without offense."

Love, in its common form, exhibits itself in an interchange of kindred sentiments and kindly deeds among equals, when directed toward inferiors it is elevated into reverence, and culminates in worship.

There may be much amiability but no true greatness of character without reverence. As we gain a notion of the grandeur of the physical world by looking from the low ground up to the sky cleaving chains of the Alps or the Andes, so our measure of moral greatness grows by the admiring contemplation of what is above us. This is what Plato meant when he called wonder a philosophical affection.

Though any fool may gaze at an air-balloon, the man who does not cherish a habitual wonder for the grandeur of the universe is like a deaf man who does not hear thunder, or a blind man who cannot see the sun.—Young Man.

Do you feel languid, low spirited, careless and miserable, both physically and mentally, have poor appetite, frequent headaches, bitter or bad taste in the mouth, nervous prostration, and do you know what the matter is? You have torpid liver, associated with dyspepsia. You need Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic. You need it to-day. Buy of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. MESSRS. PROCTER & GAMBLE, CINCINNATI, O.

GENTLEMEN:—Although a stranger to you, and my testimonial entirely unnecessary, as it certainly is unsolicited, yet I take great pleasure in testifying to the excellence of your IVORY SOAP, and thanking you for putting it on the market at so low a price.

It has entirely supplanted the use of Castile and other fine soaps in my household for several years past, being in no way inferior and from fifty to seventy-five per cent. more economical.

A good test I find for the purity of a soap is to try it with a brush for cleansing the teeth, and the taste of the Ivory so used is perfectly sweet and clean.

Very Respectfully Yours, W. S. BAKER, M.D.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

WHEN JIM WAS DEAD

"Hit served him right," the natiors sed,
An' bused him for the life he led,
An' him a-lying thar at rest
With not a rose upon his breast!
Ah! monny cruel words they sed
When Jim was dead.

"Jes' killed hisself." "Too mean ter live."
They didn't hav' one word ter give
Of comfort as they hovered near
An' gazed on Jim a-lying thar!
"Thar, all!" they sed, "ef ever!" they sed,
"He's better dead!"

But suddenly the room grew still,
While God's white sunshine seemed to fill
The dark place with a gleam of life
An' one of the dead girls heart-strings writhed
An' with her lips she gently set to his,
As tho' he knew an' felt the kiss
She sobbed—a touchin' sight ter see—

"Ah! Jim was always good ter me!"
I tell you when that cum ter light
It kinder set the head man right.
An' round the weepin' woman they
Throwed kindly arms of love that day,
And mingled with her own they shed
The tenderest tears—when Jim was dead.

THE DREAD OF DEATH

Facing the Monster without Fear—Observations of a Writer Who Has Seen Many Persons Pass Away.

It is singular how small is the proportion of persons who have witnessed the closing scene of the human tragedy. Even physicians do not see their patients expire so frequently as would be thought. But what they see is sufficient to strip death of its consternation.

Their presence at the unmasking of the fancied monster prepares them for the inevitable. When their time comes they are at least resigned through the silent portal. They are no braver than others, but they have learned not to be scared at spectres.

Very few men, in truth, are afraid to die when the point comes. They do not, as may be supposed, relish it, and they are anxious as a rule, to live, so long as their chances are good and they do not suffer. When suffering grows acute their desire dwarfs (few of us but prefer death to pain), and when they lose hope they yield themselves without a murmur.

I have seen, I repeat, an extraordinary number of persons die, and my observations and experience contradict the theories and opinions on the subject. At first I was surprised at the evidence of my own senses; afterward I was convinced that they revealed the actual truth.

I remember, though but a small boy at the time, the first man who passed away before my eyes. He was patient, tranquil, philosophic, while conscious of his doom. I had expected him to be terrified, to perish in agony, and the circumstances made an indelible impression on my budding mind.

I have seen the last moments of delicate, highly nervous women who would shriek at the sight of a spider and who could not bear the mention of death. Any one who had known them would have thought that their closing scenes must have been distressing.

They longed to live in the beginning, but as they ebbed away and were conscious of the fact, peace and renunciation came to them. No hero of a hundred fights could have borne lingering illness and its end more serenely.

Women, weak and timid as they seem, horrified as they often are, at the grim monarch while remote, are calm and intrepid when he stands at their side. As he advances to see them they do not blanch or sigh or complain.

I have wondered how persons who had appeared to be afraid of everything would meet their fate, and yet they have met it with equal mind and becoming fortitude.—Justin Henry Browne, in Forum.

OATMEAL OR NOT OATM'EAL?

An Attempt To Settle an Important Domestic Question.

You can get all the opinion you want on both sides of a question nowadays.

Oatmeal had not long been reputed to be a healthful food when some physician arose to deny it and to assert that it produced dyspepsia.

Allowance is always to be made in such a question for the variation of human stomachs and constitutions, so that what may be good food for one person may not be for another.

The truth about oatmeal for the generality of persons (and they are the only persons you can speak for) is that if it is eaten in only a partially cooked condition it is not healthful, and neither is flour, corn meal and many other articles of food.

Indigestion and acidity of stomach are caused for some people by the eating of sugar or other sweets on oatmeal, and they get the same effect if they eat these sweets on rice or bread. Cream, too, may be too much fat for a sensitive stomach if put on oatmeal. In these cases it is not the oatmeal, but either its insufficient preparation or the addition of an improper food, that causes the stomach trouble.

If a person will eat a moderate amount of oatmeal cooked and prepared as his needs may demand, there can be no question that it is healthful, digestible and highly nutritious.

CARRYING THE CANE OR UMBRELLA

The accompanying will, I am confident, be of interest to my readers of the dude persuasion. It is a serious matter this carrying the cane or umbrella wisely and well.

It will be noted that the popular impression that a cane should be carried grasped with both hands and in a "present arms" position is erroneous.

It will also be seen that the elevation of the stick with one hand so that the head comes in exact line with the mouth, thus presenting an easy solution of what is popularly known as "nursing the cane head" is equally wrong.

This from a man who is "over there" where he can see that of which he writes gives emphasis to his statement.

"Always carry an umbrella or a cane with a large head. But the manner of carrying these, that is the most important item of my article on 'form.'

"I have observed this very carefully, and all styles are proscribed but this one. Turn the head of your umbrella or cane to the rear as you bring it up to your side at right angles with your body and seize hold of it about a foot from the end.

"Never take hold of it in the middle or allow the head to appear in front. You would be voted a hireling at once.

OUR FAMILIAR FRIEND THE RAT.

The black and brown rats are particularly deserving of notice, and are the most widely distributed over the world. It is not known where or how they were introduced into Europe first, but it must have been in recent times, as the ancients did not know them.

They both appear to be natives of the central part of Asia. The brown rat found its way into Europe in the beginning of the eighteenth century, and reached Britain and the Western countries of Europe about the middle of that epoch.

The brown rat is larger and more powerful than the black rat, and they are deadly foes. The brown rat has succeeded in causing an almost total disappearance of the black rat in places where it was very numerous.

According to Mr. Rodewell's theory the manner in which the brown rat has supplanted its black foe is by love instead of war. The browns being the stronger carry off the females of the blacks by force, and thus he accounts for the curious kind of parti-colored offspring which may be found in France.

These rats infest ships, and so are carried to the most distant parts of the world, some of them getting ashore at every port and establishing new colonies.

The black rat is nearly seven inches long, and the brown rat grows to be ten inches, with a tail eight inches long. Both species are extremely prolific, producing from ten to fourteen at a birth. When they are pressed by hunger they do not hesitate to devour the weaker of their kind.

The rat's never-failing appetite is especially useful in devouring animal and vegetable substances, the putrefaction of which would otherwise be productive of pestilence. It is said that the visits of the plague to Western Europe and Britain have ceased from the time when rats became plentiful.

Their sense of smell is very acute, so much so that ratcatchers are careful to glove their hands when setting their traps.

The professional ratcatcher in England wears a brass image of a rat as a sign of his business. The ways and means of catching them are a professional secret.

They procure them alive and sell them to ratpit keepers. These pitkeepers have a sort of hole where they let the rats loose and dogs are set on them. Crowds of boys and men pay to see this cruel sport.

The skin of rats is made into gloves in Paris, and in Siberia there is a field mouse that stores up such quantities of dried roots and other food to last through the long winter of that country that half-starved people there hunt their nests and carry off most of the food for their own use.

A troop of trained rats were exhibited some time ago, dressed like men and women. They walked on their hind legs and went through a sort of play, one act of which was to hang a cat and dance around the body.

CUSTOM-HOUSE INSPECTRESSES.

Women Who Make Female Smugglers Very Unhappy.

Passing the New York Sub-Treasury recently I noticed near the entrance a number of young women whose appearance was so peculiar that it immediately arrested my attention. If the young reader should ask me what that peculiarity was I could hardly explain it.

Perhaps it might be termed a free manner that indicated disregard for observation. They had a cool audacity which, though not brazen, was bold enough to face any opposition, and though I could see at a glance that they were not stage players, yet it was evident that they were in public life, and could be at home even before a crowd.

I saw them step up to the cashier's window, where each presented a check and drew the money and then I learned that they were the Cust-on House inspectresses, who were collecting their month's pay.

No wonder they had such nonchalant, self-possessed faces! These are the women that could take a passenger into a private room and strip her sufficiently to reveal fraud. These are the women who find laces pocketed in bustles and diamonds concealed in tresses of hair, and I need hardly say that they are the terror of smugglers.

In a recent case they found a passenger wearing a petticoat that weighed twenty-five pounds, being made double so as to carry smuggled goods.

These inspectresses are among the most useful public servants and they have almost broken up the once extensive system of woman's smuggling which men could not do, for Shakespeare says, "to make a sweet lady sad is a sour offense."

OLD RUBBERS.

Despised Articles of Considerable Commercial Value.

The value of old rubbers of the first-class ranges from $50 to $100 a ton, delivered at the railway depot in the city of the buyer. Many retailers throw old rubbers away or sell them to junk men at one-half cent a pound or $10 a ton, when, by saving and saving them up, they could sell them to manufacturers at from five to ten times as much.

A number of manufacturing firms have issued a circular to the effect that in the future old rubber boots and shoes will be expected to be backed free from all other material, and no articles, hose or belting will be accepted. Leather and iron-bottomed boots will be taken at one-fourth price, arctics at one-half price, hose at a very small price, while belting and clothing are of no value.

Gummy bagging, when used for the covering of bales in fair quantities, will be paid for at the full price of shoes, while waste carpets or other material or extra bagging used in baling, will be weighed out as tare. All printers rolls, leather shoes, boots, rags, iron, dirt, etc., will be weighed out and deducted from the bill.

Retailers who offer old rubbers in tenders can sell to any manufacturer in the country, and at prices that will pay him to save his old rubbers.—St. Louis Leather Gazette.

A Literal Reading.

The firm received a note the other day from a Vermont lady who had read the announcement, and asked them to send a fur-lined one to her address.—Yonkers Statesman.

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Cady Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and now able to do all my own housework and owe my thanks to Electric Bitters. I believe they renewed my youth, and for improved completely all disease and pain."

An Unfinished Appearance.

They met a man with a club foot, at whom the child looked a little wonderingly as he passed and then laughed.

"You must not laugh at him," said the governess.

"Why not?"

"God made that man."

"Humph!" said the child, "it must have been the first man he made!"

Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is not a stimulant but a nerve food, restoring nerve force lost by sickness or excessive mental work or the use of liquor, opium, morphine or tobacco. It supplies food for nerve tissues and by its gentle aperative action, removes all restraint from the secretive organs, hence curing all diseases of stomach and liver. Dr. Geo. Ferguson will supply the genuine Red Clover Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

Great Cause for Gratitude.

"Madam, I have come to thank you," murmured a tramp to a Hawley street woman yesterday afternoon.

"What have I done for you?" asked the woman surprised.

"You refused to give me one of those dumplings you had for dinner yesterday."

"Yes, I remember," she replied impatiently.

"And you gave one to an old man who cleaned up your door yard."

"True again. He was as industrious as you were lazy, and deserved it."

"Madam," continued the tramp solemnly, "I owe you my life. It killed him."—Binghamton Republican.

Nothing is more common, nor less true, than for physicians to tell patients in the first stages of heart disease that the trouble is only nervous, etc., and of no account. CALIFORNIA LETTER.

The Ranch National spoken of in my last letter as being purchased by the Kimmel Brothers is mostly valley and mesa land bordering on the bay for a distance of three miles or more, and seen in the dry season it appeared like a barren tract of land, except in the valleys, and here vegetation nearly all dried up. There was no water only by sinking wells, except from the winter rains—wells were deep and expensive to sink.

The Kimmels conceived the idea of utilizing the bay and harbor, by building towns and improving the land. They thought that most kinds of fruit could be successfully grown here, and they began experimenting and demonstrated the fact that most of the tropical and semi-tropical fruits would grow to perfection. Quite a number of pioneers came in and bought small tracts of land along the valleys and began raising fruit, but as water was necessary they had to dig wells and erect wind mills, and lay pipes, purchase trees, etc. As there was no rail roads they had to depend upon water transportation, which made a beginning expensive, but they persevered and have had their reward in seeing this comparatively barren wilderness "bud and blossom as the rose."

The Kimmels had the Ranch surveyed and a town site laid off. While surveying and running up the Sweetwater Valley they came to a narrow gorge or canyon, about six miles back from the bay, where the nearly perpendicular walls of solid rock rose over 100 feet high and was less than 70 feet apart at the base, and above the gorge the valley opened again extensively. Through this canyon ran the Sweetwater river, which after it left this canyon dried up and no water ran after the winter rains ceased. In this narrow gorge Mr. Kimmel conceived the idea of constructing a dam to form a reservoir to hold the water for the purpose of irrigating this large tract of land. As they had no means of their own to carry out their project they labored to induce capitalists to come here and develop the recourses of this country, but without success until about six years ago, and now, after fifteen years of hard labor they find their efforts crowned with success in the building of the railroad, the building of two large cities, and the completion of one of the best, if not the best, water systems there is in the whole country, and find themselves rich men.

About fifteen years ago, the Kimmels formed a company of such local capital as they had here, to develop this water project and to get a railroad built to the bay. They tried to induce capitalists to come here and build the road on the resorvoir. They thought they saw a great fortune for this section, but failed in their efforts to get capitalists to undertake the task. About six years ago, one of the Kimmels went to Boston and laid the matter before some Boston capitalists and finally by offering them the bay port and 17,000 acres of land if they would build a road through the country and make this their terminal point, and locate their shops here, induced them to send out a man to investigate the matter, who was so favorably impressed of the feasibility of the plan and future prospects of this region, that he reported favorably and the contract was consummated, and the result was the completion of the Santa Fe R. R. to this place and the completion of the water system.

The building of the Sweet Water dam was began Nov. 17, 1886, and completed April 7, 1888, at a cost, including the laying of the pipes, of over $1,000,000. The banks where the dam is built, is of solid rock from base to summit, the dam is built in the segment of a circle, the arch being up the stream, the rock banks were excavated so the ends of the dam could be built into them. The dam is 76 feet long and 46 feet thick at the base, and 56 feet long and 12 feet thick at the top and 96 feet high from the foundation. The reservoir forms a lake three miles long and three-fourths wide; it will hold water enough to cover 12,000 acres of land one foot deep. It receives the water from over 30 miles of watershed. It is estimated that there will be an abundance of water to supply Chula-Vista, National City and the surrounding country with an abundance for both domestic and irrigation purposes. The water is under pressure; it has been tested through 200 feet of 2½ inch hose, with a ¾ inch nozzle, a stream was thrown 70 feet high; it was also tested, with four streams at once, through 50 feet of hose and a ¾ in nozzle each, with equal results. It was demonstrated that we had an efficient fire protection at an expense only for horse and appliances, the elevation of the reservoir above the town furnishes the pressure, the dam is over 7 miles from the terminus of the water supply. This is a gigantic enterprise carried to a successful completion.

There is one incident in connection with this work worthy of mention. A man named Pat Logan commenced the first day and worked until it was completed. He never lost a day and never drew a dollar of his wages, and when the work was done he had all his checks for his pay in his pockets. He was appointed keeper of the dam at a good salary in view of his faithfulness.

My next will contain an account of the improvements of the bay region, and will be followed with an account of the resources and productions of the county. A. D. STOCKING

Destroying Weeds.

One of the uncertain factors in butter making is the special influence of the weeds in our pastures. In some cases so called weeds may impart a fine aromatic flavor as in certain Swedish and Norwegian as well as in Swiss alpine pastures, but as a rule the effect is injurious. For this reason the BUREAU OF DAIRY INFORMATION prints the following article from the "Country Gentleman," and hopes the readers will scan it carefully and act upon it when the time of action arrives.

The philosophy as well as the practice of the best modes for destroying the weeds which interfere with the growth of farm and garden crops, is imperfectly understood by too many cultivators. A common course largely pursued is to waight until the weeds have grown several inches high, and then to attack them with plow, hoe harrow. Sometimes they are allowed to ripen seeds, and thus to provide for an abundant new crop another season, even when destroyed for the present year. But intelligent farmers and gardeners have learned a better way. They have found by theory and practice that young weeds are far more easily exterminated, when as yet they are nothing but tender white sprouts just ready to reach the surface, then after they have acquired large and tough stems and branches; and the farm and garden crops make a much better growth with nothing but clean and yellow soil to grow in, than when smothered with a dense mass of weeds. Pulverizing the surface frequently, and thus keeping it constantly clean, is found to be much cheaper than struggling against a horde of strong foreigners which already have possession. This work is accomplished by the use of the labor saving tools. The slant-tooth harrow with its numerous fine teeth, repeatedly used at the right time to a day, makes an easy and wholesome destruction of the sprouting seeds, the cultivated crop having already grown sufficiently to be uninjured by the passing teeth, whether it be in the young corn field, the potato patch, or in the wheat or oats. The same result is reached by the use of the steel rake in the garden.

The common rule, that all weeds may be destroyed if some months they are not allowed to breathe through their leaves, is a good one, and continued cultivation to keep them constantly under the soil will, therefore, extirpate them. It is, of course, quite necessary, that no intervening respite, even of a single day, be given them at any time, or they will recover their loss. But different weeds require unlike treatment. Annual weeds, which multiply by the million through their seeds, and in no other way are to be met in a different manner from creeping rooted perennials. Weeds with large seeds will sprout when buried at a greater depth than minute ones. Stirring the soil will therefore reach them at a greater depth, and a foul soil filled with them will be more quickly cleansed by cultivation than when infested with fine seeds. The latter will not sprout unless brought quite near the surface, and the operation must, therefore, be repeated many times to get them all out. This is the reason that successive seasons are often required to cleanse foul land. Plowing will not eradicate them, for a very heavy furrow-slice only turns under again what ought to come to the shallow surface. Repeated surface stirring in connection with plowing is necessary. It is the small seeds of the purslane which render this weed so difficult to eradicate; and although only an annual, it will retain possession of the ground for years. Its seeds are produced in vast numbers, and when the plants are cut up and carried away, they drop enough for an abundant growth another season, and the soil thus becomes thoroughly infested. The difficulty is increased by its tenacity of life, and simply cutting the stems does not kill it.

Perennial rooted running weeds, which increase chiefly under ground, and which the scythe or mower prevents from dropping their seeds, like quack grass or Canada thistles, are not to be treated with this fine surface work, but they may be taken in hand with the plow or coarse harrow and cut and buried at several inches depth, to prevent the stems and leaves from reaching the light. Canada thistles, for example, if merely cut above the top of the ground, will spring up in a few days with all their vigor; but if turned under well with the plow, they will require some weeks to reach the light, and successive plowings to keep them constantly smothered will finish the work. Quack grass requires both plow and harrow, and more unremitting treatment.

Annual weeds increase and spread chiefly in cultivated ground; perennials and creeping weeds mostly in meadows and pastures. Some of the latter are crowded out by a dense growth of grass and clover, but with most of them it becomes necessary to plow the ground and to treat them as already mentioned.

Much labor may be saved, and much disappointment prevented in attemps to eradicate weeds, by studying the character of the different classes, and soils may be more easily and thoroughly cleansed of foul stuff by understanding appropriate modes of treating them.

Southrons Visit Harrison.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—A distinguished party of southern gentlemen was here yesterday to see Gen. Harrison. The party included Gen. James Longstreet, the distinguished ex-Confederate soldier; E. A. Angier, an attorney, and A. Angier, of the general passenger department of the Western & Atlantic railroad, all the gentlemen being residents of Atlanta, Ga. Gen. Longstreet, though 69 years of age, bears up well. When asked for his views on the southern question he said: "Now, young man, please don't. There is not the least bit of political significance in our visit. I can tell you this much, though," laughed the general, "the south wants everything. It wants the earth—if it can get it. But it wants, more than anything else, a good, honest, and friendly spirit manifested toward it. We want to be treated kindly and considerately."

Secession in the Colonies.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—[Copyright.]—The colonial question has come up in connection with the appointment of a governor for Queensland, the colonists exhibiting a determination to have something to say in the matter. The Times bitterly opposes the appointment of Sir Henry Norman, and says it believes that the Queensland colonists are more than ever anxious to secede from the empire, and questions the wisdom of continuing to allow them the liberty they have hitherto enjoyed.

A Bishop Opposes Boycotting.

DUBLIN, Dec. 4.—Bishop O'Dwyer, of Limerick, has intimated that unless the boycotting of a man named Ryan for taking an evicted farm shall cease he will close the church of the parish in which the farm is located, and suspend all masses, sacraments, and burials.

COUGH and COUGH and COUGH.—What in the world is the reason you will cough and keep coughing and still keep paying inferior medicines when BEGGS' CHERRY COUGH SYRUP will positively relieve your cough at once? PASSED AWAY.

Mrs. Roxana L. Powers, wife of the late William R. Powers, D. D., and mother of Mrs. A. J. Pinkham of Ketchum passed from our midst Thursday morning, November 22d. Mrs. Powers was born at Elbridge, Onondaga county, N. Y., and was in her 66th year at the time of her decease. She came among us some two years and a half ago, and in that time she has endeared herself to all who came in contact with her by the quiet loveliness of her character. The active part of her married life was mainly spent at Mattoon, Ill., where her husband, who was a clergyman and an accomplished scholar, died thirteen years ago, and where she was known and loved for her amiability and charity, for which traits she was especially noted. Her bereaved daughter and friends have the sympathy of our community in their loss. The funeral took place yesterday at the residence of her son in-law, Major A. J. Pinkham, and was quite largely attended. Rev. George Ritchie officiated, assistance by Rev. F. K. Gillette.

A Good Scheme.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have appointed a committee to get up a Fair for the benefit of the Miners' and Lumbermens' fund. This is an important feature of the W. C. T. U. work. Mrs. N. M. Sutton, of Tecumseh, is district president of this department, and earnestly desires all Unions to take active interest in the work. Good literature is wanted to send to the lumbermen. If Unions can do no more, they can each buy one copy of "Temperance Work of the World," and send into the lumber camps. Save your temperance papers and send them also. A young man from one of the camps of the Northern Peninsula told the writer that the men would read anything they could get in the camps.—The Lance.

OBITUARY.

Sarah, wife of Jacob G. Roberts died at her residence on the morning of November 29. Aged 81 years.

Mrs. Roberts was born in Manchester, Ontario Co., N. Y. and at the age of 7 years removed with her parents to Groveland, Livingston county, in the same state; where she was married to Jacob G. Roberts Oct. 24, 1832, living in the same county until her removal to Tecumseh in 1854, celebrating with their children and grand-children the 55th anniversary of their marriage on Oct. 24, 1888. She was a woman who possessed a mind of more than ordinary wealth, but retiring in her habits; and but few knew her excellence of character. She was a faithful wife, a loving mother and a true friend; and although the years of her life were more than is alotted to many, her death leaves those who loved her under the shadow of a deep sorrow.

Elliott Gray returned last week from the North woods. He was troubled with a lame foot most of the time and hence his detours from camp were short and few. The party with whom he went killed ten deer and a large amount of smaller game.

We call attention to the card elsewhere of Galbraith Bros. of Janesville, Wis., importers of the celebrated Clydesdale horses. To any person sending his address, they will forward by mail a copy of their discriptive pamphlet.

About thirty friends and neighbors gave Mrs. Aaron Aten a complete surprise, Saturday evening. She was well remembered with presents, for which she wishes to return to them her heart felt thanks for their kind remembrance.

The landlord of the Lilley House served a sumptuous dinner on Thanksgiving Day. A large number of village guests partook of the feast and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the participants. "Mine host" Patterson is a host on such special occasions.

The Ladies Library Association is in need of a building. One of our well-to-do citizens has offered to start a subscription paper for that purpose with a liberal donation. The enterprise ought to be pushed ahead at once.

Levi Bowen of Franklin, has seven acres of celery land on his farm and has grown some fine samples of the plant this season. A bunch of his raising was distributed among the HERALD boys the other day to good advantage.

The Holiday supplement which we send out this week is the finest extra sheet ever issued from the HERALD office. We doubt whether it has ever been excelled in the county.

Every lady wants to know what to wear and how to make it. Godey's Lady's Book tells all that, and much more. The December number is peculiarly rich, both with illustrations and literary matter: fashions, stories, poetry, shopping hints, and all that a refined and practical lady wants to know.

Hon. A. L. Milliard, Capt. Fred Wood, of Tecumseh, and Mr. John Bird, of this city, have formed a new law "trust" under the firm of Millard, Wood & Bird, and will commence operations Dec. 1, in the rooms over the post-office lately occupied by Bean & Lane. Our people extend to Capt. Wood a hearty welcome to the county seat, and The Times assures him that he will be treated well.—Adrian Times.

Hatch, will speak on Reformatory Work and Method in Prisons. We urge the people of this community to attend and hear Capt. Hatch's earnest word. We think your hearts will be touched and you will the better see what holy work that is for all to do, to bring in the better day of the divine good, love and victory.

Music—Grant Schreder and Henry Horton.
Select Reading—Mrs. Scott Remington.
Charade—Will Fisher, Eva Rector and Clara Farley.
Question—Resolved: That the collecting of farm statistics by the supervisors of the various townships, as new required by law, is of no practical value to the farmers, and the law should be repealed as a useless expense.

Jim Cummins was in Tecumseh last week.

Geo. Kies, of Elkhart, was in town yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Dewolt returned from Detroit Wednesday.

D. P. and W. H. Spaulding of Tecumseh are engaged in roofing the new block at Britton, with tin; they are good reliable workmen and our Britton friends seem to know it.

In the Chicago Evening Journal of Nov. 30th. is a list of probable appointees under the new administration. Among those mentioned for pension agent is Mrs. Minerva K. Elliott, nee Minnie Spaulding of this village. The present pension agent at Chicago is a Mrs. Mulligan.

The kind invitation extended by the Macon Grange to dine with them today is reluctantly declined. Thursday is our "press day" and even a good dinner cannot entice us away from home on that day. We shall expect some of the brethren to send in a good report next week.

J. W. Wightman, who has been practising law recently at Morenci has taken up his residence in Tecumseh and will occupy the rooms just vacated by Capt. Wood. His reputation as a legal practitioner is good and we bespeak for him as liberal a patronage as the peaceful character of our community will afford.

The regular monthly Mother's Meeting of the W. C. T. U. will convene in parlors of the M. E. Church on Friday at 3 o'clock P. M. An interesting programme was prepared by the Superintendent Mrs. N. R. Merritt. All mothers and women interested in child culture are earnestly invited to be present.

Thanksgiving was very generally observed in Tecumseh last Thursday; nearly all the business houses were closed during the day, and the shops were shut down. Services were held at the Baptist Church in the morning and a fine discourse was given by Rev. J. S. Joslin. People gave themselves up to the pleasure and festivities of the day.

We had a pleasant visit with Wm. DeMott, at his home the other evening and confess to our surprise at the extent of his life insurance business. He represents a district of several counties for the Northwestern Mutual Life of Milwaukee, and his list of policy holders is constantly increasing. The strange thing is that some of our accomplished young ladies don't make an impression upon him.

A call at M. P. Brown's gallery the other day was well spent in examining the samples of pianos and organs which he now has for sale from the house of Whitney and Currier, of Toledo. The Boardman and Gray Pianos and the Cottage organs are not excelled by any instrument made and they ought to find sale in this vicinity. Mr. Brown is also to rush the "photo" business for the holiday trade.

Last Sunday four adults and two children crossed the trestle bridge on the Mackinaw road on foot. While on the bridge an extra freight came along and they barely escaped being caught on the bridge. It is a hazardous piece of business crossing a lengthy railroad bridge at any time. One is liable to become dizzy and fall, or to be caught by a passing train. We venture to say that the persons who had the escape last Sunday will hardly care to repeat the experiment.

Mrs. E. A. Tribou went to Detroit Tuesday morning.

B. S. SCUDDER, Macon.

Ernest Gamble started yesterday morning to take his mail route. He will run between Cleveland and Chicago.

Tom L. Hilton, representing the Richmond & Backus Co., of Detroit, was in town to-day in the interest of his firm.

The school board have had a large number of library and school books rebound and also intend having a new unabridged dictionary in each room of the high school.

Owing to the extra work involved in issuing our holiday extra, we are compelled to defer until next week an obituary notice and considerable other local matter.

The Ridgeway and Macon Telegraph Co. have engaged R. J. W. Bowen to manage their line and their wire will soon be in working order and remain so under his efficient management.

The Lilley House was the scene of a quiet wedding party yesterday forenoon. Mr. Thos. Moffett, the clerk of the Hotel was married to Miss Ellen Riley, one of the lady employees, by Rev. J. M. Getchell. Mr. Moffett is setting up the cigars to-day. The event will cause no change in the Hotel force, as both parties will retain their old positions. The HERALD extends its congratulations.

An old Tecumseh boy has been heard from since election. Lew Mathewson, a former resident of these "diggins" has been holding down the official chair of the post office at Avoca, N. Y., but since Cleveland's election he desires some republican to cover the chair, and on the night of the ratification in that place he posted up conspicuously the following official notice: "No snivel service here, come and get your post office."

COUNTY W. C. T. U.

Report of the Eleventh Annual Convention.

The Lenawee County W. C. T. U. met in its eleventh annual convention at Blissfield, Wednesday evening, Nov. 20th, at 7 P. M. The convention was called to order by Mrs. Louise Casey, the president, and devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Rowley, of Morenci. "The Loyal Temperance Legion," numbering some 50 strong, marched to the front part of the room carrying aloft a banner giving "Welcome to the W. C. T. U." after which they rendered some fine and appropriate songs. Mrs. J. R. Carpenter gave a fine address of welcome, to which Mrs Beck of Tecumseh, responded in fitting and appropriate terms. Then followed the address of the president, which was well rendered and thoroughly bristled with telling points. Among other things she urged the ladies to wear the ribbon and subscribe for the Union Signal and Lance. Mrs. G. S. Bradley, of Hudson, read an excellent and carefully prepared paper on W. C. T. U. work. Miss Lottie Lamb, of Blissfield, recited "Two Glasses," in an excellent manner. Mrs Stannard, district president, urged a liberal collection and over $7.00 was received. Mrs. Helen Goff, in behalf of the young ladies of Blissfield, presented the convention with a basket of small boquets for the members. Miss Belle Rhodes gave a recitation entitled "The Empty Keys," after which the convention adjourned until Wednesday morning.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention met at 1:30 P. M. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. G. S. Bradley. The election of officers followed, with Mrs. W. W. Goff in the chair. Misses Hattie Johnson and May Cornelius were made tellers and the secretary announced 45 voting delegates present. Mrs Louise Casey was unanimously elected president; Mrs. Susan Cone, corresponding secretary; Miss Mattie Barber, recording secretary; Mrs. Edna Green, treasurer.

Mrs. Wood, Chairman of the Committee, read, and the convention unanimously adopted the following RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That in the future as in the past, we rely on the aid and seek the blessings of our Heavenly Father upon all our work for the uplifting of humanity, and having full faith that He is ever on the side of the right and justice, we therefore renew our zeal in the temperance work and reaffirm our loyalty to the W. C. T. U. and pledge ourselves anew to aid as far as possible its various lines of work.

Resolved, That we endorse the first resolution adopted at the last county convention which is as follows:

Resolved, That we, as members of the W. C. T. U., remain uncompromising on the subject of absolute prohibition, and will do all to our power to secure this result.

Resolved, That since our cause is just and right, and must eventually prevail, we will continue to pray and work with [illegible] earnestness and patience, but strive [illegible] during possible, that our [illegible] may be strengthened in the hearts of those who believe differently from what we do in the way of accomplishing the desired end.

Resolved, That we urge upon our local unions special work among mothers, either by holding mothers' meetings regularly, or by visitation, the organization of Y unions wherever practicable, and where it is not, hold meetings statedly to address young ladies upon all questions pertaining to Social Purity, temperance and right living, and we especially emphasize the work among children.

Resolved, That as a county convention we hold ourselves unalterably opposed to the use and sale of all narcotics, and as far as in us lies, will in the future use all laudable endeavors for their suppression and that we, are in full accord with the State Union and will do our share in the petitioning the next legislature for a law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes and tobacco to minors.

Resolved, That as heretofore we have nearly all deemed the use of alcohol necessary, both as a medicine and in the preparation of essences, and realizing that in its use thus, we have found it the foe of temperance, we do hereby acknowledge the importance and the great benefit conferred upon the world by the work of the Women's Temperance Hospital, of Chicago, and we recommend it to the hearty support of our unions.

Resolved, That in "The Lance," published in Adrian, we recognize an able and effective ally in our work in this county, and we pledge to it our patronage and earnest support.

Resolved, That we extend to the people of Blissfield our sincere thanks for the generous hospitality we have received at their homes and in their churches, to the Loyal Temperance Legion for their part in the entertainment of Tuesday evening, to the young ladies for the beautiful boquets contributed and to all others who helped to make this convention a success.

On behalf of the Committee
MARY C. WOOD, Chairman.

A PHILANTHROPIC DOMINIE.

He Forced Other People To Be Liberal.

If he had been anybody but a minister of the Gospel, one of the qualities of the late Rev. H. G. Storer, who labored for many years in the towns of Washington County, Me., would be called "nerve," in these slangy days.

He was most zealous and successful in works of benevolence, and when he wanted a brother's contribution the brother had to shell out.

He asked nobody to do more than he would do himself, however. He was in the habit of visiting families where he suspected there was destitution, and if he could not understand the state of the larder by making inquiries he would walk into the kitchen or pantry and inspect the flour barrel himself.

Whatever portion of his salary remained after his private expenses were met he distributed among the worthy poor of his charge.

And when he had nothing left of his own to give he would sometimes go to the grocery kept by his wealthiest deacon and order perhaps a barrel of flour sent to a certain family, and when it had been delivered he would say, in his inimitable and unanswerable manner:

ODD MARRIAGE CUSTOM.

One Not without Its Dangers and Inconveniences.

A curious old marriage custom, which is still widely prevalent in Brittany, was recently interpreted in a novel and amusing manner.

According to the custom, the bridegroom, immediately after the priest had wedded the couple, strikes his wife in the face, saying:

"This is how you will fare if you make me angry," and then, kissing her, he says:

"This is how you will fare if you treat me well."

A short time ago a young Breton married a German girl, and after the ceremony was over began at once to practice the first part of the time honored custom. The bride, who was ignorant of the "inner meaning" of what she considered an insult, turned round on her lord and master and returned the stroke, saying:

"Look here, I do not approve of such behavior," after which the husband is said to have performed the second part of the ceremoney with more than usual affection.—Boston Gazette.

A LITTLE GIRL'S QUAINT LETTER.

The Funny Reason Why It Is Not Longer.

Mr ——

My dear Friend. I donot feel very well to day. I am very sorry that I am not able to go to Sunday school. for I love to go and I have a very nice teacher now but I think I will not have her long for she acts if She was going to get married in a little while. our Sunday School is going to have a fair on Tuesday Wednesday & Thursday. The children are going to have exercises in which we all take part. I have read twelve chapters in my little testament.

I am very happy because I love the lord. How are your family? My pen is poor my ink is pale my hand shakes like a monkey's tail. Good by. I must close my letter now.

Your friend Willetha F——.

No Longer Along in the World.

"Yes," said Smith, "it is a cheerless thing to be left alone in the world. I was left an orphan and without a single relation to whom I could look for sympathy in affliction. But the world is brighter now. I have seven sisters.

"Seven sisters!" exclaimed Jones. "I thought you said you hadn't a single relation in the world."

Dunning the Doctor.

Office Boy—"Please, sir, here's a man to see you."

Impecunious Doctor—"Healthy man?"

Impecunious Doctor (struck with a brilliant idea)—"Let him come in. I'll give him 50 cents on account; he will faint, and I'll charge him $2 for reviving him."—Time.

Ghost and Bullet.

That ghost which haunted a New Hampshire sawmill turned out to be a young woman who used to go spooning around there to imagine that she was in a ruined castle on the Rhine.

After a bullet fired by a constable whizzed by her ear she imagined that she had better get out and give up.—Detroit Free Press.

Revenge Is Sweet.

"My dear boy," said a mother to her son as he handed round his plate for more turkey, "this is the fourth time you've been helped."

"I know, mother," replied the boy, "but that turkey pecked me once and I want to get square with him."

He got his turkey.—San Francisco Wasp.

A Gallant Newspaper.

It is unkindly suggested that women clerks are not only more honest than the men, but that they are too timid to steal.

In that case it is a pity that the same sort of fear doesn't pervade the sterner sex more generally. It is a rather creditable trait.—Boston Herald.

Be Fair to Yourself.

There is no harm in a moderate amount of self-congratulation, provided there is good ground for it.

It isn't wrong to be pleased with ourselves if the imagination doesn't get the better of the judgment.—San Antonio (Texas) Times.

Their Pretty Little "Squabble."

Few are the lady acquaintances who can take a ride on a street car without a pretty little "squabble" about which pays the fares.—Philadelphia Enquirer.

Still Another Word Infliction.

"Pastoration," supposed to mean the settlement of a pastor in a new charge, is the latest word that the West afflicts us with.—Springfield Republican.

THE FASCINATING CIRCUS.

Mechanical Precision of Horse and Rider.

The fixed dimensions of the arena comply with a two-fold exigence—the requirements of the man and the habits of the animal.

Both are inveterate wanderers from town to town. Wherever they go they carry with them an absolute identity of movement, which secures for an exercise its mathematical and mechanical precision.

Neither the horse, and probably his riders, know centripetal and centrifugal forces, even by name; but practice enables them to measure those forces accurately and to keep them in exact equilibrium with their speed.

In circuses of invariable dimensions, the artists, biped and quadruped, are everywhere at home. On the same identical extent of sand or sawdust, a false movement is never made by experienced performers.

The horse knows his business and fulfills it without hesitation; he is not put out by having to act his part under unaccustomed conditions. And he is proud of having acted it well.

There are horses who take all the applause for themselves, and want to treat the public to an encore before it is asked for. The rider may urge them to make their exit; they will strive to linger before their admirers a little longer.

CIGARETTE PAPERS.

What the Boy-Killer Is Wrapped in.

Paper for cigarettes is made from cotton and linen and from rice straw, and is largely of foreign manufacture. Cotton paper is used in the cheapest and most poisonous grades of cigarettes, and is so cheap that the wrappers for a thousand cotton paper cigarettes cost only two cents. Rice paper is the choicest and most costly.

Tobacconized paper is made by saturating paper with an infusion of tobacco and pressing it in such a way as to produce an imitation of the veins of the tobacco leaf. Some use has been made of the fibre of the stalks of the tobacco plant in producing a paper for all-tobacco cigarettes.

The lime and other substances used in bleaching cotton and other rags for cigarette papers have a very harmful influence upon the membrane of the throat and nose. Arsenical preparations are also used in bleaching cigarette papers and oil of creosote is produced naturally as a consequence of combustion.

This is very injurious to the throat and lungs and is said to accelerate the development of consumption in anyone predisposed to the disease.

PUTTING HIM OFF.

What a Maiden's Wit Is Capable of.

"Yes, dear, I love you; but please don't be so impatient. It would be ridiculous to set our wedding day so soon."

Engaged youth—"But why?"

"You must remember that a marriage is a great and solemn event in a woman's life, and should be celebrated by a grand wedding, with everything perfectly lovely and six beautiful bridesmaids."

"All right, You can have a dozen if you wish."

"What a darling you are! Well, that's why I want to wait. Bridesmaids are out of style now, but Mrs. Society says the fashion will be revived in three or four years."—Philadelphia Record.

THE CHRISTIAN'S BADGES.

He Does Not Need a Sky-Blue Ribbon.

A writer in a London religious contemporary insists that professing Christians should wear a distinctive badge, and he suggests a sky-blue ribbon.

The Christian ought to wear three badges, not though, of silk, or linen, or cotton, or worsted, or felt, or cloth, or straw, or metal—but the triad of "a meek and quiet spirit," (First Peter, iii., 4;) "good works," (Acts, xxvi., 20,) and "a holy life," (Romans vi., 22.)

Such a collection of badges would outshine the most indigo-blue canton-spun silk that the hand of man and the art of The cocoon could devise.—Christian at Work.

REDUCING THE DEATH RATE.

The Vital Value of Scientific Knowledge.

Sir Spencer Wells finds that, while the average duration of human life in Great Britain a half century ago was only thirty years, it is now, according to statistics, forty nine years.

In fifty years the population has increased some eight millions; and at least two millions of this increase is believed to be the fruit of improved sanitary and medical work and of success over preventable sickness.

Every Cloud Has a Silver Lining.

Bereaved Mother—"Yes, it is a great trial. But there is no loss without some compensation."

"B. M.—"That is true, but I didn't exactly mean that——"

S. L.—"No?"

B. M.—"No; I was about to say that we can hire a house now without any trouble."—Boston Courier.

Flattering Delaware.

The little son of Le Grand Abbey of Ponckhockie uttered another bright saying yesterday.

His mother is making plans for a Martha Washington party and she made the remark that she would need the services of boys to represent States:

Stephen said:

"I want to be a State, mamma."

"No Stephen, you can represent Yankee Doodle. You are too small to be a State."

"Oh, no, mamma, I want to be a State. I am big enough to represent Delaware."—Kingston Freeman.

Cough medicines, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is in greater demand than ever. No preparation for Throat and Lung Troubles is so prompt in its effects, so agreeable to the taste, and so widely known as this. It is the family medicine in thousands of households.

"I have suffered for years from a bronchial trouble that, whenever I take cold or am exposed to inclement weather, shows itself by a very annoying tickling sensation in the throat and by difficulty in breathing. I have tried a great many remedies, but none does so well as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral which always gives prompt relief in returns of my old complaint." — Ernest A. Hepler, Inspector of Public Roads, Parish Terre Bonne, La.

"I consider Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a most important remedy

For Home Use.

I have tested its curative power, in my family, many times during the past thirty years, and have never known it to fail. It will relieve the most serious affections of the throat and lungs, whether in children or adults." — Mrs. E. G. Edgerly, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

"Twenty years ago I was troubled with a disease of the lungs. Doctors afforded me no relief and considered my case hopeless. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, before I had finished one bottle, found relief. I continued to take this medicine until a cure was effected. I believe that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life."—Samuel Griggs, Waukegan, Ill.

"Six years ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs and soon developed all the alarming symptoms of Consumption. I had a cough, night sweats, bleeding of the lungs, pains in chest and sides, and was so prostrated as to be confined to my bed most of the time. After trying various prescriptions, without benefit, my physician finally determined to give me Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took it, and the effect was magical. I seemed to rally from the first dose of this medicine, and, after using only three bottles, am as well and sound as ever." — Rodney Johnson, Springfield, Ill.

GIDEON'S ARMY.

LESSON X, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, DEC. 9.

Text of the Lesson, Judges vii, 1-8—Commit Verses 2, 3—Golden Text, Zech. iv. 6—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Condensed from Lesson Helper Quarterly, by permission of H. S. Hoffman, Philadelphia, Publisher.]

The summary of the history of Israel under the judges for 450 years, as given in our last lesson, was that they forsook the Lord and served idols, then their enemies oppressed them, then they cried unto the Lord in their distress and He raised up judges who delivered them, the Lord being with the judge; after the judge's death they sinned again, were again oppressed, cried, were again delivered, and thus they lived, sinning and repenting. The book of Judges opens up to us this history and tells us who the oppressors were and who the deliverers were whom God raised up; the manner and duration of the various oppressions, and the manner of the deliverance, with the number of years they rested. Up to the present lesson the oppressors were the kings of Mesopotamia, Moab, and Canaan for periods of eight, eighteen and twenty years; the deliverers were Athniel, Ehud and Shamgar, Deborah and Barak, and the years of rest were forty, eighty and forty years respectively. After the rule of Deborah and Barak the next oppressors were the Midianites, who for seven years had cruelly oppressed Israel when God called Gideon to be their deliverer. The record of his call and the appearance of the Lord to him is found in the previous chapter, where we learn that the secret of his success as a saviour and judge of his people was in these words of the Lord to him: "Go in this thy might, have not I sent thee; surely I will be with thee" (vi, 14-16), which is just the secret of the life of every true believer today. Being encouraged by God he overthrew his father's altar to Baal and built an altar unto the Lord and offered sacrifice; the spirit of the Lord came upon him, he blew a trumpet, sent out messengers and gathered an army of 32,000 men. Today's lesson tells us of the sifting of that army down to 300 men, with whom God wrought Israel's deliverance.

1. "Jerubbaal, who is Gideon." Gideon signified a "feller or bruiser," and is a type of the Lord Jesus, the great deliverer and judge who came to destroy the works of the devil and who will bruise Satan under our feet shortly. He was the youngest of a poor family in the tribe of Manasseh (vi, 15), but the spirit of the Lord qualified him for the work to which he was called and made him a successful leader of men. God chooses the foolish and the weak to confound the wise and mighty that no flesh may glory in His presence. (I Cor. i, 26-31.)

Jerubbaal signifies "a contender with Baal," and Gideon was so called by his father after he had overthrown the altar of Baal (vi, 31, 32); if any one will be filled with the spirit and used of God they must first be willing to overthrow all the idols of pride and self and let the Lord alone possess and control them. Baal signifies "lord," and all the other lords must be set aside that Jesus may reign supreme.

2. "The Lord said unto Gideon." Did your heart ever say: "Oh, if I could only hear the Lord speak to me I would be strong and of good courage." Well, be sure of this, that just as truly as the Lord spoke to Gideon, He is speaking to you today in His word; and until you are sure of this the Bible will never be a very precious book to you. "The people are too many, . . . lest Israel vaunt themselves against Me." A small company surely, when compared with the great host of Midian, and yet God says they are too many. Numbers are not to God what they are to us, and until we can see the unseen Almighty One rather than the seen multitude who are only flesh we shall not be valiant for God.

3. "Whosoever is fearful and afraid, let him return." This was in accordance with the law, and the reason was, lest they should make others to be fearful and faint hearted (Deut. xx, 8). A fearful or discouraged person is not one whom the Lord can use; therefore He so often exports His people to "Be strong and courageous." (Deut. xxxi, 6, 7, 23; Josh. i, 6, 9, 18; x, 25; xxiii, 6; Ps. xxvii, 14; xxxi, 24, and many others.) There is one text which, it seems to me, ought to cure all discouraged workers for Christ, and it is this: "He shall not fail nor be discouraged till He have set judgment in the earth."

4. "The people are yet too many; bring them down unto the water, and I will try them for thee there." If 32,000 was a comparatively small army with which to contend with Midian, what shall we think of only 10,000; and what must Gideon have thought when the Lord said to him, "The people are yet too many?" The process of weakening down our apparent strength for service is not an uncommon one; but the Lord knows what He is doing, and He must have well tried material, faith says, "Even so, Father," and yields and obeys, although it seems more and more like courting utter failure. Gideon might have said, "Lord, if you send me with less than 10,000 I cannot go, for it would be sheer madness;" but he evidently had no such thoughts; he was not managing this business and he had perfect confidence in the Lord.

5-7. "By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you." The 10,000 were brought down to the water to drink; 9,700 knelt down to drink, while the other 300 lifted the water to their mouths with their hands, and that simple test decided who should go. What a little thing, and what was there in it; why should not a soldier kneel down and take a good drink, and what virtue was there in lapping like a dog? It was simply a matter of self indulgence or gratification in a very innocent and harmless thing, but it was at a very critical time. The three hundred seemed to feel the importance of the work before them so much, and their hearts were so set on the conquest of their enemies and the deliverance of their people that they had no time nor inclination to think of their own personal ease or comfort or gratification; theirs was a whole hearted service for their God and their country, and this test was God's way of selecting them. In the matter of the fearful ones it is easy to see why they should go home, but it is not so easy, at first sight, to see why these 9,700 should be set aside, until we remember that anything less than complete and persistent denial of self, in things harmless in themselves but evidencing a desire for self ease or indulgence, is unbecoming in followers of Him who pleased not Himself—did not His own will—sought not His own glory.

8. "So the people took victuals, and their trumpets." When the time of conflict came, we see the 300 divided into three companies, and each man with a torch in his left hand and a trumpet in his right hand, their eyes upon their captain, ready to do as he does (16-20). At the appointed signal every torch flames forth from the vessel in which it had been hid, and at the same instant every trumpet sounds, and the cry is heard from every throat: "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon." Among the hosts of Midian every man's sword is against his fellow; the men of Israel come together and pursue after them, and of the 135,000 of Midian's army 120,000 fall in the battle (viii, 10). Thus the enemy is subdued, Israel is again delivered, and the land has rest forty years in the days of Gideon (viii, 28).

THE MYSTERY OF THE COMB.

Use of This Aid to Personal Appearance in Religious Service.

It would be curious to know what mystic meaning our forefathers attached to so simple an act as that of combing the hair. Yet we learn from old church history that the hair of the priest or Bishop was thus combed several times during divine service, by one of the inferior clergy.

The comb is mentioned as one of the essentials for use during a high mass when sung by a Bishop, and both in English and foreign cathedrals they were reckoned among the costly possessions of the church. Some were made of ivory, some were carved, others gemmed with precious stones.

Among the combs specially known to history are those of St. Neot, St. Dunstan, and Malachias. That of St. Thomas the Martyr of Canterbury is still to be seen in the Church of St. Sepulchre, at Thetford, and that of St. Cuthbert at Durham Cathedral.

From sundry references in old legends to the use of the comb in divination, and from its appearance in combination with pagan emblems on rudely sculptured stones in various parts of Scotland, it seems probable that this was one of the objects of pagan veneration which early Christian teachers deemed it prudent to adopt, investing it with some new significance.—Cornhill Magazine.

AVOID TIPPERS AND TIPPLERS.

A Wall Street Man's Advice To Folks Who Think of Speculating.

Speculation is a business that must be studied as a specialty, and, though it is popularly believed that any man who has money can speculate, yet the ordinary man, without special training in the business, is liable to make as great a mistake in this attempt as the man who thinks he can act as his own lawyer, and who is said "to have a fool for a client."

The common delusion that expert knowledge is not required in speculation has wrecked many fortunes and reputations in Wall street, and is still very influential in its pernicious and illusory achievements.

Professional advice in Wall street, as in legal affairs, is worth paying for, and costs far less in the end than the chief "points" that are distributed profusely around the Street, thick as autumn leaves in Vallambrosa, and which only allure the innocent speculator to put his money where he is almost certain to lose it.

My advice to speculators who wish to make money in Wall street, therefore, is to ignore the counsel of the barroom "tippers" and "tipplers," turn their backs on "bucket shops," and when they want "points" to purchase, let them go to those who know.—Henry Clews.

Some Lively Wit.

An enviable quickness of repartee was shown by a French actor when the head of a goose was thrown on the stage. Advancing to the footlights, he said:

"Gentlemen, if any one among you has lost his head, I shall be glad to restore it at the conclusion of the piece."

Deservedly severe, also, was the reply of Descartes to a nobleman, who, seeing that he enjoyed the pleasure of the table, remarked:

"I see, sir, that philosophers can sometimes indulge in good cheer."

"Why not?" asked Descartes. "Do you really imagine that Providence intended the good things of this earth only for the foolish and ignorant?"

Which Fiddle Do You Play?

In the grand orchestra of life everybody is anxious to play first fiddle. Nay, almost everybody does play it; for although the first fiddle absolute may take precedence of all the rest, yet every second fiddle is first fiddle to somebody.

As "fleas have smaller fleas to bite 'em, and so on ad infinitum," so every man who tickles a superior has an inferior to tickle in turn.

If it were not for this pleasant arrangement we should have no social harmony, and it is only when this system of relations is disturbed that we experience discords and crashes.—New York Ledger.

Important Business.

"Oh, papa," she said with a blush, "young Mr. Chestnut who owns so many coal mines in Pennsylvania, is coming again this evening, and he says he wants to see you on some important business."

"All right, my dear," responded the old man, chucking her playfully under the chin, "I guess I know what the young man wants."

That evening Mr. Chestnut came to the point at once.

"Mr. Hendricks," he said boldly, "I want to ask you if you have laid in your winter's stock of coal."

Her Right Place.

"Have you any data on which to base a prognostication of the duration of the present period of excessive caloric in the circumambient atmosphere?" asked a young woman with spectacles of a man at the Union station yesterday.

"Yes'm," was the reply, "the next train for Boston leaves in half an hour."—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

A Sensible Decision.

"J-John, d-dear," she sobbed. "D-did you ever think how near death is to us all? Wh-what would you ever d-do, dear J-John, if I should die?"

"Well," said John musingly, "I don't know as I had ever thought of it before, my dear, but now you speak of it, my first impression is that I should bury you."—Somerville Journal.

Sage Advice.

Young Softus (who is to escort the unattractive Miss Vinaigrette to dinner)—"But, my dear boy, how am I to entertain her? How can I flatter her when she is so homely? How—?"

Old Boy—"Don't do it. Speak only of the ugliness of others. She'll idolize you!"—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Only a Passing Acquaintance.

"Do you know Col. Bender?" asked a gentlemen of an Austin darkey.

"I doan' know Kurnel Bender by name, sah; I only knows him by sight. I merely has a passin' 'quaintance wid him."—Texas Siftings.

A Result of Disappointment.

Gentlemen—I can cheerfully and truthfully say that S. S. S. is the greatest blood purifier on earth. In 1884 I contracted blood poison. Physicians treated me with no good results. I took a half dozen different kinds of blood medicines, but, without receiving any permanent relief! I was induced to try S. S. S. I began the first bottle with the gravest doubts of success. I had been so often deceived. But improvement came, and I continued its use until perfectly well. I have since married, and have a healthy family. No trace of the disease is seen. Swift's Specific did all this for me, and I am grateful. Yours truly, Honesty the Best Policy.

As illustrative of the average negro character, a gentleman said that an old negro woman made application for the loan of $5. He lent her the money and, true to her promise, she returned it.

That was several years since, and nearly every time she has seen him since she would accost him with the salutation:

"Mr. Blank, you loaned me $5; didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I paid it back, didn't I?"

"That you did."

"Well, don't you think you oughter give me a quarter?"

The gentleman said he generally thought so, and that he had responded to her calls cheerfully.

Look Out for Windy Weather at the Capital,

FOR CONGRESS HAS RE-ASSEMBLED,

And Senators and Representatives Have a Deal to Talk About—Quiet and Uneventful Opening of the Session—The Message Read and a Prompt Adjournment Follows.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 3.—The Fifty-fifth Congress assembled for its second and final session at 12 o'clock today. Every seat in the senate was occupied, and in the house every member was present except those whose seats are contested. The galleries were crowded. The exercises in the senate were simply the reading of the president's message. On the floor of the house pages were distributing bushels of documents. The largest document occupied the desk of the presiding officer. There were two basketfuls of S. Doc. 1 on Senator Hale's desk, and one on Pugh's and one on Daniel's. Numerous documents adorned the desks of the Republican senators.

Stewart of Nevada was the first member of the senate to make an appearance on the floor. He was soon joined by Chandler, Hawley, and Dolph. A few minutes later Spooner, Adrico, Manderson, Frye, and Morrill came out of the cloakroom and joined their colleagues on the floor. At the same time Harris of Tennessee and Jones of Arkansas appeared in the Democratic section of the chamber. As the hands of the big clock on the chamber rapidly filled with members, an animated handshaking was going on in all of the sides.

At 12 o'clock Ingalls entered the chamber, escorting the chaplain, Mr. Butler. When the gavel fell at 12 there were forty-two senators present. Mr. Butler's prayer was brief. He asked for a blessing on the president and the press of interest. At the conclusion of the prayer, Ingalls announced the senate in session. Sherman asked if it was necessary to call the roll. Ingalls said it was not. Sherman then offered a resolution reciting the vacancy of the house that the senate was ready for the transfer of business. The resolution was adopted. A resolution was offered by Morrill and adopted that a committee be appointed to wait on the president. The president pro tem. appointed Morrill and Sanders the committee. A resolution offered by Cannon was adopted, fixing the regular hour for assembling at 12 o'clock.

The senate then went into executive session to await the president's message. The recess was later extended to 1 o'clock. A few minutes before that time Assistant Secretary Pruden appeared at the door of the senate chamber with a large package, evidently the message in his hands. The president pro tempore called the senate to order. A message from the house was received, and then Morrill and Sanders, the senate committee, appeared in the aisle, arm in arm, and Morrill, addressing the presiding officer, said that the committee had called upon the president and that he had a message for them to be delivered immediately. Mr. Pruden then presented the message to the senate. It was handed by Ingalls to the secretary of the senate, who, at 1:04 began to read in a clear voice. Not more than twenty senators listened to the reading, and at 1:33 the senate, at Sherman's suggestion, adjourned. Five minutes later Speaker Carlisle rap[illegible] the house to order. Prayer was dispensed with, and the journal was read and approved. The speaker then laid before the house the message of the president, which was received with applause. The reference to Cuba was cheered by the Democrats, and the reference to Spain was greeted with silence. The reference to Sackville as "the person" interest[illegible] Democrats when the reading of the message was finished.

LITTLEWOOD IS CHAMPION,

The English Pedestrian Beats Albert's Record—Albert's Challenge.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—There was an immense assemblage in Madison Square garden Saturday night to witness the closing scenes of the six days go as you please, which began shortly after midnight Monday last. It is estimated that from 8,000 to 10,000 people were present. From 5 o'clock and up to the close of the race most of the pedestrians remained on the track, and every time the band played the men would spurt around at a lively rate. The sporting men unanimously declared that but for the lack of heart Cartwright would have been pushing Littlewood for first place.

GEORGE LITTLEWOOD.

At 6 o'clock Littlewood was ten miles ahead of Albert's record. He was going around gamely, although it was evident that one of his feet was sore, as he limped in rather a painful way. Littlewood's intention when he started was to cover 655 miles, his sickness prevented this, but he was determined to break the record. At 7:30 he made his 626th mile, and the crowd cheered loudly. The excitement was great as he drew near Albert's record. Albert and his wife sat in a box and saw Littlewood win the title of champion walker of the world. Shortly after starting out on the 624th lap it was stated that he would on completing it retire for good. While Littlewood was covering his 625th mile the crowd grew more enthusiastic. When he had completed it a wreath was presented by Guerrero with a handsome wreath, a present from Jockey Garrison, while the band played "Hail to the Chief," followed with "Yankee Doodle." It was [illegible] when he finished. Albert [illegible] with him [illegible] a broom, while other people bore aloft [illegible] flags. One circuit of the track was then made in a sort of triumphal procession, and Littlewood left the track.

Moore, Cartwright, Hart, Connor, Golden, Mason, Campana, Taylor, and Smith followed shortly after, but Hertz remained on the track running in splendid form. It was announced that he had determined to beat Rowell's record of 565 miles and 165 yards. At 9:44 he made the 622d mile, and shortly after passed Rowell's record, making the greatest record of his life. All the contestants returned to the track between 9 and 10 and indulged in frolicsome sports. At 9:56 Littlewood, escorted by Manager O'Brien and limping badly, went around the track amid great cheering. After making a couple of laps Littlewood and Hertz were stopped by Kelly, of the Boston Base Ball club, and presented with wreaths of laurel. After Littlewood made a few more laps he was stopped in front of the scorer's stand and presented with the diamond championship belt by Mike Kelly, who made a few brief remarks. He said that while Americans bowed to his superiority now, he hoped that soon an American would again get possession of the belt and the title of champion of the world. The belt was then fastened around Littlewood's waist, and Colonel Hale spoke for his good wishes, and he said he won the belt once, but supposed he would have to win it twice more to hold it. Hertz then stepped forward and challenged Littlewood to another race for the championship of the world under the conditions that each man should put up $1,000, to be divided among the walkers in addition to the gate receipts.

The total score was: Littlewood, 625 miles 165 yards; Hertz, 605; Moore, 570; Cartwright, 540; Noremac, 542; Hart, 529; Rowell, 525; Connor, 520; Golden, 504; Mason, 488; Taylor, 450; Campana, 451; Fitzsimmons, 445; Peach, 262; Smith, 501. The receipts for the week amounted to about $[illegible]. Of this sum $9,000 will be divided among the walkers. Littlewood gets $[illegible] with $[illegible] added for breaking the record; Hertz, $[illegible]; Moore, $[illegible]; Cartwright, $[illegible]; Connor, $[illegible]; Golden, $[illegible], and Mason, $[illegible].

Cheap Fares to Inauguration.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 4.—At a meeting of the committee on transportation to the inaugural ceremonies of March next, held last evening, a report was presented showing that a circular letter had been sent to every railroad in the United States, directly or indirectly interested in business at the national capital, suggesting that the rate to Washington for the inauguration be made one fare and a one-third trip from all points. Replies to the circular indicate that rates from all points in Texas and adjacent territory will be received from all sections.

Most Devilishly Done

The Calumet Mines Alleged to Have Been Fired.

EIGHT MEN MEET AN AWFUL DOOM,

And Over Two Hundred Others Have a Very Narrow Escape—Harrowing scenes at the shaft—A Heavy Loss in Money—What Would Be Done with the Incendiary.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The Herald's Hancock, Mich., special says the Calumet and Hecla mine was deliberately set on fire at 11 o'clock Thursday night. Of the 200 or 300 men on duty at the time, all but eight escaped unharmed. As soon as the fire was discovered the men began to work their way up, and when they reached the fire itself, made an attempt to turn on the water, but the pipes had been disconnected and no water was to be had. The signal wire had also been cut, and there was nothing left but to fight for life. Under the guidance of cool-headed leaders the men worked their way around the burning tunnel to other connections with the main engine shaft, and thence to the surface.

While the scenes below were being enacted the cry also that the mine was on fire had reached the homes of the miners, and the wives, children and friends of the men below soon crowded around the shafts, wild with grief and anxiety. As each man came up out of the death trap he was seized by weeping wife and children of anxious friends, and cries of grief were changed to shouts of rejoicing. The men kept coming up until it was known that all but eight had been rescued. For these no possible hope remains, as the only avenue of escape is cut off. They were doubtless smothered between the sixth level, where the fire originated, and the surface. Their names are: Antony Lanzio, Andrew Hansen, Joe Roe, Antony Kalskie, Gustav Tava, John Puck, Joe Mosseglie and John Vandierbilt.

At the spot where the fire originated no one was working, and this fact, taken in connection with the disconnecting of the water pipes and the breaking of the signal wire, leaves no room to doubt that the fire was the work of an incendiary. Just one year ago the mine took fire under circumstances which pointed strongly to incendiarism. It is hinted that an interested syndicate is at the bottom of the fires, and that the work is that of their hired accomplice for the purpose of checking the production of copper, and hence booming the price. The management had a standing reward of $2,000 for the discovery of the man who set the fire a year ago, and if human agency can discover the perpetrator of this deed it is openly declared that he will be hurled headlong down the burning shaft.

No means of approximating the probable loss to the mine company are at hand. The other fire burned for thirteen weeks, and did millions of dollars worth of damage. It was nothing in fierceness as compared to the present one. Late last night the fire burst its way through the surface, and a huge pillar of flame and sparks shot upward like a volcano, but it was again smothered by coverings of earth.

Another theory is that the fire was caused by the carelessness of the man in charge of the donkey pumps, which are run by compressed air. Unless the moving parts of the machinery, for which air furnishes the motive power, are kept warm they are likely to freeze. Cotton waste saturated with oil is burned in the troughs of the pumps. This theory is that the cotton waste fell from the trough and ignited the timbers in the shaft. The underground fire is fed solely by the timbers which support the overhanging walls and roof, and this amounts almost to a forest. It would take years to burn it all, and to save it from burning is a task which may well be called herculean. Carbonic acid gas will probably be resorted to to put out the fire, as was so successfully done a year ago when 16,000 cubic feet per day were forced down the burning shaft.

MUCH LAND INVOLVED.

A Question Before Secretary Vilas Which Interests Many Michigan Men.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 3.—A long point involving 3,000 acres of land in Michigan, took place before Secretary Vilas at the interior department yesterday. The case involved some 1,360 acres of swamp lands claimed by the state of Michigan under the act of Sept. 28, 1850. Subsequently the lands were resurveyed and declared not to be swamp. They were taken from the state and as such opened by the government to private entry. This action the state disputes, holding that the action of the government in originally declaring the lands swamp lands was final. The roads to whom the odd sections of the lands in question were granted have disposed of a large portion of them, and the present owners comprise many of the wealthy men in the northwest, including both of the Michigan senators and several members of the house. The secretary's decision is not expected for several weeks.

WANTED FOR NEXT YEAR.

Estimates of Appropriations Needed by the Several Departments.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 4.—The secretary of the treasury has transmitted to congress estimates of appropriations needed for the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889. They aggregate $325,467,488, which is $[illegible] less than the estimates for 1889, and $[illegible] more than the appropriations for the current fiscal year. The estimates are as follows:

Severe Storm in Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 4.—Nearly all the eastern and trains on the western roads were a little late yesterday morning. The delay was caused by the severity of the storm, which seems to have swept over the entire state of Kansas. Engineers report heavy fall of snow and rain in the eastern and southern portions of the state and heavy snow in the western portion.

The War on the Microbes Begun.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 4.—There were 10 new cases yesterday, and but one death—Felton Carver.

HALF A VILLAGE DESTROYED.

KANKAKEE, Ills., Dec. 1.—An accident, by which one life was lost and a man was badly injured, resulted in the destruction of a large portion of the village of L'Erable Thursday night. An old man named Vanderpool, living in L'Erable, was lighting a lamp preparatory to retiring for the night, when [illegible] from the ceiling fell upon [illegible] causing an explosion. The oil was [illegible] over the room, and in a moment the building was in flames. The contents of the lamp also spread upon Vanderpool's clothing, and [illegible] enveloped the old man in fire. Vanderpool fought as hard and as long as he could, but was soon forced to give up and fell screaming for help. Neighbors gathered at the house upon seeing the flames, and hearing Vanderpool's cry. William Adams rushed to his rescue and succeeded in carrying the old man into the street. Vanderpool was fatally burned, however, and after a night of terrible agony, died in the morning. Adams was also badly burned, but it is thought will recover. No apparatus was at hand to subdue the flames which spread from house to house until more than half the village was destroyed. The buildings were all of wood, and the loss falls heavily upon the owners and occupants.

GEN. SHERMAN BEREAVED.

Death of His Wife, Who Has Been Seriously Ill for Some Time.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Ellen Ewing Sherman, wife of Gen. W. T. Sherman, who has been seriously ill at her residence, 75 West Seventy-first street, since Sunday last, died at 9:30 Wednesday morning. She had been complaining of cardiac affection for the past five years and about three weeks ago serious symptoms began to develop.

Mrs. Sherman will be buried at St. Louis, in Calvary cemetery, which adjoins Bellefontaine. A special car has been placed at the disposal of Gen. Sherman, to convey the remains to St. Louis. The train will start Thursday evening, and will reach its destination Saturday morning. The interment will take place in the afternoon.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—After simple services at the residence of Gen. Sherman yesterday the body of Mrs. Sherman was taken to the Pennsylvania railway station in Jersey City, whence Gen. Sherman and five members of his family accompanied the remains to St. Louis.

Secretary Whitney's Report.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 1.—Secretary Whitney devotes the first part of his annual report to a review of the progress made in the construction of a navy and the best types of vessels to build. He says that everything necessary to the construction of a first class fighting ship can now be made in this country, and that when the cruisers now provided for are built we will rank second among the nations in the possession of armored cruisers—commerce destroyers. He then discusses the administration of his office, stating that notwithstanding the outlay for new vessels the expenses for the past three years have been but $46,830,030, while for the three years ending with 1884 they were $47,979,397. The report makes numerous comparisons of the same character, much to the credit of the present administration. The secretary asks $26,767,677 in all for the next fiscal year.

The Figures on Illinois.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—The official returns from the recent election in Illinois are at last complete. The total vote cast in the state was 744,576, an increase of 71,907 in four years. The total vote of the county for president, including the city, is 172,868, an increase of 41,180 in four years, plurality of Harrison over Cleveland in the entire county, 8,6[illegible]. Palmer's plurality for governor in the county over Fifer is 4,49[illegible].

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 10, 1887.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co.—Gentlemen—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years and would say that in all my practice and experience, have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as Ivon Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.

Yours Truly,

L. L. GORSUCH, M. D.

Office, 215 Summit St.

We will give $100 for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured with Hall's Catarrh Cure. Taken internally.

At a Reading.

The spare professor, grave and bald,
Began his paper. It was called,
I think, "A Brief Historic Glance
At Russia, Germany and France."
A glance, but to my best belief
'Twas almost anything but brief—
A wide survey, in which the earth
Was seen before mankind had birth.
Strange monsters basked them in the sun,
Behemoth, armored glyptodon
And in the dawn's unpracticed ray
The transient dodo winged its way;
Then, by degrees, through silt and slough,
We reached Berlin, I don't know how.
The good professor's monotone
Had turned me into senseless stone
Instanter, but that near me sat
Hypatia in her new spring hat.
Blue eyed, intent, with lips whose bloom
Lighted the heavy curtained room.
Hypatia—ah, what lovely things
Are fashioned out of eighteen springs—
At first, in sums of this amount,
The eighteen winters do not count.
Just as my eyes were growing dim
With heaviness, I saw that slim,
Erect, elastic figure there
Like a pond lily taking air.
She looked so fresh, so wise, so neat,
So altogether crisp and sweet,
I quite forgot what Bismarck said,
And why the emperor shook his head,
And how it was Von Moltke's frown
Cost France another frontier town.
The only facts I took away
From the professor's theme that day
Were these: a forehead broad and low,
Such as the antique sculptures show;
A chin to Greek perfection true;
Eyes of Astarte's tender blue;
A high complexion without fleck
Or flaw, and curls about her neck.
—Thomas Bailey Aldrich in Harper's Magazine.

A Great Wonder.

We can't conceive why, with all the variety of weather we have had lately, anybody ever leaves Burlington for a change of climate.—Burlington Free Press.

Between the Horns.

Mrs. Abner (calling on Aunt Dinah)—Yo' ain't lookin' even pahsin' well dis morniu', Aunt Dinah.

Aunt Dinah (with a sigh)—No, 'deed I isn't. I doan know what I'se gwine to do wid dat ar black biahed girl of mine; she drives me to distracshun.

Mrs. Abner—Why doan yo' biah a white girl?

Aunt Dinah—Well, I doan know; 'Rastus favors a white girl, but I allus foun' 'em so shiffless dar's no ffbin' wiv 'em.—New York Sun.

Business is Business.

Railroad President—Did you get the injured passengers in that accident satisfied so they, they won't sue for damages?

Under Secretary—Yes, sir. The worst injured were drummers, who are used to that sort of thing, and $3 worth of cigars fixed them all right. The only other one was a man who had his nose broken.

"Eh! What did you do with him?"

"As the accident changed his pug nose to a very handsome Roman I charged him $100 for the operation. So, you see, we are $97 ahead."—Philadelphia Record.

Life in Russia.

First Russian Subject—In a recent railroad accident the czar's dog was killed, but the czar escaped. Shall we look glad or sorry in public?

Second Subject—If we look glad the police will say it is because the czar's favorite dog was killed; if we look sorry they will say it is because it was the dog and not the czar that was killed. Either way we are lost. See you later in Siberia.—Philadelphia Record.

A Metropolitan Noise.

Kansas City Resident (on board train to stranger)—Well, sir, we have reached the metropolis of the great and growing west at last. We are in Kansas City. This is Eight Hundred and Fortieth street.

Stranger (peering out of the window)—Well, what is that peculiar noise?

A Fit Subject.

A correspondent asks The Boston Globe: "Can a person obtain admission to the Old Ladies' Home, as is reported, by collecting 1,000,000 old postage stamps?" The Globe replies in the negative; but we should think the person who performs such a task would have no difficulty in getting admitted to almost any insane asylum.—Norristown Herald.

The Great Literary Center.

The proposed exhibit of Chicago pork in Paris is very flattering to this city of culture. Nobody is trying to get up an exhibit of Boston beans in the French metropolis. Chicago is rapidly coming to be recognized as the great literary center of this country.—Chicago News.

An Old Truth Illustrated.

"The silent pressure of the hand is often of more vital cost than a whole volume of good counsel," says a philosopher. So the bad boy's mother thinks, and she knows just where the hand should be properly and effectively applied.—Somerville Journal.

Off Duty.

(Miss Keane (to handsome young physician)—Oh, doctor, how do you do? You look killing this evening!

Young Physician (quietly)—Thank you, but I'm not; I'm off duty, don't you know.—Drake's Magazine.

She Met Him the Second Time.

De Wolf Hopper has the reputation of being the most credulous man that walks the streets. It is not that he is hoodwinked by applicants for charity, but he has a repugnance to giving any one a chance to say that he is stingy. For all this it gives him a three cornered pain to know absolutely that he has been beaten. During his present engagement here he was taking a stroll one afternoon and a woman met him on the street and asked if he could inform her which depot she should go to to get a train for Evanston. Mr. Hopper happened to know that Evanston was on the Northwestern road and he knew that the depot was on Kinzie street. All this he told the woman, and while he was doing so she suddenly burst into tears and informed the comedian that she was very desirous of reaching that point, but that she only had fifteen cents in money. As she was rather comely in looks and not badly dressed, Mr. Hopper at once concluded that it was a case of deserving charity, and he was not an instant in producing a silver dollar, which he pressed into her hand, saying: "Take this, madam; take this: it's all right; don't apologize and don't thank me." Mr. Hopper continued his walk. He was trying to count all the buildings in the city that were over eight stories high, and had reached the corner of Dearborn and Adams streets, when he heard a familiar voice say: "Excuse me, but I am a stranger here, and I wish you would direct me to the right depot for Englewood." Mr. Hopper gave her one look. It was the same woman who had accosted him two hours before. With a saddened voice he replied: "Yes, madam, I can. You take the train I directed you to about two hours ago for Evanston, and if you have good luck you will get there."—Chicago Herald.

A Great Genius.

"I have a pretty story," she said to the editor. "It is striking and strictly original."

"Leave it," the editor groaned.

"Let me read it to you."

"Not if you value your life!" the editor exclaimed.

"Sir!"

"I said that I must go home to my wife."

"Well, let me tell you a part of the story: A young girl is working in a hat factory. One day she stitches her name in the hat"——

"Oh, no. That night the factory catches fire and is burned up."

"What! does no one rescue the hat and marry the girl?"

"No."

"Miss, your fortune is made. We want everything you write. You have done a great work for American literature."—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Llamantable Tale.

These unfortunate beautiful llamas
Were taken away from their mammas,
And in spite of their squealin's
And lacerated feelin's,
Were required to sleep in pajamas.

—Frost's Stuff and Nonsense.

Bits from Amateur Novels.

A western paper recently offered a prize for the best story to be written by a pupil of a public school. Here are a few passages from the contributions:

"Cora Brown was fortunately the possessor of a birthday, for she was the daughter of rich friends."

"But all this time a cloud was gathering over Mrs. Delaney, which grew large as years went by, and that cloud was full of grasshoppers."

"My father desired me to marry a bank president, a handsome, reckless man, fond of naught save the gaming table."

"'Vat I dell you, vat I dell you?' shouted the Irishman."

"She forgot the Lord and all his blessings, and after that she went and got married."—New York Tribune.

A Poor Prescription.

Mr. Whiffles—Doctor, I hear you have a sure cure for insomnia. I wish you would treat me for it, as it is almost impossible for me to get to sleep.

Doctor—Certainly. My plan is very simple. As soon as you lie down at night begin to count, and keep on counting until you get to sleep.

"Is counting all it is? Why, doctor, counting is just what I do every night of my life, and it doesn't put me to sleep at all."

"Eh? What do you count?"

"Oh, household expenses, unpaid bills, time left on notes and all sorts of things."—Philadelphia Record.

Great Expectations.

Affectionate Nephew—As soon as I heard of uncle's illness I rushed over here. I must see him.

Nurse—Impossible. The doctor says the slightest shock may kill him.

An Infallible Sign.

"What makes you think Jennie loves you so much?" asked Merritt.

"Because," returned Bjones, "she called me back five times last night when I was bidding her good by."—New York Evening Sun.
